LONDON, Feb. 5. — Tomorrow threatens to be a critical day in the industrial and public life of London, it having been fixed both by the London engineers and the electrical trades union as the date of a general stoppage of work in the metropolis.

Meanwhile the Government today took strong action to cope with the emergency. It met the threat of the electricians to deprive the capital of light tomorrow night by issuing a new order under the Defense of the Realm act making such action a punishable offense.

The Government, it is understood, has also taken steps with the Electrical Power Engineers' Association to provide the labor necessary to keep the public lighting going, and it has undertaken to supply the railroads with engine staffs in case there is an attempt to call out all the drivers.

Moreover, to relieve the deplorable plight of the people forced to tramp through miles of streets to and from work the Government has ordered the immediate mobilization of military motor lorries and drivers. The vehicles will be placed at once on London's main streets to carry the city's workers, preferential treatment being given to women and girls.

As it is, many members of the staffs of the Government offices were carried to and from distant suburbs in that way today.

Strike Leaders Removed.

Not less important is an announcement that the executive of the Amalgamated Society of Engineers, one of the most powerful trade unions in the country, has taken up the question of unauthorized strikes with its London, Belfast, and Clyde committees. That executive body realizes how seriously the standing and authority of recognized trade unionism has been affected by the recent outbreaks. That it will insist upon discipline is shown by the announcement tonight that it has "dismissed" the district council of the Amalgamated Society.

It is reported, however, that this council thereupon delegated the strike arrangements to the shop stewards, who are calling upon the members to cease work at midday tomorrow. If the threat is fulfilled it is believed that about 200,000 men and thirty unions will be involved.

Tomorrow will show which the London members of the Engineers' Society prefer to follow, their duly elected officials who are standing by the agreement made by them on their members' behalf, or the body of shop stewards who have thrown the society's discipline overboard.

Electric Workers Disconcerted.

The Government's step in "proclaiming" the electricians' strike came as a great and unpleasant surprise to the employes in London's electric light works. At first there was a disposition to treat the matter in a spirit of bravado, but when the full purport of the proclamation was realized there was a change of tone, and it is said that many men are less inclined to strike.

Whether they strike or otherwise it is believed that the Government will soon be able to secure a sufficient number of volunteer workers to keep the power stations and other essential public services going.

The position of the motor bus and tramway workers is uncertain. They were advised by their union to remain at work, but a power house stoppage would, of course, bring the tram services to a standstill, thus rendering the transit problem even more critical, since upon the trams has fallen the task of conveying many thousands of people who normally patronize the subways.

The tribulations of those who are compelled to walk miles to their homes in the outer suburbs was made worse today by a heavy fall of snow, which lies in some places four inches deep.

Meanwhile news from Belfast and the Clyde is more cheering. In Glasgow the backbone of the strike movement seems to be definitely broken,

Mines Sink Three Ships with Loss of 25 Lives

SOUTH SHIELDS, England, Feb. 5.—The British sloop Penarth is reported sunk by a mine twenty-three miles off the Tyne River. Two trawlers have picked up forty members of the crew.

COPENHAGEN, Feb. 5.—A Norwegian fishing steamer and a Swedish steamer have been sunk by mines with the loss of twenty-five lives, according to reports received here.

The Norwegian vessel was blown up outside the Norwegian port of Stavanger, and eight fishermen were killed.

The Swedish steamer Sphynx of 1,572 tons was on the way from England to Sweden with coal and went down near Coquet Island, off Scotland, with the loss of seventeen of the crew.

BALK DEMOCRATIC TEST ON SUFFRAGE

Opponents in Senate Caucus Refuse to Vote and "No Quorum" Is Announced.

HITCHCOCK STILL OBDURATE

But Supporters of Amendment Resolution Hope to Get One Vote Needed to Pass It.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Strategy of opponents of equal suffrage was said to have prevented a formal record vote on indorsement of the Susan B. Anthony suffrage constitutional amendment resolution at a conference tonight of Democratic Senators.

The political expediency of acting on the suffrage amendment was the principal theme of debate, which was marked by vehemence. At times Senators spoke so loudly that their voices sounded through the thick doors of the conference room and echoed through the corridors.

Advocates of the resolution argued that the fortunes of the Democratic Party would be aided by favorable action, and said that if the resolution was defeated future political benefits would be received by the Republican Party.

Opponents were said to have contended that political expediency should not be a factor in so serious a matter as amending the Constitution. They offered a motion to adjourn, which was defeated 23 to 17.

After more than two hours of debate, Senator Jones of New Mexico, Chairman of the Woman's Suffrage Committee, proposed indorsement of the Constitutional Amendment measure. Twenty Senators voted favorably, but the opponents refrained from voting, and Senator Martin, the Democratic leader, who presided, declared that the resolution was not adopted because no quorum was present.

The meeting, the first held by the Democratic Senators since the United States entered the war, broke up in a roar of laughter over this ruling.

After adjournment Senator Jones said the conference action left the matter open for further consideration, and would not affect his plans to call up the resolution in the Senate Monday.

It was announced that one more recruit for the resolution had been gained in Senator Pollock of South Carolina, who spoke in its support.

Friends of the resolution said privately that it would be brought before the Senate Monday with at least 63 of the 96 votes assured in its favor. This would be one short of the required two-thirds, but advocates expressed confidence that the one additional vote necessary for its adoption could be obtained.

Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska, who was expected by the suffrage proponents to fall into line after the legislature of his State passed a motion urging him to vote for the resolution, will not change his attitude, but will vote against it.

MASON DEFENDS ACTION.

Tells House About His Appearance at "Red" Meeting.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Representative William E. Mason of Chicago today told the House he attended the "Red" meeting at Poli's Theatre last Sunday afternoon, where he spoke to the audience from a box, "simply to hear what the facts are from that side," and that he spoke in answer to charges made against him in the Senate by Senator Thomas of Colorado. He said:

"I say to you, the meeting was not in the interest of the 'Reds.' The young man and woman who spoke there spoke simply to give their ideas of what the truth was over here. There was not an insulting remark made, nor was there a suggestion to change the laws of the United States."

Mason said there was a Czarist as well as a Bolsheviki propaganda in this country. "I know," he shouted, "that there is a propaganda going on in the United States to uphold the spawn of the Czar. But I am an American citizen, and I say, 'a plague upon both your houses!'

"The whole trouble arises because we have got troops in Russia today without a declaration of war. I do not believe they should be there fighting on either side of this political scramble. As much as I hate the doctrine of anarchy and nihilism I hate and despise the doctrine of the Czar. And as far as I am concerned, I do not care which one of them wins in Russia. But my people in Illinois are begging me to get their boys out of that country."

Siberian Troops Wipe Out Two Divisions of Bolsheviki

OMSK, Feb. 3, (Associated Press.)—Two divisions of Bolshevists have been virtually annihilated by Siberian troops under General Gaida [Czech Commander] at Kungur, fifty miles southeast of Perm, according to an official statement issued here today.

Perm is now declared safe from Bolshevist attack. People who had fled to Ekaterinburg and other towns are returning.

The losses of the Siberian troops in the battle at Kungur are not given. General Gaida's forces are now twelve miles from Ufa, which was taken by Bolshevist forces sometime ago.

ARCHANGEL, Feb. 5, (Associated Press.)—Heavy losses were inflicted on the Bolsheviki by the American forces on Tuesday and the enemy was driven back in disorder from the village of Vistavka, on the Vaga.

The American casualties were five killed and several wounded.

Many Bolshevist soldiers were taken prisoners by the Americans.

The enemy began early in the morning a bombardment with field guns and howitzers, and under cover of a shrapnel and pompom barrage essayed a frontal attack with infantry in the Arctic twilight at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The American troops, who were rested after their retirement from Shenkursk and were now established in a good position, poured a heavy fire from artillery and machine guns into the charging Bolsheviki whose ranks broke and fled into the woods.

Captured Bolsheviki declared that the enemy had planned a flank attack simultaneously with the frontal movement, but this was abandoned when the Vistavka attempt failed.

Chinese and Manchu troops are now included in the Bolshevist forces opposing the Americans on the Vaga. So far these have been held in reserve, but the Americans are preparing a warm reception for the yellow soldiers if they appear in the fighting line, in view of stories reaching them of the Manchu treatment of prisoners in the Baltic provinces.

Yesterday's defeat of the enemy on the Vaga, together with his failure on the Dvina, typifies the spirit of the American and other allied troops who are fighting with the utmost determination to hold their positions until reinforcements can reach them. These defeats have considerably lowered the enemy morale, but the Bolsheviki are being constantly reinforced, and while their offensive has been temporarily checked, there are indications that it will be renewed when fresh forces reach the line.

Details were received at headquarters today of the bravery displayed by a little squad of about fifteen Frenchmen, who were victims of an enemy raid Monday on the village of Bolshoie Ozera, Vologda Railway front. Mistaking the enemy for returning Russian prisoners of war, the French detachment permitted the Bolsheviki to advance close to their position. Then they found themselves suddenly surrounded by a force of 150 of the enemy. Called upon to surrender, the Frenchmen refused and tried to fight their way out. Two were killed, three were wounded, and six were unaccounted for a time. Four of these six turned up today, two of them wounded, apparently having escaped from their captors.

Allied troops were again forced to retire in the face of Bolshevist attacks along the Pinega River, but the positions of the Americans at the town of Pinega have not been attacked.

On the Dvina sector the allied troops have burned the village of Upper Tulgas, which frequently gave refuge to Bolshevist attacking parties.

The enemy lost so heavily in the attack on the Tulgas position, held by American and Scottish forces, on Jan. 31, that they refused to again go forward and held a meeting at which they openly debated the question of deserting to the Allies. Several Bolshevist deserters already have made their way to the allied lines, and from these men details of the meeting have been learned. The Bolsheviki planned the capture of Shenkursk, Taresevo, and Tulgas in a simultaneous offensive.

Swiss Council Refuses to Cut Army Budget Now

BERNE, Feb. 4.—The National Council today rejected by 101 votes to 18 a motion to reduce by 20,000,000 francs the military budget for the year.

A Socialist motion to reject the budget and to introduce Soldiers' Councils and a uniform rate of pay throughout the army was defeated by 132 votes to 11. In the discussion all the non-Socialist speakers insisted that a well trained, armed, and equipped Federal army was necessary to guarantee the safety of Switzerland.

SENATORS ASSAIL BRITISH EMBARGO

Members of Both Parties Express Fear That It Will Hurt Our Industries.

REED PREDICTS REPRISAL

Lewis Says It May Revive "Spirit of 1812"—Carnegie Foundation Under Fire.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5. — The feeling was expressed in Senate debate today that the embargo established by Great Britain against certain imports from the rest of the world would seriously affect American industries. While it was emphasized that the embargo was not directed against the United States alone, still, Senators felt, it would harm American industries if enforced.

The debate was on the resolution of Senator Weeks of Massachusetts, calling on the State Department to say whether any step had been taken to ascertain why Great Britain regarded the embargo as necessary, so far as the United States was concerned.

Senator Lewis, Democratic whip, warned that Great Britain should not arouse "the spirit of 1812." Senator Weeks said that while the restriction was intended to restore Britain's shattered industries, it might operate at the expense of the industries of the United States. Senator Reed of Missouri, making a bitter attack upon the embargo, said that Great Britain had become selfish after the American soldiers had "turned the tide of battle in France and saved the war for the Allies."

Weeks Opens Debate.

Senator Weeks opened the debate by reading a list of goods on the embargo list.

"No spirit of antagonism to Great Britain prompts me to make this inquiry," said Senator Weeks. "It is only intended to show how our foreign trade may be affected. The time is coming when we must do something to protect our own commercial interests. I do not charge that the action of Great Britain is aimed at the United States. I understand its application in general. It is intended to protect home industries and build them up. I would like to know the situation in the State Department and what steps are being taken there."

Senator Lewis said he and his colleague, Senator Sherman, had received leters from manufacturers in the Middle West saying articles on the prohibited list embraced a large proportion of those made in their territory.

"I think this is an appropriate time to give the British officials to realize that this is a delicate situation," said Senator Lewis. "While the President is in France working for the benefit of the Allies, it is inimical to the interests for which he is striving, that Great Britain seizes the opportunity to impose such an embargo. It is calculated to arouse a feeling of hostility. Britain does this country a great violence at this time to press this embargo. She will make it very difficult for the President to protect and secure the adoption of his program. It will awaken a feeling of hostility in the United States that may lead to retaliatory legislation. It will not insure the peace anticipated among the Allies, but will lead to a feeling of enmity.

"I pray the British officials to beware not to reawaken the spirit of 1812."

Reed Talks of Reprisal.

Senator Reed declared that would be "bloody reprisal" if the embargo were carried to the extent of keeping out American goods from the British market for an appreciable time.

"Great Britain, to whose rescue we went," said the Senator; "Great Britain whose marshals stood out and cried, 'Our backs are to the wall; Britons, stand or die;' Great Britain, who heard the Yankee cheers and the rebel yells from the rear; Great Britain, whose armies turned and began their march to the front when the Yankee boys were leading in that bloody charge; Great Britain, no sooner had she succeeded in extricating her two hands from the great mouth of the German war monster, but she proceeds selfishly to put up the bars of her trade against the very race and the very nation that went to her rescue.

"Do I say this to arouse feeling against Great Britain? No. There is not a braver man than the British; there is not a more upsquared, hewed-to-the-line class of men than the British; but these British are men with common sense, and when this war is over they are going to look out for Great Britain; they are going to see to it that Great Britain takes care of herself. And if you set up a super-nation with Great Britain and France at the head of it, it

BOMBARD BREMEN AND OUST REBELS; MANY ARE KILLED

German Government Troops Take Possession of the City After Heavy Fighting.

OLD CATHEDRAL DAMAGED

Large Number of Houses Are Wrecked by Shells—Spartacides Retreat to Groepsingen.

TO OPEN ASSEMBLY TODAY

Cabinet of Majority Socialists, Democrats, and Clericals to be Formed at Weimar.

COPENHAGEN, Feb. 5.—Government troops entered Bremen last night after heavy fighting and occupied the Town Hall and the Stock Exchange.

The Spartacides have retreated to Gröpsingen.

The Government troops made their entrance after the city had been bombarded. Many persons are reported to have been killed in the bombardment.

Armed Spartacides from Eisenach and Gotha are on their way to Bremen to the support of the Spartacides there.

LONDON, Feb. 5.—During the bombardment of Bremen the Old Cathedral, the Boerse, and the City Hall were damaged and many houses partly destroyed, according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Copenhagen.

Preparing for Convention Today.

WEIMAR, Feb. 3, (Associated Press.)—The process of temporarily transferring the seat of the German Government from Berlin to Weimar, where the National Assembly is to meet on Thursday, is expected to be virtually completed tomorrow, when Count Brockdorff-Rantzau, the Foreign Secretary, will reach here.

The five members of the Cabinet and the executive officials under Chancellor Ebert arrived in Weimar early this afternoon, and established quarters in the palace.

The physical difficulties accompanying the task of the temporary transfer of the Government comprise chiefly an apparent shortage of manual laborers willing to haul and carry baggage. The city has furnished an over-supply of candidates for posts of honor, but the members of the Government, on their arrival here, had to search diligently for men willing to transfer the official baggage from the station to the palace.

Notwithstanding this handicap, the Cabinet, minus its official records and other documents, managed to hold an executive session in the palace late in the afternoon.

The present Government considers that its mandate will expire with the convening of the Constituent Assembly, and its first task will be to move for the immediate appointment of a new coalition Government, in the organization of which party interests will be eliminated. It is believed that the new provisional Cabinet will be made up of Majority Socialists, Democrats, and Clericals.

The Majority Socialists will hold their first party caucus on Tuesday morning. The German Democratic faction will hold its party meeting at Erfurt, near Weimar.

Weimar Communications Hampered.

BERLIN, Feb. 4, (Associated Press.)—Independent Socialists interrupted telephone communication between Weimar and Eisenach and Erfurt for several hours on Monday afternoon, according to advices received by the Tageblatt from Weimar.

An Alpine corps of 1,000 men, under command of General Merker, has arrived at Weimar and will police the city. These are official Government troops, but will be assisted by the garrison of Weimar, which is now loyal to the Government and prepared to defend the National Assembly.

Unverified but constantly recurring rumors from Eisenach continue to tell of plans to oppose the work of the Assembly.

Majority Socialist members of the Soldiers' and Workmen's Council at Erfurt have resigned on the ground that they cannot share the responsibility for the council's present actions. Officers in the Erfurt arsenal have refused to report for duty until weapons taken from the arsenal and distributed among civilians there have been returned.

DEFEAT ROYALIST TROOPS.

Portuguese Republicans Occupy Several Towns in North.

LISBON, Feb. 2.—Monarchist troops, it is announced, have been defeated in an action at Covilha, southeast of Oporto near the Spanish frontier, by republican troops under Lieutenant Fuertes, who are advancing on Guarda, to the northeast. The republican flag now floats over the towns of Covilha and Castello Branco, and the monarchists are retiring on Regoa, where their headquarters have been established.

Along the coast the republicans have occupied Fosoca and Argaja, and the monarchists are evacuating Estarreja, south of Oporto. Communication with Lisbon has been restored as far north as Aveiro.

PARIS, Feb. 3.—A dispatch from Oporto says that Royalist sources in Portugal announce the success of the Royalists at Elvas, twelve miles west of Badajos. The dispatch adds that the troops have proclaimed a monarchy.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS WITH RESERVATIONS; EACH CAN ACCEPT IN WHOLE OR IN PART; TWO ARTICLES OF CONSTITUTION FRAMED

Krech Proposes a Moratorium of all Nations To Give Breathing Time for Reconstruction

PARIS, Feb. 5, (Associated Press.)—Alvin W. Krech, President of the Equitable Trust Company of New York, who is visiting France to study financial conditions, said to The Associated Press today:

"The temporary suspension of liquidation by the Governments to one another ought to be one of the first expedients of intergovernment finance. I mean that for the present we should have an international moratorium between the Governments in order to give the nations breathing time.

"France owes England and America; Belgium owes France, England, and America; Italy owes America, England, and France. The small nations owe the big ones. No one of them, large or small, can conveniently pay at the moment. Hence they all need an international moratorium, to afford time for reconstruction. Even Germany must have time to make payments.

"It seems to me that this is the time that America, with infinite advantage to herself, may supplement her military support, now that the occasion for such support has practically disappeared, by becoming a genuine factor in the establishment of an intimate union with France for the promotion of the material interests of both countries."

Seized Letters of Germans Show How They Really Hate Americans

Missives to Relatives Here, Examined by Censor in the Occupied Zone, in Sharp Contrast to the Servility and Compliments Heaped on Our Soldiers—Convictions for Circulating Propaganda.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COBLENZ, Feb. 4.—Examination of a large number of letters written by Germans in the territory occupied by the American Third Army to friends and relatives in the United States and other countries reveals a wide range of expression of hatred of Americans.

It should be explained that letters from Germans here are not allowed to go to America, because technically Germany is still at war with the Allies. These letters go to the American Base Censor's office to be held until peace is made. Meanwhile they have been examined by the American Censor, and it is to that examination I refer.

It goes without saying that these letters, or perhaps nearly all of them, were written by Germans who did not believe that they would be read by Americans officers, and therefore the expressions of their feelings to their relatives and friends may be taken as sincere. The expressions of dislike of the American are not unanimous, but there is so much of it in comparison to the attitude of Germans in person toward Americans that it comes with striking force. It is just because the Germans say one thing to Americans here in Coblenz and write another diametrically opposite to their cousins that it is worth noticing. It is further proof of the working of the German propaganda.

Here is an example taken from the letter of a wealthy woman here:

What One Woman Wrote.

"These detestable Americans have been here again in my house. First they came searching for arms, and now they come again, searching for food. God-speed the day when the curse of their presence will be removed from us."

Incidentally it may be stated that this search to discover food hoarders was undertaken not to obtain any for Americans, but to protect the poorer Germans against their wealthy neighbors.

Many of the letters express resentment because the Americans are billeted with the writers, who seem to have forgotten that the Germans in France did not content themselves with taking only spare rooms as the Americans in Germany do; but often drove out the families.

Scores of letters accuse the Americans of deeds of which they were never guilty, and criticize the behavior of our army, which is perhaps more exemplary than any other army of occupation in history.

There are few statements of facts in these letters. They are simply the expression of the innate feeling which needs no overt act of the Americans to force to the surface. They show how these same Germans hate us. They know that Americans caused them to lose the war, and they hate them for it, their sweet words and servile obeisances to the contrary notwithstanding.

If one heard any of these expressions in his daily contact with Germans, it would be different. But one never does. It is always praise of the Americans and their army and their President and their country and their behavior, and talk of how "we hope the French do not come when you go, because the French are so cruel and the Americans are so nice."

German's Frank Talk to Frenchman.

That reminds one of an incident which throws light on the situation. Yesterday I was seated in a café at a table next to that of a French Lieutenant. In came a German, well dressed and speaking excellent French. He asked the Lieutenant if it was true that the French were coming into Coblenz. The Lieutenant replied diplomatically that he didn't know.

"I hope they do," said the German. "They treat the people in Mayence so well and these Americans are good for nothing."

He was one of the Germans who had been praising the Americans whenever he talked to them. There one sees the German attitude in a nutshell. The aspect of friendliness for Americans is false in its entirety and intended for only personal and national gain. They continue to try to stir up trouble between the Americans and French.

One may quote the words of an American Colonel, who is in a position to know what he is talking about. He said:

"This German 'comrade' business got a start among our soldiers, but it has gone to the bad. You cannot appeal to an American by servility, and our boys are learning that the Germans are not friendly but servile, and the reaction is setting in fast. If hostilities were to be resumed tomorrow, there would not be ten deserters in 300,000 American soldiers on German soil."

Convict Three Germans of Propaganda.

COBLENZ, Feb. 4, (Associated Press.)—Three Germans have been convicted in military courts here in the last few days on the charge of circulating enemy propaganda among American troops in the occupied area of Germany.

The distribution of material, which the intelligence officers regard as propaganda, has been carried on in various ways. It has been given away as postcards and sold in stores. One shopkeeper was convicted after having offered for sale a watch fob with American and German flags crossed upon it.

At Treves, recently, a thousand postcards were confiscated by American officers. They pictured a beautiful German woman with a handful of strings, at the ends of which tiny French, British and American soldiers were dancing to her caprice.

WILSON CABLES THANKS.

His Message on Naval Bill Draws Fire of Representative Graham.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Just after Chairman Padgett of the House Committee on Naval Affairs read a cablegram today from President Wilson, in which he thanked the committee for unanimously favoring the three-year naval program, Representative Graham of Illinois made an attack upon the President and upon Chairman Padgett because of the Chairman's refusal to make public the cablegram the President sent urging passage of the bill. The cablegram which Mr. Padgett received today read:

"May I not express my gratification, gratitude, and congratulations at the unanimous report of the three-year naval program."

Mr. Graham said that while he had always been in favor of a big navy, and would vote for the naval increase, "it is a matter of humiliation to me that in doing so I may appear to be animated by the whip and spur that is being administered by the President and that Congress feels in its side.

"It humiliates me extremely," he continued, "to see coming into our counsels here this covert threat sent by the President under which I believe a majority of the public is acting."

Speaking of what he called "whispered information sent across the seas," Representative Graham said it was an unfair advantage to take on the House.

"Long back through the years of Woodrow Wilson's life and ever since he became President he has been a mind changer," he said. "If he ever advocated any single principle that he did not change his mind on I have yet to find it out. I believe that President Wilson has been right on more subjects than any public man I ever saw, because he has been on both sides of all questions."

TEST OF LEAGUE AT HAND

Conferees Feverishly at Work to Conciliate Conflicting Points of View.

SENATE'S ATTITUDE AN ISSUE

Our Delegates Think It Would Not Accept Arbitral Awards in Advance.

SMALL STATES PRESSING

Big Powers Obdurate to Their Claims for Larger League Representation.

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 5.—The future usefulness of the League of Nations is now being put to the test.

In the realization that the covenant must be arranged within a period measured by days, those engaged in the important work of drafting the document that may mark a new era in world history are bringing forth all the arguments that represent their attitude. Each cites his pros and hammers in his cons with all the force possible.

In these circumstances it is not strange that the league occupies the centre of the stage in the great drama being enacted here in Paris, which is rightly called the capital of the world. Every paragraph of the twenty-two composing the covenant is being gone over with the fine-tooth comb of diplomatic exactness. While each clause represents an attempt to put in written words the views to which all the covenant makers have subscribed orally, there is a wide difference between having some one else endeavor to set forth your ideas and setting them forth yourself.

All of this means that many changes are necessary in the draft in order to reach a harmonious conclusion. No nation is bound to agree to the covenant unless it chooses, and it is necessary, therefore, to conciliate every objector and attempt to reach the happy medium that represents the amalgamation of his convictions with those of his conferees.

As matters stand there is every likelihood of reservations being made to the covenants written into the constitution of the League. Those who have studied The Hague conventions have been struck by the considerable number of reservations to the terms that represent the composite views of all the nations affected. Every nation, it is assumed, will sign the treaty containing this constitution, but each has a right to attach a note, saying that it cannot accept in part or entirely certain provisions, identified in the note. However, the aim of the commission which is drafting the constitution of the Society of Nations is to have as few of these reservations as possible—none at all, if that can be arranged.

Wilson's Herculean Task.

It is in this connection that President Wilson is working harder than ever before, perhaps in his whole life, certainly harder even than in the early days of his first Administration, when he sought to put through Congress in a single session a complete revision of the tariff laws and an equally complete revision of laws relating to currency and finance.

The President has shown himself to be rather an expert conciliator, much to the surprise of many European statesmen, who had been convinced that he was a very stubborn person, fixed as the North Star in his own convictions and disinclined to change them after hearing other sides of the case. But he has been a surprise to Europe in this regard. His courtesy, tact, and quickness in conciliatory suggestion has made a deep impression, and on none more than on those two experienced statesmen, Premier Lloyd George and Premier Clemenceau.

Last night the Commission on the League of Nations, with the President presiding, had a long session in Colonel House's salon in the Hôtel de Crillon, where most of the officials connected with the Peace Commission reside.

With fifteen present, nearly all men of positive views and representing nations with diverse interests and special claims to consideration, it is no easy task to whip into shape, acceptable to all, those twenty-two articles, comprising the proposed fundamental law of the league. How well or how badly they succeed the world will not know until the text of the constitution is available. When that will be is problematical; but there is a strong inclination on the part of some plenipotentiaries to give it to the press as soon as the document is completed.

One of the most important problems that have come to the front to worry those in favor of a league strong enough to prevent future wars concerns the matter of the determination of disputes between nations. In a measure this is as important as any provision of the constitution.

Last night I sent a brief wireless dispatch (we are rationed on the use of the wireless, and the ration is meagre) stating the subject of this disturbing element, but confessing that the situation was not clearly understood. Subsequently I obtained a more illuminating explanation, which I am able to give in this dispatch.

This problem related to the provision for compulsory arbitration of international differences. As it was written into the constitution the supposition was that it approximated the view of the generality of the conferees. It provided that nations involved in serious contentions which were likely to lead to war should submit them to the arbitration of a body provided for in the constitution. Such submission meant that the nations affected would be bound in honor to accept the judgment of the arbitral body.

Fear of the Senate's Dissent.

It seems, however, that this provision was not acceptable to all the Governments represented in the Peace Conference.

The President and his associates were strong for its inclusion, but there is some reason to believe that they began to have doubts whether the Senate would sanction any arrangement that bound the United States Government in advance to accept the award of an international court on all matters of international difference that the League of Nations believed should be left to the determination of arbitrators.

Perhaps the American Peace Commission has been in communication with the Senate leaders. But whoever raised the objection to the provision for compulsory arbitration, the matter became a live issue, and my latest information is that a compromise has been proposed which leaves to every nation the choice of method for the adjustment of its differences with another nation.

But this compromise does not entirely eliminate the compulsory feature. It proposes that each nation whose differences with another are regarded as serious enough to call for intervention by the League shall be required to choose between one of three methods of having the controversy adjusted. These methods are (1) arbitration, (2) mediation—probably by a committee of the League—(3) inquiry to determine the rights and wrongs of the dispute.

If the nations in the controversy should select arbitration as a means of settlement, they would be bound in honor to abide by the arbitrators' verdict; if mediation be the method, by the views of the mediators. They need not necessarily be accepted, although it goes without saying that the confirmation by the League of Nations of the mediators' efforts would have a strong moral effect upon the disputants to accept proposals for adjustment.

Resort to the method of inquiry means that the nations in dispute agree not to engage in hostilities until representatives of the League of Nations have completed their investigation and made their report. This is the method which William Jennings Bryan incorporated in his scheme of peace treaties when he was Secretary of State.

Measure of Compulsion Retained.

It is evident, therefore, that under the compromise proposed there is some measure of compulsion. The nations signatory to the league constitution bind themselves not to resort to war until one or another of the means mentioned has been tried to settle their differences. Should this compromise be accepted there will be great disappointment among those who have been foremost in advocating the formation of an international society to prevent future wars. The American delegates have been among these.

The adjustment of international quarrels through any of these three methods does not eliminate the application of force to bring the recalcitrant nation to conform its conduct to the views of the league as a whole. But, as I have explained in other dispatches, the league covenant does not bind any nation to resort to the use of its land and naval forces, or either, to discipline another nation, should the majority of the league decide that this course is necessary. No surrender of sovereignty is involved in the league's fundamental law.

For one thing it would be impossible for the American negotiators to bind the United States to this procedure, as the Constitution gives to Congress the exclusive right to declare war. Furthermore the American Commissioners were convinced that the American people would not consent to have their Government bound in advance to engage in the employment of force that the majority of the League of Nations believed essential to bring a recalcitrant Government to obey the league's mandate.

So there is to be no delegation of super-national powers by any nation to the league. This does not mean, however, that force will not be employed. The proper authority of the league may determine that punitive measures are required to compel nations to refrain from engaging in conflict.

In that event each nation would have the right to determine for itself whether it would employ its armed forces in this way. Of course, public opinion in each country will largely determine the course its Government follows. Special considerations, such as the effect of a conflict on national interests will naturally play a part. But these are things that nobody is able to foresee now, when the world is sick of war.

The use of the economic boycott as a weapon of discipline is to be applied, however, if the present sentiment of the League of Nations Commission prevails. The nations, subscribing to the constitution of the league as tentatively drawn, bind themselves to join in direct punitive measures of this character.

I wirelessed briefly Tuesday evening that the Japanese delegation had begun to show interest in the league plan. Heretofore Japanese plenipotentiaries had taken no part in the discussion of the league proposals. They had explained that they had no mandate from their Government to express opinions one way or another. Apparently they have now received instructions, for they have given adhesion to the league principles and indicated that they would submit suggestions for incorporation in the league program. The attitude of the Japanese, whose delegation is headed by Viscount Chinda, formerly Ambassador to the United States, is pleasing to those delegates who desire the league to be a success.

Other Commissions Make Progress.

While the League Commission is working, other commissions appointed by the Peace Conference are making progress. A sub-committee of one commission of which Bernard Baruch, is the American member is outlining plans for helping the devastated regions. Another sub-committee is considering the lifting of the blockade to the extent of permitting the importation into Germany of articles from neighboring neutral countries. Thus Holland under this arrangement, would be permitted to send into Germany supplies which it has imported from other countries. It is likely that this arrangement will soon be put in force.

The American representatives favor giving some assistance to Germany as a measure of enabling the resumption of normal conditions and reducing the causes of disorder which are likely to furnish a great impetus to the Bolshevist movement.

SMALL STATES URGENT FOR FULL EQUALITY

But Great Powers Object to Any Plan Putting Themselves in a Minority.

PARIS, Feb. 5.—Although the five great allied and associated powers, which are directing the Peace Conference, have turned over much of the work to commissions, the Society of Nations question, especially with reference to the smaller nations, is becoming a rather knotty problem.

The lesser powers, it is stated, want full equality in a Society of Nations and also greater influence than the plans already outlined give to them. The great powers, on the other hand, are faced with the situation that if each State should have one member on a Supreme Court of Nations, they might find themselves in the minority, although their interests might be, and probably would be, much greater.

It is not believed that the great powers would consent to an arrangement of this sort, and a situation similar to that at the Second Hague Peace Conference appears to be in the making. The experts on the Society of Nations question are hopeful of finding a way to get the smaller States to agree to the plan so that it will not fail as Elihu Root's scheme for a Supreme Court of Nations was frustrated at The Hague.

The preamble and two articles of the constitution of the Society of Nations were provisionally agreed upon last night by the commission of the Peace Conference appointed to deal with that subject, it was officially announced today. Satisfactory progress was made with other parts of the task.

The question of adding representatives of other powers to the commission is being discussed.

The text of the official announcement reads:

> The Commission on the League of Nations met last evening at the Hôtel de Crillon at 8:30 P. M. and commenced its detailed discussions. A preamble and two articles were discussed, and their texts were provisionally agreed upon. Satisfactory progress was made in regard to other parts of the draft. The question of adding representatives of other powers to the commission was also discussed. The commission will meet again this evening at 8:30 o'clock.

The Conference Committee on Reparations met this forenoon and exchanged views regarding the principles covering reparations for damages caused by the enemy and based on memoranda presented by the delegations of the countries affected.

The memoranda will be discussed at the next meeting of the committee, which will be held Feb. 10.

George Nicoll Barnes, British Labor delegate to the Peace Conference, and M. Colliard, French Minister of Labor, were elected Vice Presidents of the Peace Conference Committee on International Labor at its meeting yesterday. The committee agreed to adopt as a basis for discussion the British proposals for the establishment of a permanent organization to deal with international labor questions.

President Wilson had a conference during the forenoon with Premier Lloyd George and A. J. Balfour, British Foreign Secretary. The President and the British statesmen were together some time.

After his conference with the British leaders and prior to the meeting of the Supreme Council in the afternoon, the President devoted the time to a private study of the many problems upon which he is engaged.

DEMAND TRIAL OF KAISER.

Sir Gordon Hewart Indicates That British Are Resolved Upon It.

PARIS, Feb. 4.—Sir Gordon Hewart, British Attorney General, today outlined the British attitude toward the question of the responsibility of the Kaiser and his régime for the war and its crimes. He of course did not refer explicitly either to William II. or to any other personalities of the Hohenzollern or Hapsburg régimes, for, as he explained, the legal point of view was that the commission which has been appointed with reference to punishment of the enemy offenders is really engaged in a task of criminal investigation, and it would be, in a sense, prejudicing the case to pillory your criminals before you have convicted them.

"The British view," said the Attorney General, "is that the official offenders, however highly placed, must be made to suffer suitable punishment without avoidable delay. Who, precisely, are the offenders, what constitutes their offenses, and by what process their punishment can be imposed, are questions requiring the most careful consideration."

Sir Gordon Hewart stated that the matter could not usefully be discussed in public, for secrecy was necessary to the success of the enemy criminal investigation.

In addition to the chief Commission on Offenses and Punishment, three subcommittees have been appointed, one to collect and examine facts, and the other two to consider the questions of law involved. A mass of valuable material has already been brought together and sifted, and the utmost possible dispatch will be observed.

The Kaiser, meanwhile, will have an opportunity to prepare his case.

Programs of Reconstruction Are Held in Abeyance Until This Question Is Answered.

PARIS, Feb 4.—Finally the conference has organized. For more than two weeks the President, Prime Ministers and Foreign Secretaries have struggled with the basis of peace—the fourteen points—and the results have been far-reaching. Instead of the division of spoils pursuant to diplomatic precedent, there has been acceptance of the democratic principle based on the rights of peoples, and a new international order has been established. The League of Nations, though not yet definitely formulated in the precise terms of the treaty, has been created and has been made into a very live instrument of international action by having intrusted to it the important function of a Court of Equity to receive reports from its mandatories and exercise powers of review over the conduct of the trusts confided to the charter members of the League.

Too much credit cannot be given to the splendid example set by the British and Dominion delegates in taking the initial step to insure that the decisions of the conference, so far as they relate to territorial matters, shall be governed by principle and not by the selfish and shortsighted aspirations of individual Governments. The work of the conference during the last week has been indeed encouraging in this respect.

Order Appearing Out of Chaos.

And now out of the chaos of questions pressing for consideration, there seems to be appearing some degree of order. The conference has organized to the extent of appointing a number of committees to consider and report on certain of the most pressing of many perplexing problems. The basis of peace, as set forth in the fourteen points, cannot be formulated with any degree of particularity until these committees report. However, there seems to be little doubt that the League of Nations Committee will report either this week or in the beginning of the next.

President Wilson personally is doing everything in his power to help complete the work of this committee and to place its conclusions before the plenary session of the conference before he sails for America. No doubt this will be done.

The committee next in importance to that considering the League of Nations is that studying the intricate question of the reparation to be exacted from Germany. The public in the United States can with difficulty appreciate the enormous importance attached to this question today in allied countries. In the first place, it must be clearly understood that the basis for all damages to be recovered from Germany is set forth in the communication sent to President Wilson by the allied Governments at the time the terms of the armistice were agreed upon. With the purpose of clarifying certain parts of the President's speech to Congress of Jan. 8, 1918, the allied statesmen included the following in this communication:

"Further, in the conditions of peace laid down in his address to Congress of Jan. 8, 1918, the President declared that invaded territories must be restored as well as evacuated and freed. The allied Governments feel that no doubt ought to be allowed to exist as to what this provision implies. By it they understand that compensation will be made by Germany for all damage done to the civilian population of the Allies and their property by the aggression of Germany by land, by sea, and from the air."

Foe Must Pay Enormous Damages.

The Allies, by expressly amending the fourteen points for the purpose of clarifying them, have defined with striking particularity the nature of the compensation to be required of Germany. Their amendment rules out any possibility of recovery of punitive damages or indemnity. However, it must not be thought that by their amendment the Allies have given up any material advantage. An enormous sum must be recovered from Germany before even reparation is secured on account of the damage caused to allied civilian populations by German aggression "by land, by sea, and from the air." There is little hope among the financial experts gathered in Paris to examine and report on the compensation to be paid by Germany that there will be enough found to pay all the reparation claims 100 cents on the dollar.

"Germany must pay the cost of the war" may be the popular refrain, but statesmen who are depending on that slogan to maintain themselves are, in the opinion of all financial experts, chasing butterflies.

To the people of the United States the question, in the circumstances, is of no selfish importance. Our Alien Property Custodian has sufficient German assets amply to cover our claims for reparation; and, though our national debt has increased enormously on account of the war expenses, the people of the United States have never been led to hope that this debt would be reduced in any way by payments from Germany.

A very different situation exists in France and in Italy, and to some extent in England. The German assets found in those countries are of slight value in comparison to the damage done to the civilian populations by the aggression of Germany. In France and Italy the greater part of the war expenses has been met by increasing the national debt rather than by increased taxation. The people have been told from time to time that Germany would be forced to bear the burden of the expense of the war. The result is that in the allied countries we find: (1) Enormous claims against Germany for reparation; (2) an inconsiderable amount of German assets; (3) in France and Italy gigantic increases in the national debt, and even in England a debt ten times as great as it was before the war; (4) social unrest of such a character as to make increases of taxation of doubtful expediency; (5) an expectation on the part of the people of these countries that part, at least, of the cost of the war will be met by Germany.

Allies' Keen Interest in Reparation.

In such circumstances it is not surprising that in allied countries the report of the Committee on Reparation is awaited with the keenest interest. It is of prime importance that the Peace Conference should know without delay: (1) How much Germany can be required to pay, and (2) how she is to pay.

Until these questions are decided, plans for reconstruction are being held in abeyance; for the Governments, until they learn how much they are to receive from Germany, cannot estimate what expenditures they can afford to make. And until the Governments announce their reconstruction plans and go into the markets for raw materials, great uncertainty must continue to exist in the United States.

Not only are we affected by failure to determine how much Germany is to pay, but our commercial life will be much disturbed until we learn how Germany is to pay whatever sum is settled upon. The acquisition by the Allies of German foreign investments is a comparatively simple matter and can be effected with but little disturbance. The sum so realized, however, will fall far short of meeting even minimum demands. Compensation in excess of this must be obtained, either by increased taxation of German nationals or by foreign loans, which eventually must be paid by taxation or by the sale of commodities exported from Germany in excess of her imports. In the end, whatever sum Germany is compelled to pay over and above the amount of her foreign investments must, in order that it may be available in any currency other than marks, be paid by the sale of German exports in excess of her imports.

This being true, the broad scope of the functions of the Committee on Reparation becomes apparent. Its report will contain recommendations to the conference as to the economic life which Germany shall be permitted to enjoy for at least the next decade. The end to be accomplished is, of course, the securing of as large a sum as possible from Germany with as little disturbance as possible to our own economic life.

Germany must be permitted to reconstitute her economic existence, otherwise she can make only inconsiderable payment to the Allies. But her reconstitution must be under such supervision as to insure the prompt payment of such a sum as may be assessed against her. This is the problem presented to the Committee on Reparation. The solution is eagerly awaited, for the future of Germany and, indeed, the economic processes of the whole world, depend upon it.

REACTIONARY MALICE IN PARIS

Evidenced by False Report of American Wireless to Soviet Leaders.

By CHARLES A. SELDEN.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 4.—A false report, printed in several papers here and probably cabled to America, to the effect that the American Government had consented to send by wireless the message of the French Socialist Longuet to the Bolshevist Government at Moscow, after the French Government had refused, is important and interesting only as additional evidence of the effort of the reactionary French press to create resentment on the part of its public against America.

Needless to say, no such message was sent by the American Government to Moscow nor received by the American official wireless office in Paris for such sending. If the Longuet story was sent by an American correspondent to his paper in the United States and picked up later for transmission to Moscow, that is a matter about which Government officials here know nothing.

But the French papers intimated that the American Government had deliberately flouted the French Government by doing what the latter had refused to do. This is in line with an apparently organized campaign on the part of a few papers to undermine America in the minds of the French people. Another device is to print every scrap of anti-Wilson talk obtainable from the United States. A third method is insidiously to atack the League of Nations idea by praising the theory of it and then presenting arguments intended to show that it will never work.

In method these League of Nations articles are similar to the Hearst editorials printed during the war, which began with spread-eagleism and put the poison in the last paragraph. It is a favorite but somewhat hackneyed trick to compare the League of Nations to the Holy Alliance, which fell to pieces after the good Czar who had invented it became a wicked Czar.

WANTS GUARANTEES OF QUICK AID IN WAR

Temps Writer Hopes the President's Speech Means Just That to France.

By WALTER DURANTY.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 4.—The true inwardness of the French attitude toward the Society of Nations is set forth in a Temps editorial on the Wilson and Deschanel speeches yesterday in the Chamber. France is not yet sure how far international action may be practical and efficacious. So, after analyzing Deschanel's points, which chiefly concern the material guarantees for France's future protection, the writer discusses President Wilson's view, in which he holds that only international guarantees are suggested.

He says that, satisfactory as the President's statement that other nations have aided and would in the future aid France against aggression, there are two important factors, time and space, to be considered. It is not only a question of reuniting the forces of widely separated nations, but also of the moment at which their intervention may take place. Thus, nearly three years elapsed before America intervened in the recent conflict, during a considerable part of which the army of Russia, he says, was the only great army cooperating with France.

France's position, he holds, is such that if she be willing in the interests of world peace to waive full material guarantees she must have the certainty of wholehearted and immediate aid from the Society of Nations. The editorial concludes:

"Each nation affiliated with the society must have the will and power to sign the convention according to the terms on which it pledges itself to enter war immediately with all the forces at its disposal against any State that attacks another State.

"France is ready to sign. The United States, doubtless, is ready also. No other interpretation can be placed on the President's statement, and it will be a cause for rejoicing when this interpretation is confirmed by facts."

LEAGUE GAINS WAY DESPITE PESSIMISTS

General Desire to Expedite Peacemaking Works in Wilson's Favor.

MONROE DOCTRINE IS SAFE

American Delegates Deny Alarmist Reports That Creation of League Would Abrogate It.

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 4.—With the final effort now in progress to make the League of Nations a going concern, criticism of the proposals under discussion has become intense. Some French newspapers, for example, advance the view that the League cannot be effective without the use of force, and this would prevent the United States from becoming an effective member, because the nation could not be committed in advance to declaring war, as Congress, under the Constitution, has that exclusive right. And now, as it is realized that the plan for the practical working of the League is being considered, suggestions are advanced that the United States, by placing itself under the government of the League, must surrender its proprietorship in the Monroe Doctrine.

The striking thing about the present phase of criticism is that it seeks to emphasize the difficulties of America in holding a place in the League. These criticisms start with the assumption that the League, to be effective, must not only provide for the use of force to discipline Governments which disobey the League's decrees, but that each nation must surrender its own sovereignty in certain aspects and permit itself to be subject to the judgment of the majority of the League's members. Whatever may be the merits of this argument, the critics overlook the fact that the President and his advisers took into close account just these criticisms, and that their attitude toward the League plan now under consideration was shaped accordingly.

As I have pointed out several times in my dispatches, the program of the League organization makes it clear that no supersovereignty is involved. No nation will be called upon to surrender its right to determine individually what its course shall be in certain remote circumstances involving international hostilities. The exercise of this right is left to the determination of each nation, should a condition arise which would lead the majority of the League members to vote for the use of force.

Peril to Monroe Doctrine Denied.

Nor—it is asserted by the American representatives—is there any danger to the Monroe Doctrine as an exclusive American property. The Constitution of the League, which President Wilson and other members of the Commission on the Society of Nations are now engaged in revising, is construed by them as giving no right of interference on the part of the League with the established policies of particular nations.

But the main thing that stands out in the midst of the suggested obstacles is that progress is being made toward the consummation of the league's principles. The constitution of the league, upon which the special commission under the Chairmanship of President Wilson began to work in earnest today, is an amalgamation of four plans that the commission considered informally under the mode of operation described in my dispatch on Sunday—that is, through conferences between small groups of the commission and through commission members.

The constitution is a welding of the provisions contained in all or any of the four plans upon which the commission members seemed to be in agreement. An effort was then made to reduce to writing the sense of the commission as a whole, with the result that a tentative constitution was produced. It is this document that President Wilson and his fellow-commissioners representing the great powers and smaller nations are considering with a view to its revision into such a form that it will meet the approval of all the Governments represented in the Peace Conference.

Commission Method a Time-Saver.

Meanwhile other commissions are at work endeavoring to harmonize conflicting views on a variety of subjects, most of which will be embodied in the peace treaty. This commission method is proving effective as a time saver, and time is the desideratum among the peacemakers. And here is where President Wilson and those who share his views have a considerable advantage. The desire to expedite the making of peace is strong among practically all those concerned—certainly among the representatives of the great powers—and a hopeful feeling is growing daily that the early Spring will see the general treaty fully negotiated.

Only ten days or so remain before the President will leave these shores for home, and an optimistic feeling pervades the American official contingent that he will be able to take with him an assurance to the American Congress and people that he has succeeded in obtaining the assent of all the allied nationalities as represented by their plenipotentiaries in Paris to a practical working plan for reducing, if not entirely preventing, the danger of such a bloody international struggle as that which recently ended.

This optimism was not in sight in the early days of the President's sojourn in Europe. The whole atmosphere seemed charged. There was a disposition to tire out the President and let him return without having accomplished anything tangible. Subsequent events, however, showed that, once the peace plenipotentiaries got to work, they entered into the spirit of the great task before them with a will encouraging to all those who contended that an early peace was desirable. It is true that after all the plenipotentiaries were assembled here matters seemed to proceed with provoking slowness. Then came a spurt, the influence of which is still apparent.

The secret behind the present activity is the realization that the sooner the world gets back to normal the better it will be for all concerned. I have said this in a previous dispatch, but it will bear repetition in view of the emphasis given to it as the time approaches for the President's departure. That the world is uneasy over the postponement of the rearrangements that must correct as far as possible the disorganization caused by the war is obvious to all observers over here. Statesmen must take account of this and be guided accordingly. Therefore statesmen find it incumbent on themselves to hasten the coming of normal times.

It is this very unrest among the peoples of the world that has given President Wilson an advantage in completing his League of Nations program. If his visit to Europe had no other merit, it has been valuable to all immediately concerned in making peace in showing that the people of most of Europe are anxious above everything else to see a peace provided that will be permanent. Their attitude toward the President has indicated—certainly it has been so construed—that they look upon him as the man who will lead the world out of the wilderness of militarism and bloodshed.

What has come to light to give interpretation to the sentiments of the European peoples since President Wilson has been here is being construed as showing that these peoples believe that a League of Peace based on a practical working formula is the thing that will make future wars impossible. So, under the influence of this construction of the peoples' attitude, practically everybody officially concerned in the making of peace is seeking to bring the present negotiations to an end as soon as possible. All of them may not care to have the league's constitution what President Wilson and its enthusiastic advocates believe it should be, but this is not saying that they are not earnest in their desire to have the league plan drafted and approved at the earliest possible moment.

More and more American observers here—official and unofficial—have been impressed with the likeness of the Peace Conference to a national political convention in the United States. The similarity between them is striking in certain important particulars.

Let me preface the statement of this analogy by saying that at the time the President arrived in France the atmosphere was charged with disconcerting reports concerning the relations between various allied powers and the United States. If one believed all he was told, there appeared not the slightest prospect of a satisfactory peace agreement between the allied plenipotentiaries. This or that incident was cited to show that our European partners in the war were stacking the cards so as to give us a "raw deal." But after the leading statesmen of the world had come together—had had an opportunity to get acquainted—it was found that they had the common sense to see that it was their business to make a peace worth while, and all the little troubles that had been magnified in the minds of those who had been preaching the doctrine of pessimism were regarded as unworthy of consideration or could easily be straightened out.

Fruitful Soil for Pessimism.

There is no doubt that this pessimistic gossip had fruitful soil in which to grow, on account of the conditions that are part and parcel of the game played by many of those conversant with the cant terms of diplomacy. The claim of a small nation, in seeming to come into conflict with the objects aimed at by one or more great powers, assumes an importance in the debate that becomes magnified the more it is discussed. Take half a dozen of these questions, and soon there is built up what appears to be a solid wall that forms an obstacle to complete agreement. It is a part of the game to those who have been playing it in the same way for years to become excited and perhaps honestly to convince themselves that everything is going to smash and ruin. But when the big men of the world get together they proceed on the principle that diplomacy is international legislation and—as Uncle Joe Cannon has frequently observed out of the wealth of his experience—legislation is compromise.

To carry out the analogy, all those who follow the course of political events in America know that prior to the meeting of a national political convention the spirit of controversy between the leaders of the same party is predominant. What the untrained observer reads or hears as to the situation leads him to believe that one party leader will bolt the convention rather than submit to the proposals of some other party leader. Perhaps there are half a dozen groups at swords' points. Agreement seems impossible, and it looks as if the party were going to smash and ruin. But when the convention gets going these rival groups come together and arrange for harmonious action. Their leaders know they cannot go home until they have nominated a candidate for President and adopted a platform of party principles. Furthermore, both candidate and platform must seem to be satisfactory to the people of the country—otherwise the party leaders would destroy their own status in public affairs. So it is with the statesmen of the world who are engaged in providing for peace. They know they must do the work for which they are assembled here and must do it in a way that will satisfy the people they represent.

Never before was there such an appreciation among statesmen that the peoples' aspirations and sentiments must be considered in every way. It may be disputed, but to many the present situation means that the statesmen negotiating peace dare not go before their people with a peace treaty that is obviously without the merit of providing a peace intended to be permanent.

That is one reason for the existing confidence that something practical will come from the present consideration of the constitution of the League of Nations. And it is also the reason for the opinion that the League program will be determined soon.

NEW MAP OF EUROPE IS NOW TAKING FORM

Likely to Show Five Great States in Central Area Friendly to the Allies.

ITALY NOW CONCILIATORY

General Willingness Indicated to Renounce Secret Treaty Rights in Interests of World Harmony.

By ERNEST MARSHALL.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 4.—It is now possible to indicate in rough outline, at least, what is likely to be the map of the new Europe which will be born of the Peace Conference.

The composition of New Germany, and whether or not there will be a drawing together of some elements of Old Germany with the German elements of Old Austria is not for the moment more than one of the speculative problems before the Paris Conference, although bearings on such a grouping are naturally receiving serious consideration in view of the possible resurgence of the Teutonic ambitions of weltpolitik.

The new map of Central Europe, which it is within the scope of the Conference's powers to draw, shows five great States friendly to the Allies: First, Poland, on the north, with access to the sea; second, Czechoslovakia, embodying the Slovak districts of the Hungarian borderland, with Bohemia in the centre; third, a Greater Rumania; fourth, an enlarged South Slav Kingdom, with the Serbian Prince Regent at its head; and, fifth, a Greater Greece.

Austria and Hungary will not only be much reduced in size, but will have no seaboards of their own. But for them, as for Poland and Bohemia, access to the sea must be secured if there is to be a good peace.

Venizelos today concluded his presentation of the Greek claims before the Council of Ten, and there is a general idea that this veteran European statesman made out an extremely good case. The Italian delegates today issued a statement, indicating their sympathetic attitude. This is taken to mean that the understanding between Italy and Greece is within reach, even if a report, current last week, that one had already been made, was a trifle premature. Greek interests in Constantinople and its district will be safeguarded by internationalization of that territory, and its railways and waterways.

The Saar coal field, demanded by France, is unequal to French needs, as it produces only a small supply. Hence the French are demanding that the Germans supply coal cheaply in payment as reparation. Danger in excessive demands upon Germany is seen by Americans interested in the larger future of the world.

One of the most encouraging deductions drawn from these rearrangements which, of course, until ratified by the plenary conference, are tentative and provisional, is that there is a common belief that the difficulties which would have been created by strict adherence to the letter of the so-called secret treaties on the part of any of the signatories, are sufficiently relieved to make the principle of self-determination compatible with the principle of security of frontiers.

That it should be possible to take this hopeful view at this relatively early stage of the Paris Conference is regarded as striking proof that good progress is being made toward a settlement and that the European territorial questions are going to be more easily dealt with than had been supposed possible.

The treaty of Aug. 17, 1916, between Rumania and the Quadruple Entente is an instance in point. Clause 6 of this treaty provided that Rumania should be on a level of equality with the four great powers in the peace negotiations. There is no vestige of a literal interpretation of this clause being given. On the contrary, the Rumanian delegates have been called before the bar of the Council of Ten to present their claims in just the same way as other smaller powers which had no secret treaty authorizing any such claim to equality of bargaining.

While the question of the Italian claims under her treaties with the allied powers is much more important in both scope and quality, it is deduced that neither Orlando nor Sonnino will adopt an intransigeant attitude in view of the changed condition which came into operation between the period at which the treaties were entered into and the date of the signature of the armistice. In fact, as already intimated in these dispatches, the spirit in which the Italian delegates have approached their European colleagues has won unstinted praise.

SECOND DIVISION'S LOSSES

Its Total Casualties 20,415, Including 3,180 Killed and 2,419 Missing.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COBLENZ, Feb. 5.—With the coming of the news that the two National Guard divisions, the 32d and the 42d, will soon be taken out of the Army of Occupation and started homeward, New Yorkers of the 165th Regiment, the old 69th, New York, which is part of the Rainbow Division, stand ready to bid the Rhine farewell without a tear whenever the word comes.

But it will be a changed 69th that New York will see when this famous infantry unit parades up Fifth Avenue. What I mean is that of the 3,600 men who composed the 69th that sailed from Manhattan, perhaps 1,100 —not more—remain. There were 600 originals left when this regiment reached the Rhine, but 500 have since come back from hospitals. Other men making up the present 2,700 strength of the regiment are replacements of drafted men, few of whom came from New York.

New York knows well the history of the 42d Division, and so it needs no explanation of where those missing men from the old 69th are. On the American battlefields, from the Ourcq to Sedan, sleep those men of the 165th.

The 69th does not know what is going to happen to it when it gets home. The members hear that they will be National Guardsmen, and so they are uncertain about their future. But Father Duffy, their beloved chaplain, says that one thing is certain, and that is that they intend to keep their armory. I understand that Governor Smith has been asked to do what he can to see that they do.

Volunteers May Guard Rhine.

Keen interest has been aroused among the men by a report that the divisions to be kept on the Rhine will be composed of volunteers. It has also been announced that these divisions will be composed of men inured to war. So there is on this part of the Rhine, where are most of the American troops inured to war, considerable speculation as to where so many volunteers are coming from.

One finds everywhere expressions of opinion that the American soldiers on the Rhine are not anxious to volunteer to remain on duty here. They regard their work as finished, they think of the war as won, and they want to go home.

It is accepted without discussion that any effort to recruit ten divisions of volunteers from among the thirty American combat divisions would meet with difficulties.

I asked an officer of one of the famous regiments yesterday how many of his men would volunteer to remain on the Rhine if they get the alternative to go home? He replied, "Not more than ten or eleven of the 3,000."

Second Division Leads in Losses.

The Third Army intelligence summary yesterday contained a statement that the First Division had more men killed than any other American Division. This statement is credited to General March. Certified records of the 2d Division show that 3,180 men were killed in action and died of wounds, and 2,419 are listed as missing, making a total of 5,599.

The 1st Division figures are quoted 2,303 killed in action, 1,050 died of wounds and 789 missing, total 4.142.

The 2d Division throughout the army generally is credited with having had the heaviest casualties. It had 3,979 severely wounded, and 10,837 slightly wounded, making its grand total of casualties, 20,415.

FIND WORK FOR GERMANS.

Economic Situation Improved in the Area Held by Americans.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COBLENZ, Feb. 5.—The economic situation throughout the zone of occupation of the Third American Army continues to show improvement. Jobs are being found for the unemployed as rapidly as possible, and factories are being put back into operation.

The coal situation is the most serious problem of the American civil administration. This is acute in some places, due to the shortage of production and inefficiency in transportation. Fuel troubles far transcend the food questions, which do not loom large, in the view of the American officials.

Within a few days films from the allied countries will replace German films in the theatres in the territory of the American Army of Occupation. Since the Americans have been in Germany they have been heavy patrons of the movies, and have, of course, seen German films.

Under interallied direction the officers have arranged to have films from England, France, and America shown in the movie theatres along the Rhine. These will be of a wide variety, including scenes of the devastated regions of France and Belgium. The German population, of course, will see these same films.

The Credit Lyonnaise, the French financial institution, is opening branches throughout the Grand Duchy of Luxemburg, supplying good fiscal service. Luxemburg banks have notified German financial institutions of their intention of severing connections, thus giving further evidence of the economic affiliation between the Grand Duchy and the allied nations, replacing their trade connections with Germany which existed before the war.

SOCIALIST CONFERENCE TO MAKE WAR INQUIRY

Names a Committee to Report on Responsibility for Causing the Conflict.

BERNE, Feb. 5.—Frank Bohn, an American, has arrived here to attend the International Socialist and Labor Conference, which now comprises ninety delegates, representing twenty-five countries.

At today's session J. H. Thomas, a British delegate, complained that too much time was being wasted in fruitless debates and it was decided that all speeches should be limited to six minutes. Thomas addressed the conference on a plan for a society of nations and on the principles of President Wilson.

Pieter J. Troelstra, the Dutch Socialist leader, and one of the British delegates, declared that the "prime object of the conference was to influence the Peace Conference at Paris."

The German Majority Socialists, in opposition to a resolution introduced by Albert Thomas calling for investigation of responsibility for the war, introduced a resolution yesterday to the effect that the war had been the consequence of imperialistic policy during the last decade, but it was the duty of the Socialists to establish the immediate causes.

The resolution said that the causes of the war were the Austrian ultimatum to Serbia, the general mobilization in Russia, and Germany's declaration of war as a result of Russia's mobilization. The German Socialists demanded a full investigation of the facts to establish collective and personal responsibilities, but would wait for their comrades in other countries to demand a similar investigation in their countries.

"The German Socialists," the resolution added, "declare that the entry of German troops into Belgium was a violation of the rights of peoples which nothing that has occurred since has justified."

It was decided that discussions between delegates as to responsibility for the war would not be permitted. It was pointed out that this subject would lead to nothing but endless addresses by French and German representatives.

A Committee on Responsibility for the War was named and it met from 9 o'clock last night until 5 o'clock this morning without agreeing to the resolution to be presented to the Conference. Hjalmar Branting of Sweden presided over the commitee, the other members being Renaudel and Longuet for France; Henderson and Bunting for England; Eisner for Bavaria, Weis and Ellenbogen for Germany, Seitz and Nemes. The committee is to meet again today.

WANTS DRAFT BOARDS TO TAKE THE CENSUS

Could Be Done in Days, Says Crowder — Had Planned Work-or-Fight Extensions.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—While the second annual report on the selective service system, prepared by Major Gen. Enoch H. Crowder, Provost Marshal General, and made public today, contained only one specific recommendation —that the draft machinery be used to take the decennial census—the 600-page document gave inkling of drastic extensions of the work-or-fight regulations which had been planned just before hostilities ended.

The report showed that specific plans were before Secretary Baker last November under which a minimum working week for the essential industries would have been fixed in order that "industrial slackers" might be reached, and that plans were shaping for the mandatory deferment of registrants in essential industry, denying them absolutely the right of military service. A scheme for supervising labor distribution through an industrial furlough system also was being evolved.

In suggesting that the census might be taken through the selective service machinery, General Crowder said that, since 13,000,000 were registered in a single day and 24,000,000 in four days, the census data should be obtainable in days instead of months, as is now the case.

On Nov. 11, 1918, when the armistice with Germany was signed, the report showed the United States had in its military and naval service 4,791,172 men, or 19 per cent. of the male population. On the same day England had already called to the colors 5,854,359, or nearly 60 per cent.

The final official total for all registrations was 24,234,021; of these 3,208,446 had been actually examined. Practically thirty men out of every 100 were found to be physically disqualified. Oklahoma and Arkansas returned the highest ratio of men under the physical requirements; Rhode Island and Arizona the lowest.

Under the head of "aliens," 3,877,083 men were registered, or 16.22 per cent. of the total. These were divided into cobelligerents, 57.49 per cent.; neutrals, 16.42 per cent., and enemy and allied enemy, 26.09 per cent.

COST OF WAR TO ITALY NEAR $10,000,000,000

Ex-Premier Luzzatti Says Nation's Debt Soon Will Be $16,000,000,000—Asks Allied Aid.

ROME, Feb. 5, (Associated Press.)—Italy's national debt is now more than $12,500,000,000, whereas when she entered the war it was about $2,750,000,000, declared Luigi Luzzatti, former Premier and a leading financial authority, in a statement today, urging financial aid to Italy. He said that when pensions, Government bills to manufacturers and other necessary expenses had been paid the national debt probably would total $16,000,000,000.

"Italy, I am sad to say, leads the whole world in the relative height of its war debt," he said. "Subtracting Italy's losses in men and money, her national wealth is only about $20,000,000,000. If all the war loans of the Entente should be thrown together in one consolidated sum, Italy and France, whose efforts and losses in men and substance have been the greatest, will be compensated by bearing a smaller proportion of the war debt.

"The United States and Great Britain are not only strong but generous, and they will acknowledge that Italy and France, the two principal centres of Teutonic slaughter and devastation, should be supported financially, therefore, with correspondingly greater help.

"Essential economic and financial questions, the importance of which are growing daily, are unification of war loans and federation of exchanges both in relation to the future and the unity of monetary circulation. Another essential question which needs competent technical solution is that of customs, since the stronger States belonging to a League of Nations could hinder international traffic, or, worse still, start a customs war which always leads to political and military wars."

ITALY SEEKS OFFSET TO IMMIGRANT CURB

Proposal Reported at Paris to Give Her Colonial Compensation if Bill Is Passed.

MIGHT SHARE IN ASIA MINOR

Fear of Loss of Capital Flowing Back from Italians Who Come to America.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 5.—A dispatch to the Daily Telegraph from Milan says that a sensation has been caused in Italy by the proposal in the American Congress to exclude immigration to the United States for four years a measure which threatens particularly to affect Italians.

There were in 1913 more than 376,000 Italian immigrants to the United States, and as each immigrant from Italy is supposed to represent eventually a considerable reflux of capital to the mother country, the loss from this alone to Italy it is held, may amount to 300,000,000 lire per annum.

The question is not only being excitedly discussed in Rome, but is also being mentioned at the Peace Conference in Paris, where reports from Italian correspondents say that Baron Sonnino has given his attention to the matter. The result is that compensation is suggested to Italy by conceding her a large share in the partition or control over Asia Minor, during the discussion of the colonial problem.

Italy has stood somewhat apart, not having occupied any colonies during the war, to which she could claim the right of actual possession. Some compensation, it was agreed, was due to her; and when the various claims regarding control of the former Turkish Empire were discussed, it was proposed to assign not only a zone in Adalia to Italy, but a large part of the adjoining region.

This not being enough, England having been acknowledged as having a claim to Mesopotamia and Palestine, France to Syria, and the Arabs to the new Kingdom formed by them, there remained, apart from Armenia and the Greek regions on the coast, the old district which formed the nucleus of the Turkish Empire so-called. It was proposed to assign this region, consisting of the Vilayets of Brussa, Kaistamuni, Angora, Gonia, and Adana. This forms an extensive tract, it is true; but it happens to be the only country really inhabited by Turks, and it looked like the gift of a Trojan horse to Italy.

At Heraclea, there are deposits of anthracite which might be worked with advantage to Italy, but they would soon be exhausted.

How far this project has matured at the Peace Conference has not yet been ascertained by Italian correspondents in Paris, but they wire lengthy details regarding the scheme, and display little enthusiasm for the project. As a field of compensation for immigration it appears impractical, Italian laborers having no particular tendency to migrate to a country mainly inhabited by Turks.

WILSON REFUSED TO HALT INQUIRY

Letter He Wrote Swifts Concerning Packers' Investigation Produced at Hearing.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5. — Before the Senate Agriculture Committee today letters were read disclosing that President Wilson last February declined, after a personal inquiry, to interfere with the Federal Trade Commission's investigation of the packing industry.

The President had been appealed to by officials of the big packing companies, who asserted that the commission was not conducting a fair inquiry, and this letter, in reply to one from Louis F. Swift, written by Secretary Tumulty, under date of Feb. 27, 1918, was read into the evidence:

The President has asked me to acknowledge for him the receipt of your letter of Feb. 19, and to say that immediately upon its receipt he looked into the matter about which you wrote him in careful inquiry of the Federal Trade Commission as to just what the character and process of the present investigation are. The inquiry has convinced him that there would be no warrant for his interfering with the judgment and action of the commission.

He is very sorry if any inconvenience has been caused Swift & Co., but has asked me to say that it is probable that the significance of many of the matters apparently irrelevant which the commission has drawn out in evidence, will, it is hoped, clearly appear in the final report of the commission.

In testimony before the House Agriculture Committee, E. C. Lasater of the National Livestock Association asserted that the packers controlled the policies of the Food Administration. He stated that when Herbert C. Hoover was appointed Food Administrator he told the witness that he would not invite a single packer to "sit at his council table, because they had a reputation that stunk to heaven."

"But such influence was brought to bear on him," said the witness, "that he chose to disregard their odor. Within three weeks he had arranged to have the packers take sole charge of the meat end of the industry."

Henry Veeder, counsel for Swift, was a witness before the Senate Committee. He read letters and telegrams relating to the unsuccessful efforts of the packing companies to bring about a change in the Federal Trade Commission's method of conducting its inquiry. He said he failed to obtain a personal interview with the President, and thereupon Louis F. Swift, President of Swift & Co., wrote the President, protesting that the commission's investigation was unfair.

Senator Norris of Nebraska questioned the accuracy of a letter from Mr. Swift to the President, in which it was stated Swift & Co.'s dividends for 1917 were 10 per cent.

"Don't you think if Mr. Swift wanted to be real fair," asked the Senator, "he should have said that Swift & Co. by their own figures made a profit of 33 1-3 per cent.?"

Mr. Veeder said he didn't think the President got the wrong impression.

REPORT ON PACKWOOD CASE

Analysis Reveals Chloroform in Woman's Stomach and Brain.

County Physician Ogden of Hackensack, N. J., reported yesterday that according to the analysis of the organs of Azeele Packwood, the girl found dead on the Palisades, made by Dr. Alexander O. Gettler of Bellevue Hospital, New York, 160 milligrams of chloroform were found in the brain of the young woman and 202 milligrams of the same poison in the stomach.

Dr. Ogden explained that the total amount of chloroform disclosed by the analysis was not enough to cause death, but said that it did not follow that all the poison originally taken into the system would remain. Prosecutor Huckin declared, after receiving the report, that he was satisfied that the woman commited suicide.

BRITAIN MOVES TO CHECK STRIKES

great numbers of engineers and boilermakers resuming work. In Belfast the men are still out, but some kind of a settlement is said to be in the air.

Some of the strike leaders have come to London from Glasgow, and hopes of extending the mischief appear to be centred now in the metropolis. Their presence here and their movements are well known.

Believe General Strike Averted.

LONDON, Feb. 5, (Associated Press.) —The best informed opinion tonight is that the menace of a general strike in London has been removed. Many conferences were held today, and the Board of Trade and the Cabinet had another meeting.

The Government's quick action in taking advantage of the King's presence in London today to call a meeting of the Council to enforce, under the Defense of the Realm act, the same legal means to secure to the communities an electric supply as already exists to protect in a similar manner the gas and water supplies against strike measures, has the full support of the general public. Although the electric trade union at tonight's meeting to consider the changed situation reached no decision, but adjourned until tomorrow, it is believed that there will be no electric power strike.

It is understood that Premier Lloyd George, now in Paris, is being kept informed of all the happenings in the labor world here and is in constant touch by wire with the Cabinet.

The hotels and restaurants, while able to replace a few of their striking servants, still were offering only meagre imitations of their regular menus.

Plans for the formation of a civic guard to maintain and protect public service have been submitted to the authorities, according to The Mail, which says that a similar plan has been successfully employed in Switzerland, Holland, and Australia. The newspaper states that, should the action of the strikers warrant such a course, the citizens may be asked to form a guard to maintain transport, lighting, and food supply services and also to guard power stations, flour mills and important factories.

More than four thousand mechanics of the Royal Army Service Corps have refused to go on duty in depots adjoining London. They say that their contract with the Government as soldiers is at an end and demand that they be demobilized and engaged as civilians to continue the work or that they receive the same pay which civilians would earn.

Bonar Law Rebuffs Labor Chief.

In replying to a letter from J. Bromley, Secretary of the Association of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen, asking permission to put the case of the men in the tube strike before the Cabinet and threatening, if refused, to extend the strike over the country, Andrew Bonar Law, Government leader in the House of Commons, wrote:

"I have before me the agreement of Jan. 30 which was signed, among others, by yourself, and in which it is laid down in explicit terms that conditions as to an eight-hour day as agreed to by the Cabinet had been accepted. In these circumstances there seems to be no room for any misunderstanding, much less a charge of breach of faith. I am sure no useful purpose would be served by my seeing you in regard to it.

"If you have anything new to bring forward, I suggest that you communicate with the President of the Board of Trade, who is acting in this matter for the Government."

Mr. Bonar Law pointed out that the sudden and irregular manner in which the strike began had caused the greatest inconvenience and distress to the whole community.

A statement was issued tonight by the Ministry of Labor in reference to demands made by unofficial conferences of London members of the engineering and electrical trade unions. These demands included governmental intervention in the various labor disputes and the introduction of legislation in Parliament establishing forty hours as the legal working week.

The statement points out that no communication in support of these demands has been received from the executive officers of any of the unions involved. On the contrary, the statement says, it is "understood that the executives are opposed to the action suggested." It is recalled that agreements were recently concluded by the union executives with the employers for the introduction of a forty-seven-hour week. The statement says:

"The Ministry concurs in the view of the Government, that present circumstances, due, as they are, almost wholly to unofficial strikes, do not justify Government intervention."

Lord Henry Cavendish-Bentinck proposes to introduce in the House of Commons a bill enacting a universal working week of forty-four hours.

CLYDE BUILDERS TO SHIFT.

Will Transfer Part of Their Work to British Columbia Coast.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 5. — The Daily Chronicle Glasgow correspondent says that one way in which the industrial unrest threatens seriously to react on the workers themselves is illustrated by the announcement of Yarrow & Co., well known shipbuilders and engineers, that they intend gradually to diminish their output on the Clyde and develop their works on the Pacific Coast of North America.

"This report was confirmed by a director of the company whom I interviewed today," says the correspondent. "Harold E. Yarrow, who is Managing Director of the works on the Clyde, is at present visiting America, his mission being related to the decision of the company to increase its activities on the coast of British Columbia. When asked the reasons which influenced the company in its decision, the Director whom I saw replied:

"'It is because the industrial prospects are better in America than they are here, not on the Clyde alone, but all over the country. We believe that better economic results can be obtained in America. American workmen in any given time handle twice as much material as a corresponding number of men on this side.

"'We also find that transport facilities are satisfactory, and that the costs are quite low. For instance, we can get even over here on the Clyde steel plates and angles made in America at a price which compares favorably with that of plates and angles made in Motherwell.'

"'Have the labor troubles on the Clyde had any influence with the firm in its decision?' I inquired.

"'Most certainly,' was the reply. 'I think they are influencing everybody. I mean, of course, the spirit of the workers generally throughout the country. The Clyde is no worse than other places.

"'In America everybody wants to do as much work as he can, and is allowed to do it. The feeling in this country is, do as little as you can and prevent everybody else from doing more than that.

"'Even the man who wants to work his best is not allowed to do it. He is prevented by his fellows. It is a hopeless kind of doctrine, the doctrine of the restriction of output. But unfortunately it is regarded by the workmen of this country as if it were an article of religion. They believe honestly in it.'"

AUSTRIA WAVERED AT START OF WAR

Was Forced by Germany to Continue Attack Begun on Serbia, Salandra Reveals.

TELLS OF ITALY'S DECISION

Ex-Premier Says Rome Knew Nothing of Note to Serbia Till It Was Published.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 5.—The Matin prints a dramatic revelation by former Premier Salandra of events in Italy during the last days of July, 1914, and in May the following year, on the eve of Italy's entry into the war. Salandra says:

"We, Austria's ally, only became acquainted with the note (to Serbia) at the time the agencies published it. Flotow, (the Austrian Ambassador,) himself declared he did not know of it, and I believe him."

Salandra reiterates that Italy refused to entertain, for a moment, the idea of joining the Austro-Germans, adding:

"On the 31st of July I said to Barrère, the French Ambassador, 'you have nothing to fear from us.' He left me, deeply moved, to communicate the news to Paris."

For Salandra, Germany's responsibility is beyond question. He says:

"There was a moment when Austria hesitated. It was after hostilities opened against Serbia, when the Austrians learned that Russia was mobilizing. But Germany then intervened and obliged her ally to continue the war."

Regarding Italy's entry the ex-Premier relates how, by the treaty of April 26, Italy had agreed to join the Entente within a month. The meeting of Parliament was convoked for May 10, but was postponed to the 20th at the request of the General Staff, who required more time for preparations. On the 10th, however the Cabinet decided that Parliamentary opinion, greatly influenced by Giolitti, was too divided on the subject, especially in view of Austria's offer to cede the Trentino and all territory west of the Isonzo save Gorizia, and to give Trieste a special form of self-government, though it should remain a part of the Austrian Empire. The Cabinet accordingly resigned and the world knows that Giolitti pressed for a rupture of the engagement with the Entente.

The King offered the Premiership to Marcora, Carcano, and Boselli. All three advised him to refuse Salandra's resignation, Marcora expressing regret that Italy had not entered the war on the Entente side months before. The King then refused Salandra's resignation and the die was cast.

The ex-Premier adds:

"I may say that during this critical period the Italian Government, wholly covered by royal authority, gave orders that the war preparations should not be interrupted for a moment. The Germans in Italy were delighted at the news of my resignation and one of Erzberger's agents sent this message to Berlin: 'Schöner blauer Himmel,' signifying his entire confidence, which, however, was hardly shared by Erzberger himself, who left his own apartment for the greater security of the German Embassy."

SENT 8,000 AIR OFFICERS.

Canada's Contribution to the British Commissioned Personnel.

LONDON, Feb. 4.—Canada sent 8,000 aviation officers overseas to join the Royal Air Service during the war, according to a statement made at Hendon today by Sir Edward W. Kemp, Canadian Minister of Overseas Service. Of these, he said, 4,280 were directly recruited in Canada, and the most of the rest were transferred from the Canadian service to the Royal Air Service after their arrival in Europe.

Sir Edward's statement was made in the course of an address in which he accepted, in the name of Canada, fifteen airplanes which had been presented to the Dominion by Canadian and British residents of London, through the Overseas Club. The machines were formally presented by Lord Londonderry, representing the Air Ministry.

SENATORS ASSAIL BRITISH EMBARGO

will employ its powers as England is now employing them for commercial advantage against the rest of the world.

"And then will follow war, bloody reprisal, and of this thing, in this bed of peace, there will be whelped litters of war dogs. The way to keep men at peace is not to interfere with their rights; to let the ranchman have his ranch and have his sheep; to let that man have his home, to let that man have his business and not to interfere. When you seek to interfere you have fights. The way to have races live in peace is to let races alone and nations alone, and let them run their own business. Let them set up their own government; let them manage their own affairs; let them keep within their own rights and keep without your own, and then you will have some hope of peace. Then, if any nation wants to set up an embargo, well and good; you can meet it by a similar device, and you need not get angry."

Attacks Carnegie Foundation.

Senator Reed turned to an attack on the Carnegie Peace Foundation, saying that it had "posed as an American organization and then had conspired with a lot of Germans, Hungarians, Swedes, and Englishmen to work out a policy that would affect the policy of our Government."

Senator Knox of Pennsylvania interrupted to say that, after three political parties had been pledged to free tolls for American ships passing through the Panama Canal, and the candidates for President for each party had gone before the voters accepting the pledge, and the pledge had been enacted into law, the Carnegie Peace Foundation had spent approximately $30,000 in circulating literature to procure the repeal of the law.

Senator Reed suggested that Canadian shipping interests were behind the move to repeal the law. Mr. Knox said that was the fact.

Senator Ashurst of Arizona said he had always been ashamed that a Democratic Congress had voted for its repeal.

"That is the one thing that is a foul blot on the Democratic Party," said the Arizona Senator. "It was a shameful, disgraceful betrayal of the people."

Senator Hoke Smith of Georgia said he approved the Weeks resolution, and hoped it would be adopted.

IMPORTERS IN LONDON COMBAT EMBARGO

Seek Agreements with Manufacturers to Permit Entry of American Goods.

LONDON, Feb. 5.—The American Chamber of Commerce in London is arranging a series of conferences between importers of American goods and British manufacturers of similar articles in the hope of reaching agreements that will influence the import restrictions the British Government is to reimpose on March 1.

Importers of American goods are represented as having suffered more than other business men during the war and as having been considerably gratified when, soon after the armistice, the British Government removed restrictions on a long list of articles. These importers, it is said, also foresee great business difficulties over the decision of the Government to renew the restrictions.

In view of the unavoidable delays of dealing with trade subject to any Government department, the manufacturers and importers, on the proposal of the American Chamber of Commerce, have decided to work out their own problems and submit the result to the British Government.

In the case of rubber goods, the conference representative of the British Government is reported to have said that the Government would act according to the agreement reached. Therefore, should the conferees agree that some American rubber goods are needed at this time it is entirely likely that the restrictions will be modified.

Conferences on the boot and shoe restrictions will be taken up tomorrow. The British Government will be represented in person by a member of the Board of Trade, but only in an advisory capacity. The conference will be composed of three British manufacturers, three importers, chiefly of American goods, and three representatives of a delegation of American shoe manufacturers who arrived in England yesterday.

It is proposed to have conferences of representatives of each trade affected. Thus far, eleven such conferences have been arranged.

LEAGUE WON'T AFFECT EXISTING ALLIANCES

So Balfour Assures Correspondents—Calls the Russian Situation "Most Disquieting."

PARIS, Feb. 5.—Existing alliances between the various nations will not be affected by the creation of the League of Nations, according to a statement made by Arthur J. Balfour to newspaper interviewers here last night. The British Foreign Secretary was asked the direct question whether the formation of the world society would involve the abrogation of alliances.

"The constitution of the League of Nations," he answered, "will involve no modification of the treaties of alliance previously concluded. As to the question whether special coalition of two or several peoples could be formed aside from the league, the conference alone can decide."

As the interview was closing one of the correspondents asked regarding the Russian question:

"It is a most disquieting situation," replied Mr. Balfour. "We are doing all that can be done. As to military intervention on a large scale, it is not to be thought of."

Speaking of the general work of the Peace Conference, Mr. Balfour said that the peace-making body was making all possible haste to settle upon the peace terms. He was led to this statement by a question from one of the interviewers, who said:

"There is much talk in the Peace Conference about various problems, such as the Society of Nations. Do you not think your real task is, before everything else, to impose peace conditions upon Germany?"

After a moment's reflection Secretary Balfour replied:

"One can evidently criticise without limit the methods of work we have adopted; but rather than answer criticisms I would tell you that the fact that the problem of the Society of Nations has been taken up before that of peace, properly so called, in no way signifies that the settlement of our accounts with the enemy will only come afterward. The mechanism of the commissions we have instituted permits the concurrent study of several questions.

"Let public opinion be reassured. The delegates to the Peace Conference have no intention of employing dilatory methods. They are using all their energy and skill to attain as soon as possible the just peace to which the whole world aspires. That is their one aim, their sole ambition."

Ford Libel Hearing Ended.

DETROIT, Mich., Feb. 5.—Hearing on a motion by The Chicago Daily Tribune for a change of venue in the million dollar libel suit brought against it by Henry Ford was concluded in Circuit Court here this afternoon. Judge Henry A. Mandell announced that he would give his decision tomorrow.

More and better business for a
CANDY MANUFACTURER

All signs point to the fact that candy manufacturers in America have a most unusual opportunity at this particular time. Conditions are ripe for a skilful, powerful merchandising and advertising plan.

We have such a plan — a plan with an interrupting idea and a very solid foundation. We will be glad to confer with any candy manufacturer who wants more and better business.

To Business in General

Constructive contributions to sales increase, and the application of sound merchandising sense to business — on these two interpretations of the responsibilities of advertising rests our record as advertising counsellors.

Without obligation, one of the principals of our organization will be glad to go into conference with any firm whose business expansion necessitates the breaking down of sales resistance, or the further development of an already proved method of distribution.

A conference will bring out concrete facts

TAFT SAYS PEACE DEPENDS ON LEAGUE

Warns Its Opponents of Danger to World at First Congress to Unite Nations.

NOTED SPEAKERS FAVOR IT

Dr. Butler, Frederic R. Coudert, and Others Insist That America Must Stand with the Allies.

Speakers of note, addressing the Atlantic Congress for a League of Nations in session at the Hotel Astor all day yesterday, discussed from every angle the desirability of a permanent concourse of States and of peoples to insure the world against future wars and to guarantee the orderly development of humanity. The congress, arranged some time ago, and to be followed by eight similar gatherings in other parts of the country, had for its immediate object the drawing forth of an authoritative expression of American public opinion, not only in favor of the league idea, but in definite determination that the machinery for the purpose evolved at the Paris conference be sufficiently potent to insure the power and success of the experiment.

Ex-President William Howard Taft, President of the League to Enforce Peace, who presided at all its sessions, discussed the principles, purposes, and benefits of the league as he conceived them, and answered categorically many of the objections to the plan which have been advanced by its opponents. Mr. Taft took particular issue with James M. Beck's recent utterances on the subject, asserting that while he had great respect for Mr. Beck's judgment, he possessed other sources of information and from these felt certain that the great body of the English people were heartily in support of the idea. Among others who discussed various phases of the topic were Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, President of Columbia University; Frederic R. Coudert, and George Grafton Wilson, Professor of International Law at Harvard University.

After the Rt. Rev. James A. Darlington, Bishop of Harrisburg, had pronounced the invocation, with a plea that the words of Theodore Roosevelt, "Our American patriot and saint, that this world will never be safe for any man until it is safe for every one," might be heeded, Mr. Taft opened the congress with a review of the organization of the American league in Independence Hall and a recapitulation of the platform, including an international court, a court of conciliation and agreement among the nations to unite their economic and, if need be, their military power to enforce their agreements, and a Congress of Nations to clarify and codify international law. He said the league had drawn up a tentative treaty which, at President Wilson's request, had not been published, and reviewed the organization of bodies with similar aims, such as the English league and the league of which Mr. Hapgood is President. Turning to a discussion of definite ways and means, Mr. Taft said:

League Indispensable.

"Now, what I would like to demonstrate this morning, and I think it is capable of demonstration, is that it is impossible, and that the nations are going to find it impossible, before they get through, to make a complete agreement upon this treaty now formulating in Paris. They will find it indispensable, in achieving the purposes of the war, to have a League of Nations such as we have outlined, in order to secure the purpose of the war. With respect to these nations engaged in dictating this treaty, we might as well face the fact that we have beaten Germany to an unconditional surrender and that those who won the war are to dictate the treaty."

The allied purpose in the war, Mr. Taft continued, was to cure the German people of forty years of false philosophy and to eradicate from the world the devilish fruits of that philosophy. The treaty, he said, must be a clinching of that cure, the making sure that the world should benefit by the fruits of its more than four years of awful toil. The speaker told of the formation of various nations whose cry for self-determination had been answered, warned that they were born of Russia and Germany and Austria, and that the offspring well might take on some of the faults of their parent States, and reminded his hearers that a firm parental hand surely would be needed on the part of the older nations if the younger members of the family were to be kept in order.

"The construction of a written instrument," said Mr. Taft "is ordinarily a natural and justiciable question in determining the rights of the parties, and that extends to treaties as well as to other written instruments. Now somebody will have to construe that treaty, and construe it authoritatively. And who is that somebody? It must be an impartial international court. You cannot get along without it. You have got to have such a body, because the number of questions to arise will be so many that you will have to create an international court. I do not care what you call it, that is what it will work into.

"And then these non-justiciable questions will arise, many of them, and you will have to have a council of conciliation. Of course you can say you will refer it to the league and to the controllers of the league. So be it. But it will have to be to delegated bodies—you can't have all of these gentlemen, all of these ponderous quantities at home sitting constantly at Versailles. They must leave a body there, however, to solve and to recommend compromises of the different questions. And there you have two of the policies of the League of Nations as the three national voluntary associations have defined it.

"And then you come to the third: that is the agreement to use economic force, and if need be to contribute to the army. Now I do not know how you find it, but I am a father—I hope I am a benevolent father; I hope I have the same springs of love for my offspring that others have. But I have found in the family that, not the use of the paternal hand, but the knowledge of its presence in the family stimulates moral impulse and moral conviction. And I think from what I have said, and I hope I have not exaggerated the situation, these children that we are creating in Europe are going to have some of the elements of our own dear offspring when they attempt to stand up and to do the things in the family of nations that is against the rule of the family.

"I do not think that we can get along without force. Of course it is proposed, I see, by the correspondents that we will have to. I do not know how much the correspondents are engaged in carrying on this commission, but if they are doing it as much as they say they are, or as we may infer from what they say, they must have great diversity of opinion in the commission, and a constant change from day to day in the opinions of the members themselves.

Says Force Is Needed.

"Now we are told that we are not to have the use of force, to cement the nations together on the one hand, and to induce compliance with the obligations of the league on the other. I hope that is not so. But if we get economic pressure only, then we will see how economic pressure works. It did not work very much against Germany, for she had it for four years. But the effect of it will be a constant force, and if we cannot get anything better than that, why, we will thank God we got our hat back.

"Oh, I know you have heard a great deal about the violation of the Constitution. Well, I yielded to no man in the worship of that fundamental instrument, and I worship it the more because there are a good many gentlemen whom I would not trust with that instrument over night. But you cannot find any line in that Constitution which forbids the President going to the place where his highest constitutional duty is, when occasion calls for it. And it has done him good. And it would do some gentlemen in Washington good, too.

"Senator Borah says, at least he is so reported in THE NEW YORK TIMES as saying so—I always use that expression because my experience has been somewhat unfortunate in being quoted wrongly—that we are beginning a series of Congresses that is tending toward Bolshevism; that the doctrine we are to preach is a blow at nationalism, and we are to be Bolsheviki. Well, do I look like a Bolshevik? I do not think you do. Theodore Roosevelt in the last editorial he wrote favored our plan. Was Theodore Roosevelt a Bolshevik? Well, you will excuse me while I laugh at that suggestion."

Mr. Taft asserted it was in no sense unconstitutional to agree that the nation would furnish force to suppress war if it were needed, though he agreed it would be unconstitutional to give an army to Marshal Foch to use when and how he might see fit in the future. He ridiculed the "supersovereignty" objection to the league, declaring that it would be no worse to limit the individual freedom of nations for the sake of international society than it would be to limit the freedom of individuals for the benefit of national society. It is the "German idea of sovereignty," said the speaker, which desires to use the sovereignty of the nation for selfish ends alone which voices that objection.

It was at the night session of the conference that Mr. Taft referred to Mr. Beck's objections to the league, saying:

"Now I want to disagree with Mr. Beck about the attitude of the English people. I have the highest respect for him, but I have other sources of information, and I think I know how the plain people over there feel. I tell you that when the people headed by such statesmen as Lord Grey, Mr. Asquith and Lord Bryce, and all the leading churchmen of England range themselves back of the plan there is no use saying Great Britain is against it. Just because a man has been in intimate touch with things over there doesn't necessarily make him the best witness as to how the people feel. And I want to remind you that when Mr. Lloyd George was campaigning, when he was the issue, he came out flatfootedly for the league, and I think we may well think that he had some idea as to what the people wanted."

Dr. Butler declared that the idea of international union was not so new as people seemed to think. This country, by its ideals and its example, had been contributing to that end for at least a generation, he said.

The reason the United States has not done more in the direction of internationalism, the speaker said, was not one of isolation, but rather one of preoccupation because of the nation's great task of internal development. That preoccupation now, he said, gives way naturally and inevitably, for the country is ready to play its part in contributing to the progress of all civilization.

"It is true of nations as of men," he added, "that they are their brothers' keepers, that they are responsible for the welfare of others, not by vicarious meddling, but by applying the test of service, which is capable of being met by nations just as it is by individuals. One great step that we must take—that we have already begun to take—is to prepare the way for international thinking. The world must come to think of an international breach of the peace just as it thinks of a municipal breach of the peace, and the time has come when an act of aggression on the part of a nation must be thought of not in terms of civil offense but in terms of the criminal offense which it is."

A Grave Mistake.

Dr. Butler paid tribute to the first and second Hague conferences, to Secretaries of State Hay and Root for the instructions they gave American delegates, to Andrew D. White and Joseph H. Choate for their fashion of American representation, and said they then sowed the seeds of a policy which now is about to flower for the good of humanity. He explained how the war had brought Great Britain, France and Italy as well as America already to the brink of the formation of a league and said it was a grave mistake to let the opinion get abroad that the statesmen or the people of any of these nations opposed the formation of a league.

"The Governments and the peoples of all these nations and our own," concluded Dr. Butler, "are ready to build on the ruins of this war a structure that will not again, humanly speaking, be shaken, much less overturned. What is proposed is not some absurd thing, it is not a society without nations, it is a society of nations: it is not the abolition of patriotism, it is the quintessence of patriotism it means the upbuilding and strengthening of national integrity and using it for a high and lofty and moral purpose."

Mr. Coudert began his discussion of the question with the declaration that jurists with their abstract and analytical minds were not qualified to interpret the current movements among minds of men. It is an absurdity, he insisted, to call the league idea an impossibility.

"The league," said Mr. Coudert, "evolved spontaneously when Prussianism burst loose upon the world, and had it not done so, human justice would have disappeared from the earth forever."

"There were voices," said the speaker, "as powerful and persuasive as James M. Beck's that took the lead in saying that the American Constitution was a dream of idealists and theorists which could not be realized. Had there been a reason why this could not have been realized it would have been because of those very ones who said 'it cannot be.' I wish to warn you tonight that without a League of Nations all those nationalistic aspirations now broken into flame in so many parts of the world may well lead all Europe, nay, all the world, into thirty years of warfare, lasting until those flames burned out at last to leave the world a ruin. Called into being because of a world necessity, the League must remain for the same reason perpetuated as the dictate of reason hand in hand with the dictate of justice.

Sovereign Freedom Gone.

Bainbridge Colby said in part:

"I sometimes wonder on what kind of reading the Senatorial mind is nourished. The denunciations which various Senators hurl from day to day at the mere suggestion of an organized world peace, seem to me to be characterized by a vast illiteracy, a complete lack of touch with the sober and responsible thought of our own people and of our heroic allies.

"A distinguished Frenchman, who was asked what he thought of Senator Lodge's recent speech in the Senate, in which he treated the proposed League of Nations as the veriest chimera, replied that the speech was very provincial, which indeed it was.

"Chagrin and mortification await our flying squadron of Senatorial denouncers when they waken to the fact that civilization has recorded its judgment without even reading their protests. They will be like the Irish private who complained to his Sergeant that he was the only man in the line who was in step.

"We talk of our 'sovereign freedom.' We indulge in canting prattle about its preservation. The truth is that it is gone—gone for England, gone for France, gone for Italy, gone for us. The cause of the Entente was on the verge of failure when we threw our decisive strength into the balance, and who will contend that we alone, with the duty upon us of organizing for war, as well as waging it, could have prevailed against the concentrated power of the barbarian alliance? France needed England, England needed Japan, France and England besought Italy for help. All needed us, and we needed all. Thus only was victory won."

Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, who returned from Europe last week, said that after conferring with many of the statesmen in England, France and Italy, he was convinced that the League of Nations was at hand, and the only country that can avert the formation of the league was America.

"If," he said, "America does not stand behind the President at this time it will stand alone among the allied nations. There are some Senators in the United States today who are opposed to the League of Nations. Any one who deliberately undermines the work of President Wilson in his endeavor to bring about the league is guilty of moral treason and will be dealt with by the American people in due time. Any leader of the Governments of France, Britain or Italy who would dare get up and publicly declare that he were opposed to the league would not survive politically for twenty-four hours."

In closing, Rabbi Wise said that Mr. Wilson should remain in Paris until he is able to bring home with him a peace that will insure the independence and integrity of the small nation as well as the large. "If no league comes with peace," he asserted, "America will have to become the most powerful military and naval nation in the world."

Dr. Henry van Dyke thus indicated the terms under which Germany might be allowed to participate in the League:

"Shall Germany share in the benefits of such a league? Yes, if she becomes good, we could not and would not prevent her sharing in its benefits—they are for all the world. But shall she be a member of such a league?

"Ah, that is a different question. First of all, she must repent and prove her repentance by her works of restitution and reparation. Second, she must get a solid Government, directly responsible to the people and free alike from convicted liars and bloody Bolsheviki. When those two things come to pass the admission of Germany to the League may be considered seriously, but not before!"

GERMANS DIVIDED ON PEACE POLICY

Two Elements Hope to Weaken the Allies' Resolution by Different Methods.

ERZBERGER FOR YIELDING

Believes That This Method Will Soften Terms — Winterfeldt's Aim to Defy "Brute Force."

By LEONARD SPRAY.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROTTERDAM, Feb. 4.—From reliable sources important information reached me as to the circumstances attending the resignation of General von Winterfeldt from his post as Chairman of the German Armistice Commission.

It has been stated that Winterfeldt resigned as a protest against Marshal Foch's extra demand for the occupation of a sector east of Strasbourg. So far as this goes, it is absolutely correct, but it does not go anything like far enough. The German General left, not merely because he objected to this demand or even because, as he says, of the whole general attitude of the Entente representatives, but because in his view and that of the influential circle he represents, the whole Armistice Commission ought to be disowned by Germany.

Before throwing up his hands, he urged nothing less than that the German Government should formally declare that it would have nothing more to do with the armistice proceedings, and would leave the Entente to take any measure they might think fit, even to the occupation of the whole country.

Differed from Erzberger.

There was, therefore, at this point a direct conflict of opinion between Winterfeldt and Erzberger. Erzberger has taken the view from the beginning of the armistice that Germany's primary task was to convince the Entente of her good will and good intentions, and, therefore, he has consistently urged that all the conditions imposed by Foch must be accepted and loyally carried out. This, he believes, is the only way which will open to Germany the possibility of some sort of a peace of reconciliation.

Erzberger, and those who think with him, quite apart from the genuineness or otherwise of the belief mentioned, are playing for time. They believe that with the passage of time and the apparent submissive German attitude through the Armistice Commission, there will grow in strength influences in the Entente countries which are in favor of conciliation.

At the same time they recognize that this policy may miscarry and that notwithstanding their attitude the Entente will still impose what the German people would regard as too harsh conditions. For this possibility they are prepared, holding that even so they at least will have lost nothing, and can still save their faces.

In this transition period they feel that they can assent to whatever armistice demands are made, without being too much burdened with the dissatisfaction of their own people, now preoccupied with cares for everyday existence. This, however, cannot be reckoned upon when it comes to the peace conditions which will, perhaps, be of such character that the acceptance of them would make the position of the German envoys impossible.

May Refuse to Sign Treaty.

In that event they are already prepared formally to refuse to sign the Peace Treaty and to adopt an attitude of passive resistance, allowing the Entente to take whatever measures it may think fit.

From the beginning the Conservatives have had a different view from Erzberger's conception of the position and prospects. What they have wanted for a long time past, and what Winterfeldt himself advocated last week, is a policy of non possumus.

In Winterfeldt's eyes the whole action of Erzberger is idle and fruitless. He believes that the Entente will continually make fresh demands and become less conciliatory the more Germany gives way. Therefore, he urged in effect: "Break off the armistice, declare you can no further yield to brute force, and let them do what they like."

For the moment it has not come to that, but there are indications enough that it will constitute the German Government's policy in the long run. Whatever else has changed in the mentality of the Germans since the revolution they still retain their fatal disability for understanding the psychology of other nations. They are convincing themselves now that the Entente Governments would not be able, owing to the feeling among their own peoples, to maintain indefinitely the military occupation of Germany or even a blockade.

Not to Free Sinn Feiners Now.

LONDON, Feb. 5, (Associated Press.)—Reports from various sources that the members of the Sinn Fein who have been interned in England were to be released were set at naught today by a statement issued from the office of the Secretary for Ireland. The statement set forth that the Sinn Fein prisoners were not to be freed "under the present circumstances." Nevertheless, a Dublin dispatch says that the Lord Mayor of that city announced that arrangements were being made for their early liberation, and it was intimated that Edward De Valera, who is reported to have escaped, is going to the Paris Peace Conference.

Knudsen Cabinet Out in Norway.

CHRISTIANIA, Feb. 5.—The Norwegian Cabinet, headed by Gunnar Knudsen, has resigned. The reason given is that Knudsen's party has ceased to maintain control of Parliament. Speculation as to the new ministry includes the possibility that H. H. Bryn, Norwegian Minister at Washington, will be named as Foreign Minister.

WOULD FIRST SCAN PERSHING'S RECORD

Frelinghuysen Also Opposes Promoting Other Generals Now, but Excepts Crowder and McCain.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Senator Frelinghuysen, Republican, of New Jersey expressed the hope in debate today that there would be no "undue haste" in acting upon the bill, presumably originating with the War Department, to give the President authority to confer the permanent rank of General upon Generals Pershing, March, and Bliss and Lieut. Gens. Liggett and Bullard. He said it would be well to wait and see what had actually been achieved by these Generals in the field and at home.

Mr. Frelinghuysen suggested that there were men of lower rank who had served conspicuously in battle who also should be recognized. He urged the Senate to wait and see what responsibility General March, as Chief of Staff, might have had for the "blunders and grave mistakes" of the War Department before conferring higher permanent rank upon him. General March, he said, had "extraordinary, almost autocratic powers."

Senator Frelinghuysen eulogized General Crowder, the Provost Marshal, for his work in mobilizing the army, and said that, unless the President reappointed him on Feb. 15, the General would either drop into civil life or go back to the rank of Colonel. Adjutant General McCain, he said, had done extraordinary work in "shaping the army handed over to him by General Crowder." General McCain, like General Crowder, would go back in rank unless the President intervened. Mr. Frelinghuysen demanded recognition for both these Generals.

Mr. Frelinghuysen discussed the air craft program, and spoke of the report by Charles E. Hughes against Colonel Deeds, whom the special investigator suggested be disciplined. Instead, however, the Senator said, he was "vindicated" by the Secretary of War.

"Whoever was responsible, directly or indirectly, for the tragedy of the aircraft fiasco," said Senator Frelinghuysen, "which resulted so disastrously to our men in the field, should have been tried, and, if found guilty, been compelled to suffer the maximum penalty under the law, civil or military. That is the kind of 'vindication' he or they should have received, not a certificate of character from the President or the War Department."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5, (Associated Press.)—Senator Frelinghuysen concluded his speech today by saying:

"It is all very well for the President to break the precedents of a century that he may head triumphal processions in foreign capitals, sleep in the chambers of royalty, dine off gold plates in the palaces of the modern Caesars, and have his photographs taken with Kings, Queens, and Princesses. But what of the American private who returns to his native shores, dismissed without a dollar in his pocket?"

Senator Kirby, Democrat, of Arkansas, replied briefly to Senator Frelinghuysen. He said that the ratio of complaints to the number of men involved has been exceedingly small.

PERSHING HONORS NEW YORK AVIATORS

Several Local Men Among Latest Heroes Who Have Received the Distinguished Service Cross.

LIEUT. S. G. NORRIS IN LIST

B. T. Burt, R. D. Vernam, H. H. George, and P. R. Pyne Also Are Included.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Two more lists of American soldiers who have received the Distinguished Service Cross from General Pershing for extraordinary heroism in action were made public today by the War Department. All of the latest men honored are officers of the Aviation Corps and among them are:

Lieut. H. L. Borden of Newport, R. I.; Lieut. L. G. Irving of Berkeley, Cal.; Capt. C. G. Grey of Chicago, Ill.; Lieut. G. A. Preston of Howe, Ind.; Lieut. J. R. McKay of Wheaton, Ill.; Lieut. Donald Hudson of Kansas City, Mo.; Lieut. John Frost of San Antonio, Texas; Lieut. M. L. Dowd of Paris, France; Lieut. Glen Phelps of St. Louis, Mo.; Lieut. Clinton Jones of San Francisco, Cal.; Capt. Reed Chambers of Fort Huachuca, Arizona; Lieut. S. V. Clarke of Williamsport, Penn.; Lieut. H. P. Neibling of Minneapolis, Minn.; Lieut. Sumner Sewall of Bath, Me.; Lieut. G. C. Carroll of Garrett, Ill.; Lieut. G. R. Nixon of Los Angeles, Cal.; Lieut. W. T. Ponder of Mangum, Okla.; Lieut. J. J. Quinn of Philadelphia, Penn.; Lieut. R. L. Maugham of Logan, Utah; Lieut. W. J. Hoover of Hartsville, S. C.; Lieut. H. C. Rorison of Wilmington, N. C.

The men from this city and nearby places who have been decorated and the specific acts for which they have been honored follows:

Second Lieut. Sigbert A. G. Norris, Aviation Section, observer, 11th Aero Squadron. For extraordinary heroism in action near Dun-sur-Meuse, on Sept. 26. Deeming it impossible to catch their own formation, Lieut. Norris, with Lieut. William Waring, pilot, attached themselves to a formation from the 20th Squadron and engaged in a thirty-five-minute fight with thirty enemy aircraft. Five of the 20th Squadron were lost and the observer of one of the remaining planes seriously wounded. The wounded man had fallen in a position which had made the control of the machine difficult. Lieut. Norris immediately motioned for his pilot to take a position between the enemy formation and the crippled companion, in order to protect it, and continued to fight off the enemy planes until our lines were crossed. Home address, C. R. Freeman, friend, 489 Fifth Avenue, New York, N. Y.

First Lieut. William W. Waring, deceased, Aviation Section, pilot. For extraordinary heroism in action near Dun-sur-Meuse, on Sept. 26. Deeming it impossible to catch their own formation, Lieut. Waring with Lieut. Sigbert Norris, observer, attached themselves to a formation from the 20th Squadron and engaged in a thirty-five-minute fight with thirty enemy aircraft. Five of this squadron were lost and the observer of one of the three remaining planes seriously wounded. The wounded man had fallen in a position which made the control of the machine difficult. Lieut. Waring immediately placed his machine between the enemy formation and the crippled companion in order to protect it, and continued to fly in this place until our lines were crossed and the enemy scouts driven off. Home address, Mrs. Lucy T. Waring, mother, Frankinville, Cattaraugus County, N. Y.

First Lieut. Byron T. Burt, Jr., Aviation Section, observer Balloon Section. For repeated acts of heroism in action near Gricourt, between Aug. 4 and 11; near Sommedieue on Sept. 16, and near Avocourt on Oct. 1. On each of these occasions he remained with his balloon, making important observations of the enemy's positions and directing our artillery fire, until his balloon was set on fire by incendiary bullets from enemy aircraft. On one occasion he refused to jump until his companion, a student observer, was safely away. Home address, Mrs. Byron T. Burt, 108 West Seventy-third Street, New York, N. Y.

First Lieut. Warren Edwin Eaton, aviation section, 103d Aero Pursuit Squadron.—For extraordinary heroism in action near Bantheville on Oct. 10. With one other pilot he engaged an enemy formation of eleven planes, (Fokker type,) though another hostile formation was directly above them. After a severe combat Lieut. Eaton destroyed one of the enemy planes and, with his companion, drove down another out of control. Home address, Mrs. Warren E. Eaton, wife, Norwich, N. Y.

First Lieut. Remington Deb Vernam, pilot, 22d Aero Squadron. For extraordinary heroism in action near Buzancy, on Oct. 10. Successively attacking two enemy balloons, which were moored to their nests, he displayed the highest degree of daring. He executed his task despite the fact that several enemy planes were above him, descending to an altitude of less than ten meters when five miles within the enemy lines. His well-directed fire caused both balloons to burst into flames. Address, Mrs. Philip J. Ross, mother, 66 Broadway, New York, N. Y.

First Lieut. Harold H. George, 139th Aero Squadron. For extraordinary heroism in action near Bantheville on Oct. 27. He displayed great courage in attacking a formation of four enemy planes, (Fokker type,) destroying two of them in a terrific fight and driving the other two back to their own territory. Home address, William H. George, brother, 210 East Tenth Street, New York, N. Y.

First Lieut. Percy Rivington Pyne, 103d Aero Pursuit Squadron. For extraordinary heroism in action near Dun-sur-Meuse, on Oct. 23. While protecting three planes on a photographic mission he attacked and drove off five enemy machines, (Fokker type.) Later another German formation of seven (Fokker type) was encountered, but despite the odds Lieut. Pyne swung up into the midst of the enemy and scattered them, diving on one of the Fokkers and sending it crashing to the ground. Home address, Percy R. Pyne, father, 680 Park Avenue, New York City.

ITALY USING SEIZED SHIPS.

Yards at Taranto Repairing Austrian Vessels for Trade.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

TARANTO, Feb. 4.—This port is the scene of feverish activity and indefatigable work. The quays are crowded with merchant ships of the Austro-Hungarian Monarchy. The Italian Government has ordered them to Taranto for repairs, as they were in a dilapidated condition, having received no attention for five years, and parts of machinery being missing.

Mechanics, painters, carpenters, and an army of workmen have been working day and night to repair as quickly as possible these ships to add to the Italian tonnage badly reduced by the war.

Since Dec. 2, fifty-four ships have arrived here and thirty others are expected in a few days. Twenty-three have sailed for other ports flying the inter-Allied flag, and the Italian Tricolor.

LINZ PLUNDERED BY MOB.

People of Upper Austria Said to be Maddened by Hunger.

LONDON, Feb. 5.—Thousands of persons in the district of Linz, the capital of Upper Austria, have been plundering the food shops and committing other depredations, according to reports from Linz transmitted by the Exchange Telegraph correspondent at Vienna. The people, the reports stated, had become maddened by hunger.

The advices added that the disorders had not yet been suppressed.

ARMY TABLE TELLS STORY OF VICTORY

Allies' Rifle Strength Grew from April On, While Germany's Dwindled Nearly Half.

HER RESERVES ALL GONE

Total Size of American Army at Home and Abroad When Armistice Was Signed 3,703,273.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—The story of Germany's supreme effort for military victory in the Spring of 1918, of American intervention on the western front, and of the ultimate crushing defeat of the enemy and the apparent annihilation of nearly one-half of his fighting force was graphically told in figures made public today by the War Department. They dealt with the "rifle strength" of the Allies and the German forces on the western front in monthly periods from April 1 to Nov. 1, and were prepared by the Intelligence Division of the General Staff of the American Army in France. By rifle strength is meant the "number of men standing in the trenches ready to go over with the bayonet."

When Germany struck its great blow last Spring it had about 1,500,000 men so classified, against an allied total of about 1,250,000. By June 1 the Germans reached their peak with 1,639,000 rifles. The allied strength on June 1 was 1,496,000. Shortly afterward the Allies reached a total of 1,547,000, composed of 778,000 French, 515,000 British, and 254,000 American. America's contribution had risen from 65,000 in April. On July 1 Germany's power had begun to wane, and for the first time it was definitely inferior in rifle strength, with 1,412,000, compared with 1,556,000 for the Allies.

In mid-October the American strength had risen to an estimated force of 350,000. On Sept. 1 the allied line was at its greatest strength with 1,682,000, against Germany's 1,339,000. While the Allies had shrunk in rifles to 1,485,000 on Nov. 1, Germany's last hope was gone as she faced that army with only 866,000 bayonets.

The following table, prepared by General Pershing's staff, shows the comparative rifle strength of the armies for the eight months covered:

	Allies.	Germany.
April 1	1,245,000	1,569,000
May 1	1,343,000	1,600,000
June 1	1,496,000	1,639,000
July 1	1,556,000	1,412,000
Aug. 1	1,672,000	1,395,000
Sept. 1	1,682,000	1,339,000
Oct. 1	1,594,000	1,223,000
Nov. 1	1,485,000	866,000

The sudden decline of the German forces, beginning in June and again apparent in the swift drop during October, was accounted for by the fact that she had drawn into the lines during the Spring every available reserve, expecting to smash her way to victory before Winter came. These reserves were used up in the German attack and the allied assaults which followed, while the American force continued to increase.

In a rough way, the American rifle strength has represented about 20 per cent. of the total American force in France continuously. This accounts for the fact that with a total of more than 2,000,000 men in France on Nov. 11, the rifle strength in October was estimated at around 350,000 men. A similar situation was shown in staff reports as to the total allied strength, reckoned as "ration strength," which was continuously greater than that of the German Army throughout the Spring and Summer last year.

The total strength of the United States Army on Nov. 11, when the armistice was signed, was 3,703,273 officers and men, including the Marine Corps on duty with the army in Europe. On Nov. 11 the American officers and 1,868,474 men, while 1,162 officers and 21,072 men were at sea en route to Europe. The marine contingent in the expeditionary force on that date was 1,002 officers and 31,383 men, making the total European army strength either in France or en route there 2,003,935 officers and men.

In the United States on that date were 1,634,499 army personnel, and in the insular possessions, the Canal Zone, Alaska, &c., 55,735. The total strength of the Siberian expedition on that date was 298 officers and 8,806 men.

A table prepared by the War Department giving these figures follows:

	Officers.	Men.	Total.
Army personnel in Europe	80,842	1,868,474	1,949,316
At sea en route to Europe	1,162	21,072	22,234
Total	82,004	1,889,506	1,971,550
Marines (on duty with army in Europe)	1,002	31,383	32,385
Total, including marines	83,006	1,920,929	2,003,915
Siberian Expedition	298	8,806	9,104
Total A. E. F. in Europe and Siberia	83,304	1,929,735	2,013,039
In United States	104,155	1,530,344	1,634,499
In insular possessions, Alaska, &c.	1,977	53,758	55,735
Grand total in army, excluding marines	188,434	3,482,454	3,670,888
Grand total in army including marines	189,436	3,513,837	3,703,273

AMERICAN GASOLINE ENABLED ALLIES TO WIN

Foch Within Sixty Days of End Warned War Would Be Lost Unless Supply Was Kept Up.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—That Marshal Foch cabled to officials in this country within two months of the signing of the armistice warning that the war would be lost if America failed to keep up its supply of gasoline, was revealed tonight by the Fuel Administration in an authorized statement, in which it is contended that American gasoline turned the tide of the war.

"Less than sixty days before the armistice was signed," the statement reads, "the situation hung in the balance—just when the American people were accustoming themselves to their voluntary relinquishment of Sunday automobile rides and the observation of 'gasolineless Sundays.'

"But for this and other sacrifices, and the stimulation and direction of production, what might have happened was indicated in a blunt cablegram from Marshal Foch, saying simply:

"'If you don't keep up your petroleum supply we shall lose the war.'

"A still more serious cable was received Oct. 1. It said in part:

"'Senator Bérenger writes highest command informs him that position has become so serious that change in military operations will have to be contemplated unless increased deliveries gasoline at front are made possible.'

"Eighty per cent. of the allied requirements of petroleum products, the Earl of Curson pointed out in a statement made Nov. 21, was furnished by the United States, and Walter H. Long, British Secretary of State for the Colonies, sent special thanks for the work of the Fuel Administration in providing oil, and the activities of the American oil industry.

"Of this fuel, of which the American people supplied four-fifths, Senator Bérenger declared, 'petroleum will have played as great a part in the victory as blood itself, and will have proved the life blood of victory,' and Sir John Cadman, British petroleum executive, used identical words, writing, 'Oil fuel was the life blood of the navy.'

"Appreciations of America's splendid and successful efforts to provide this 'life blood' on land and sea also were received from E. D. Kewan, oil executive of the British Ministry of Shipping; Camille Ceruti of the Italian Military Mission, and other high officials among the Allies.

"The shipment of gasoline and other petroleum products so promptly and in such large quantities was made possible only by the heroic efforts of the petroleum industry working through the national war service in harmonious cooperation with the Fuel Administration."

OPEN VAUDEVILLE INQUIRY.

Pat Casey Says Most Performers Are Only 4 Days Ahead of Sheriff.

The Federal Trade Commission inquiry into the business methods of the Vaudeville Managers' Protective Association was resumed yesterday with Pat Casey, its manager, in the witness chair. It is charged that the association is seeking to get all vaudeville talent under its control for the purpose of completing a trust; that it has a blacklist, and that those theatres which refuse to submit to its exactions have great difficulty in presenting attractive bills.

Mr. Casey testified that the association benefited the performers as well as the managers. He said there were 907 vaudeville houses in the United States, and that 48 per cent. of them were members of the association. When all the houses are being operated 8,000 or 9,000 actors are employed in presenting 6,000 acts, he said. Concerning the need of performers for a personal representative, he said that few actors would get up early enough or hustle hard enough to get an engagement for themselves. Most of the booking offices, he testified, are in this city, and that their business is scattered from Maine to California. Casey also said that about 90 per cent. of the vaudeville actors are only about four days ahead of the Sheriff.

In reply to questions asked by John Walsh, chief counsel of the commission, Casey intimated that even such performers as Sarah Bernhardt might find difficulty in getting a contract if the United Booking Offices refused to aid her. The inquiry will be continued.

CAPTAIN NEGLECTS FAMILY.

Army Officer Pleads Guilty to Failing to Support His Children.

Edwin Montgomery, a Captain in the United States Army, stationed at the Hog Island Shipyard, pleaded guilty when taken before Judge Humphrey in the Queens County Court yesterday to an indictment charging him with failing to support his two children. His wife, Mrs. Mary Montgomery, is now working as a servant. Captain Montgomery was remanded to the Queens County Jail for sentence next week.

Some years ago Captain Montgomery enlisted in the army and was sent to Fort Totten. His promotion was rapid and he was commissioned a Captain. While an enlisted man he was married to his wife, who was a Flushing girl.

Mrs. Montgomery lost trace of her husband, but finally located him at the Hog Island Shipyard. He refused to report to Judge Humphrey on the indictment against him, and it was necessary to have extradition papers drawn in order to bring him into this State. When arraigned several days ago he pleaded not guilty.

Yesterday he appeared before Judge Humphrey and said that he desired to change his plea to guilty, because he believed he was legally guilty but not morally guilty.

Reds to Release Swiss Envoy.

PARIS, Feb. 5.—M. Tchitcherin, Foreign Minister in the Russian Soviet Government, has withdrawn his opposition to the departure from Russia of Eduard Odier, Swiss Minister, and his staff from Russia, according to Marcel Hutin in the Echo de Paris.

Well fed—yet almost starved

"My little son eats almost as much as a grown man," said a woman to her friend, "but his food doesn't seem to do him any good."

"Do you know what I'd do?" said the other. "I'd put him on Gude's Pepto-Mangan My boy was puny and weak, and our family physician prescribed Pepto-Mangan. It did him a world of good."

Gude's Pepto-Mangan

"The Red Blood Builder"

In thousands of homes, one or more persons have been helped through some period of feeble health by Pepto-Mangan. Used and prescribed by the medical profession for over 28 years, because it is absolutely safe and beneficial for invalids, convalescents and run-down people of all ages and conditions. Easy to digest, exceedingly pleasant to taste.

FRIENDLY WARNING: There is only one Pepto-Mangan and that is Gude's. Sold in bottle and package as shown here. Sold by druggists everywhere.

Now for a Permanent Position—Telephone Operating

An opportunity for the young woman who threw the weight of her hand and mind into the winning of the war and who is now looking for permanent employment.

WHILE you have been engaged in turning out the things that made fighting possible—while you have been serving in any one of the thousands of capacities in which women contributed so largely to the winning of the war—thousands of telephone operators, "Soldiers of The Switchboard" they have been called, have likewise been engaged in tasks that helped to bring about the Great Result.

But while your work is finished, the real work of the telephone operator continues. Her position is as vitally important today as it was during the active days of warfare, and she will need help in carrying on her important duties during the coming period of reconstruction.

So to you bright, healthy, ambitious young women between 16 and 25, who appreciate the importance of serving the public in a big way, we offer employment as telephone operators with good pay while you learn, increased pay at frequent intervals after you learn, and a good desirable position always.

Telephone operating is an occupation in which the workers are promoted to executive positions and your advancement to one of these positions therefore, is only dependent upon your willingness and ability.

We are interested in all young women who possess the necessary qualifications and we would be pleased to have them call at any Application Office for particulars.

All Smoking Tobaccos are Flavored

"Your Nose Knows"

The Encyclopaedia Britannica says about the manufacture of smoking tobacco, " . . . on the Continent and in America certain 'sauces' are employed . . . the use of the 'sauces' is to improve the flavour and burning qualities of the leaves." Your smoke-enjoyment depends as much upon the Quality and kind of flavoring used as upon the Quality and aging of the tobacco. Tuxedo tobacco uses the purest, most wholesome and delicious of all flavorings—chocolate! That flavoring, added to the finest of carefully aged and blended burley tobacco, produces Tuxedo—the perfect tobacco—"Your Nose Knows."

Try This Test: Rub a little Tuxedo briskly in the palm of your hand to bring out its full aroma. Then smell it deep—its delicious, pure fragrance will convince you. Try this test with any other tobacco and we will let Tuxedo stand or fall on your judgment—"Your Nose Knows."

TRAINOR ENTERS DENIAL.

Says He Refused to Help Sell Hines Hospital to Government.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Milton J. Trainor of the War Department Real Estate Division denied before the Senate Buildings Committee today that he had sought a commission of $100,000 in connection with a contract for the Chicago Speedway Hospital. The charge was made before the committee last week by W. S. Bennet, former member of Congress and counsel for Edward Hines, a Chicago lumber dealer, who made large donations for the proposed hospital.

Mr. Trainor told the committee that men supposed to represent Hines had approached him with a proposal to assist in selling the Speedway Hospital property to the Government for hospital purposes, but that he had declined it.

FATE OF COSTIGAN SHOCKS THE POLICE

See Blow to Morale in the Demotion of the Foe of Vice.

ENRIGHT REMAINS MUTE

Commissioner Paid a Hurried Visit to City Hall Before He Announced His Action.

The news of the demotion of Police Inspector Daniel E. Costigan, the foe of vice, to the rank of Captain was received with consternation yesterday by the rank and file of the members of the department. Patrolmen asserted that the act of Police Commissioner Enright practically served notice on them that hereafter no premium would be placed on the fearless fulfillment of their duty.

A former high official of the department who is thoroughly versed in the inside politics of the police situation said last night: "A man who is a friend of former Police Commissioner Woods is not considered much by this administration. Costigan was known to have been a friend of Woods."

Commissioner Enright refused to give any detailed reasons as to his action. When told that, according to report, certain elements in this city had inferred from his action that it would be safe for them to resume business, the Commissioner said he was the best judge of conditions. Costigan, at his new post in the Beach Street Station, accepted his demotion philosophically yesterday and declined to talk of it.

Hylan First Consulted.

Before Police Commissioner Enright announced Costigan's demotion, it was learned yesterday he paid a hurried visit to the City Hall and saw Mayor Hylan. It is understood that Mayor Hylan is familiar with all of the important moves in the department.

It was pointed out by those familiar with conditions in the police department that the downfall of Costigan was concurrent with the rise of Dominick Henry, over whose head Costigan went on making raids on gambling houses on several occasions.

It was further pointed out that simultaneously with the promotion by Commissioner Enright to posts of power in the department of men who were reduced or dismissed by Commissioner Woods, there also went on the demotion and humiliation of men whom Mr. Woods trusted and found honest and incorruptible. Some men dismissed by Commissioner Woods who had recourse to the courts did not avail themselves of this opportunity to fight their cases, the reason being given that they knew they had no chance in court. However, a number of these men have been reinstated by Commissioner Enright, it was said yesterday, while one or two were retired on pensions shortly after their reinstatement.

A report circulated at Police Headquarters yesterday that the contributing cause of Costigan's downfall was his refusal to sanction the opening of gambling houses on the east side at the request of two Tammany district leaders, who complained that gambling houses were open in other parts of the town and they saw no reason why they should be discriminated against. It is understood that Costigan told the leaders that as far as he was concerned he would have no hesitation in closing any gambling houses wherever found.

It was learned that one of Costigan's most successful raids was on the expensively furnished gambling house on West Sixty-eighth Street run by Thomas L. Reynolds. Reynolds, it was learned, was at one time a prominent Tammany politician and a member of the Long Acre Club, which in 1905 nominated him for leader in the Twenty-seventh Assembly District against Thomas F. McAvoy. The latter won. At the time of the raid on Reynolds's place last year Assistant District Attorney James E. Smith asserted that the place had been running for three years, and that Reynolds had made about a million dollars there. Reynolds was convicted as a common gambler and sentenced to ninety days in prison.

Another raid made by Inspector Costigan in the district of Inspector Dominick Henry, who is in high favor with Commissioner Enright, was on the rooms of the Merchants' Club, in East Seventeenth Street, when two men were arrested.

Won't Discuss Costigan's Record.

Commissioner Enright was asked yesterday what specific reasons he had for reducing Costigan, but he refused to make them known.

"The reasons I have are ample and sufficient for me," he said.

Asked if Costigan's removal after his well-known record in the suppression of vice did not require a public statement, Commissioner Enright countered by asking the inquirer if he knew what that record was. On being asked whether that meant any reflection on Costigan, Commissioner Enright said he did not care to discuss that matter. Pressed to explain whether Costigan had failed to make good under his administration, the Commissioner said he could not answer that question.

Mr. Enright also refused to answer questions concerning the break-up of the vice squad and the transfer of its detectives to the suburbs.

Speaking of the holdup of the trolley cars in Queens and the robbery of two saloons and a cobbler's shop in the Bronx Tuesday, Mr. Enright said it was hard to guard the outlying districts, and for this reason the holdup men had been able to "get away with it."

WANT BURLESON OUSTED.

Telegraphers Plan Resolution to be Sent to President Wilson.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—A letter written by Basil M. Manley, joint Chairman of the National War Labor Board, to Milton T. Eglin of the local organization of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union of America, made public tonight, states that Postmaster General Burleson has so far paid no attention to protests on the subject of the wage award to telegraphers recently made by that official.

At the same time the Commercial Telegraphers' Union announced that it would hold a meeting Sunday to consider resolutions to be sent to President Wilson demanding the Postmaster General's removal from office. The announcement said that attention would be called to the "mismanagement of the wires under Burleson, Koone, Carlton, and Vail," and that Mr. Burleson has contributed more to make Government ownership "ridiculous" and "a signal failure" than "any other agency in the United States."

It was added that Mr. Burleson "has made the defeat of the Democratic Party in 1920 an assured fact."

'JUST AROUND THE CORNER.'

Amusing Rural Comedy, with Marie Cahill, Pleases at Longacre.

JUST AROUND THE CORNER, a comedy with songs in a prologue and three acts, by George V. Hobart and Herbert Hall Winslow. At the Longacre.

A City Marshal	Percy Pembroke
Phoebe Larrimore	Marie Cahill
Deputy Joe	Wallace Owen
Henry Pickens	Roy Briant
Sally Ferguson	Clara Mackin
Harvey Wattles, Jr.	Glen Anders
Harvey Wattles, Sr.	Wilson Reynolds
Buddy Hicks	Lorin Raker
Billie Martin	Marie Bryar
William Ward Wilder	George MacQuarrie
Vere Jocelyn	Lulu McGuire
Mrs. Harvey Wattles	Eugenie Blair
Amos Peel	Charles Morrison
Mrs. Wiggins	Margaret Hoffman
The Ellenville Piano Player	Carl Gray

Altough it adheres rather doggedly to one of the most popular of the established formulae for dramatic entertainment, "Just Around the Corner," played here for the first time last night at the Longacre, is considerably more amusing than a cold consideration of its ingredients would seem to indicate. The righteous soul from the city—be he man or woman—who invades a rural community and there attempts to make over a ramshackle store into a profitable enterprise, despite the opposition of most of the narrow-minded townfolk, is far from a new figure in the theatre.

The design for plays of the sort is unvarying, but the new play at the Longacre, for all its faithfulness to tradition, is not without its freshness for all that. This latter quality it probably owes in greatest measure to Marie Cahill, who returned to New York after a considerable absence to remind her following that she is still capable of delivering a comedy line with telling, and yet not obvious, effect. It is largely Miss Cahill who sets the play a bit apart from its fellows.

It is, of course, the necessity of reseeking her fortune which drives the heroine, after an explanatory prologue over the telephone, to the town of Wattlesburg. There she picks up a youth who had "gone wrong," a stranded show girl, and a chance passer-through, and with these as her aids she fights the all-powerful Wattles and triumphs after many vicissitudes. The play is peopled with the customary lay figures of the rural comedy—the country editor, the rich man's son, the city-struck girl and the others—but it is workmanlike, contains a liberal sprinkling of good lines, and is for the most part amusing.

The sophisticated playgoer is likely to derive his greatest enjoyment from the performance of Miss Cahill. She is an adept at the art of the seeming impromptu—so much so that she appeared now and then to be overdoing it. It is a style of playing which calls for the same sort of work on the part of her foils, and there were moments last night when she all but disconcerted several of the members of her company. She was enthusiastically, and deservedly, applauded for her singing of two or three songs in the second act. She did so well with them, in fact, that even the baldness of their introduction could be overlooked.

The supporting company suffices thoroughly, with more than competent performances being given by Wilson Reynolds and George MacQuarrie.

PLAY ANCIENT INSTRUMENTS

Society Gives Enjoyment in Works of Old Composers.

The Society of Ancient Instruments, which speaks in terms of centuries where America would think of years, is already in its third season in New York, and, coming here among the first in wartime, has found a public which was hardly represented last evening in Carnegie Hall. Louis Hasselmans, who last year succeeded Eugene Dubruille at viole de gamba, is now conductor with the Chicago Opera, and has yielded his place in the ensemble to Jean Charron. There reappeared Maurice Hewitt, quinton, and Henri Casadesus, viole d'amour, founder of the society, as well as Maurice Devilliers, bass viol, and Mme. Casadesus, harp-lute.

All five players were heard in "Le Pays du Tendre," by Destouches, and a "Concerto Champetre," by Mondonville, the quaint strings also in a concerto by Philip Emanuel Bach, Mr. Hewitt and Mme. Casadesus in a "Sonatine" by Francoeur, and Mr. Casadesus in a "Divertissement" by Borghi, all seventeenth or eighteenth century composers. Carnegie Hall is a place for orchestra rather than chamber music, but the pure tone of the old instruments carried remarkably, and the cheerfulness of the old composers was enjoyed.

SUES FROHMAN FOR $10,000.

Norman Forbes-Robertson Says He Was Engaged for "Dear Brutus."

Norman Forbes-Robertson, brother of Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson, filed suit yesterday in the Supreme Court against Charles Frohman, Inc., for $10,000 damages for breach of an alleged contract by which the plaintiff came here from England to play in "Dear Brutus" and was not permitted to fulfill his contract.

Alf. Hayman, general manager of Charles Frohman, Inc., when told of the suit last night, said that Norman was cabled not to come to New York, but came anyway, claiming that he had not received the cablegram, and returned on the next steamer, four weeks before the play was produced here. Mr. Hayman remarked that Mr. Forbes-Robertson must have placed his salary mighty high, as the play had not been running ten weeks yet.

Roosevelt Memorial Services.

Memorial services in honor of Theodore Roosevelt will be held in all the Keith vaudeville houses in New York and Brooklyn at 11 o'clock Sunday morning. There will be addresses, choral singing, and motion pictures of scene from the life of Colonel Roosevelt. The general public is invited.

Bertha Kalich Too Ill to Play.

The illness of Bertha Kalich, who is confined to her home with a severe cold, has compelled a temporary suspension of the run of "The Riddle: Woman," at the Fulton Theatre. No performances were given Tuesday night or yesterday, but it was said that Mme. Kalich will be able to resume her rôle tomorrow night.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"The Betrothal," recently seen at the Shubert Theatre, was played for the first time on the stage of the Century Theatre yesterday afternoon. It will be continued there indefinitely.

The Shakespeare Playhouse will give a matinee of "Hamlet" at the Plymouth Theatre this afternoon instead of tomorrow, as originally planned.

Marjorie Rambeau, in "The Fortune Teller," will begin an engagement at the Republic Theatre on Feb. 24.

"The Net," by Maravene Thompson, will be produced at the Forty-eighth Street Theatre next Monday night by Lee Kugel.

Emilie Lea, the dancer, is a recent addition to the cast of "Good Morning, Judge," which will open at the Shubert Theatre tonight.

"The Dancer," by Edward Locke, will be played for the first time in Wilkes-Barre on Thursday of next week.

MUSIC NOTES.

The Society of American Singers will give a special holiday matinee of "Robin Hood" next Wednesday, Lincoln's Birthday, at the Park Theatre, where this old favorite is drawing crowded houses.

Rachmaninoff, who played on tour with the Boston Symphony Orchestra this week in Washington, Baltimore, and Philadelphia, will be heard with Mr. Rabaud's men tomorrow in Brooklyn.

Arthur Rubinstein, a Polish pianist of great reputation, who arrived too late for the Boston tour, has now reached New York, and will make his local debut in a recital Feb. 20 in Carnegie Hall.

OPERA

By James Gibbons Huneker

"Pelleas and Melisande."

"Pelleas and Melisande," music by Claude Debussy, poem by Maurice Maeterlinck, was sung in French for the first time this season by the Chicago Opera Association—and Mary Garden—last night at the Lexington Theatre with this cast:

Melisande	Mary Garden
Genevieve	Louise Berat
Little Yniold	Marguerite La Mare
Pelleas	Alfred Maguenat
Golaud	Auguste Bouilliez
Arkel	Gustave Huberdeau
The Doctor	Constantin Nicolay

Conductor, Marcel Charlier.

Once upon a time we called this "precious" lyric work "Wagner and Absinthe," for there are many rumors of "Tristan and Isolde" in it, and the opalescent music, drugged with dreams, has the numbing effect of that "green fairy" no longer permitted in la belle France. Like all epigrams, this is only a half-truth. In the Belgian poet's "The Death of Tintagiles"—so wonderfully interpreted in tone by Charles Martin Loeffler—his marionettes are beginning to modulate into flesh and blood, and, like the mermaid of the fairy story, the transformation is a painful one. We note the achievement of a new manner in "Pelleas and Melisande." Played in English first by Forbes-Robertson and Mrs. Patrick Campbell, the piece created a mixed impression in London, though it may be confessed that, despite the scenic splendor, the acting transposed to a lower realistic key this lovely drama of souls. No play of Maeterlinck's is saturated with poesy, replete with romance. There are episodes nearly as intense as the second act of "Tristan." We listen for King Mark's distant, tremulous hunting horns in the forest scene when Pelleas and Melisande uncover their hearts.

The second act begins at an immemorial fountain in the royal park. Here the young Prince sits with the wife of his brother. Melisande is the most convincing full-length portrait of the poet. Exquisitely girlish, she charms with her strange Undine airs. Melisande is enveloped in the haze of the romantically remote. At times she seems to melt into the green tapestry of the forest. She is a woodland creature. More melancholy than Miranda, she is not without traces of her high-bred temperament; less real than Juliet, she is also passion-smitten. You recall Melusina and Rautendelein. Not altogether comprehensible, Melisande piques us with her waywardness, her fascinating if infantile change of moods. At the spring the two converse of the water and its healing powers. "You would say that my hands were sick today," she murmurs as she dips her fingers into the pool. The dialogue is as elliptical as if written by Browning or Henry James. But the symbol floats like a flag.

The mad apostrophe to the hair of Melisande is in key with this moving tableau. Perhaps Maeterlinck took a hint from the mournful tale of his friend, the Belgian poet Georges Rodenbach, ("Bruges-la-Morte") with its reincarnation of a dead woman in the form and features of "a live one." The beautiful hair of the new love serves but to strangle her. Pelleas is more tender.

"I have never, never seen such hair as thine, Melisande. I see the sky no longer through thy locks. * * * They are alive like birds in my hands." The last scene, when Melisande dies of a broken heart, even when read on the printed page is pity-breeding. It is the tragedy of souls distraught. "She must not be disturbed," urges the venerable Arkel. "The human soul is very silent. * * * The human soul likes to depart alone. * * * It suffers so timorously. * * * But the sadness, Gollud, the sadness of all we see. * * * 'Twas a little being so quiet, so fearful, and so silent. 'Twas a poor little mysterious being like everybody." Pascal comes to the mind here. No matter the splendor of human lives, we must each one die alone.

The speech of the poet in its rhapsodic rush merges into Debussy's music. That we shall ever see another such ensemble as at the Manhattan Opera House years ago is doubtful. Last night the performance, under the sympathetic baton of Charlier, was harmonious, the cast adequate. Mary Garden was Melisande. No further praise is needful. All her trumpery rôles, Thaïs, Gismonda, Chrysis, Cleopatra, with their insincere music and pasteboard pathos, are quickly forgotten. But her Melisande is unforgettable.

"Forza del Destino" Repeated.

Verdi's "Forza del Destino" was sung for the sixth time at the Metropolitan last evening, the first of the season's thirty operas thus far to complete the round of all subscription nights. In this melodious old tragedy Caruso and De Luca have renewed a success of their youthful days in Italy, while a young Italian-American girl, Rose Ponselle, has found herself hailed as a star. Caruso and Ponselle reappeared last night, de Luca gave place to Montesanto, while Sophie Braslau sang a second time as the gypsy, with Chalmers and Mardones, and Papi conducted. The audience again was a large one.

The dreadful menace of the cuspidor

Germs breed by millions in the dry or unsanitary cuspidor.

From it are distributed the seeds of tuberculosis, pneumonia, grippe and all other diseases of the nose, throat and lungs.

Don't depend upon soap and water to kill germs. Keep some Lysol solution in the cuspidor always.

Lysol Disinfectant

annihilates all germ life instantly. Its regular use in all the germ-breeding places in the home—cuspidor, garbage can, toilet, sinks and drains—will enable you to make a better fight against disease than disease can make against you.

A 50c bottle makes 5 gallons of powerful disinfectant—enough to last for months. A 25c bottle makes 2 gallons.

Lysol is also invaluable for Personal Hygiene.

Lysol Toilet Soap
Contains Lysol, and therefore protects the skin from germ infection. It is refreshingly soothing and healing and helpful for improving the skin. Ask your dealer for it. If he hasn't it, ask him to order it for you.

Lysol Shaving Cream
Contains Lysol, and kills germs in razor and shaving-brush (where germs abound), guards the tiny cuts from infection, and gives the antiseptic shave. If your dealer hasn't it, ask him to order a supply for you.

THE SECURITY OF FRANCE.

"The pressing anxiety of France," says Major Gen. Sir FREDERICK MAURICE, "is to be safe in the future"—to be secure from invasion by German armies. England's safety has been assured by the elimination of the German fleet. England will be less disposed than ever to maintain a large army, but as Germany may plan a war of revenge France cannot afford to abandon conscription. At least, that is the French view at the present time. How shall France be protected from aggression by a League of Nations of which she is a member? General MAURICE answers that she could be protected by sea power. He says:

> It is easy to foresee many cases which might call for armed intervention in the Continent of Europe, in which both we [the British] and America would be unwilling, or even unable, to send our soldiers to fight. The solution seems to me to be that we and America should guarantee to the League the naval power necessary to enforce a stringent economic blockade of any Power which threatened to disturb the peace of the world.

In short, save "the frontier of freedom," as Mr. WILSON has called France, by blockading the German ports in the Baltic and the North Sea. That is exactly what the British, with French assistance, tried to do in the first three years of the great war, failing of complete success because the enemy's submarines had to be reckoned with, not to speak of legitimate objection of the United States to certain blockade methods infringing its sea rights. After America's entrance into the war the blockade was made closer; nevertheless, the German armies almost reached the Channel ports and Paris in the Spring of 1918, and would have done so but for the skillful use of American reinforcements by Marshal FOCH in CLEMENCEAU's figurative "last quarter of an hour." Therefore, it may well be asked, would sea power save France another time—it might be a generation hence, or fifty years—if Germany, better equipped than ever, and depending upon a vast surplus of food, threw down the gauntlet to the League, whether she was a member of it or not, and attacked France? Would France not prefer frontier safeguards? She has intimated as much. In The North American Review for February Lieut. Col. H. H. SARGENT, U. S. A., contends that Belfort saved France from utter defeat in the early days of the great war:

> The German plan was to envelop both flanks of the French army, and it failed because of the "fortifications of the French eastern frontier." That is to say, it failed because of the natural fortification of the Vosges Mountains and the fortresses of Verdun, Toul, and Belfort. But particularly because of Belfort, which commands the narrow pass into France between the Vosges and Jura range of mountains. Had the Germans been able to capture this fortress, the way would have been opened for turning the Vosges Mountains and the fortresses of Toul and Verdun, and the envelopment of the French right wing which, with the left wing and the little British and Belgian armies already enveloped, would no doubt have resulted in the final surrender of the French army and the capture of Paris.

It was the eloquent insistence of THIERS in his negotiations with BISMARCK after the French were beaten to their knees in 1870 that preserved unconquered Belfort to France. The Chancellor's consent was, as the event proved, a strategic mistake of the first magnitude. Great as the debt of France was to British sea power in the recent war, her faith in it is qualified by the belief, grounded in grim experience, that the adjustment of her frontier to provide her with equivalents of Belfort would be the surest guarantee against triumphant aggression by a reconstructed and more powerful Germany. It is idle to endeavor to convince the French that Germany will never wage a war of revenge, that the adventure will not be possible in the future. France has suffered too much in the wasting of her resources in men and treasure to have absolute faith in sea power as a preventive of the making of war upon her by Germany. It is evident that the Peace Conference will have to give weighty consideration to the strengthening of the land defenses of France to assure her equal security with her ally England against invasion. It is because of doubt whether the guarantee will be given her that France shows a certain coolness toward the ideal of a League of Nations.

WELFARE AND REACTION.

The bone-dry bill introduced at Albany to do the bridge-and-crown work for prohibition in this State digresses for a moment from the domain of morals to that of belles-lettres in specifying that the name of the Excise Department shall hereafter be the "Department of General Welfare." That specific welfare is not to be neglected is indicated by the announcement that the patronage of the department will remain intact.

While New York State is thus confessing her eleventh-hour conversion to the blessings of general welfare imposed by the moral guardians of the community, Connecticut hastens to proclaim herself drink's last citadel. Forty-four States have ratified the prohibition amendment; two more are frantically clutching at the tailboard of the band wagon; New Jersey procrastinates; but Connecticut refuses to ratify. For this deliberate turning aside from the moral pathway, this sin against light, there is only one penalty severe enough. Let Connecticut be solemnly proclaimed outcast by the comity of dry-cleaned Commonwealths; let her be formally and specifically exempted from the operation of the prohibition amendment. Nay, more; make her a Devil's Island for the unregenerate of the rest of the country; if any man kick against the pricks, rebel against the enforcement of morality, let him be shipped to Connecticut, there to end his abandoned days in the company of his own kind.

BREAD AND MEAT.

Congressmen who are discussing the price of wheat in connection with the Government's billion-dollar operation will be glad to have it called to the attention of the country that they show indifference to what is said or done "in another place," to use the parliamentary phrase. The market knew on Tuesday, although the Government price fixers did not, that Argentina, England, Italy, and France had signed the cereal convention between them, and that Argentina had decreed an export price equivalent to about $1.53 per bushel for wheat, .745 cents for corn, and oats .456. That represents an advance over last week of about 22 cents on wheat, 20 cents on corn, and 9 cents for this month's delivery. As Argentina is lending the money to buy some $200,000,000 of produce there is a nice little Government profit in stopping the bear operation which has frightened Washington more than Buenos Aires, because Washington knew so little about what was passing in the southern half of the continent.

That the War Trade Board is more market wise than Congress would seem to be shown by the removal of the embargo on our exports of several food grains, including corn but not wheat, in time to anticipate deliveries from Argentina and Australia. Eighty-seven cargoes of these and other goods will be taken to Europe on an equal number of Dutch vessels simultaneously released from Government requisition. The markets reflected these facts, if the debates did not, even though the release of the ships and the goods cannot have the same effect as under normal conditions. Owing to difficulties of exchange, foreign purchases need Government assistance, and our sales are through Government agencies. The market price is not free, but the control is benevolent and intelligent.

Accordingly, it is possible to discuss the Government's billion-dollar operation in a lower key than before this week. We feel free to remark, as we did when the Government made its engagement, that it was not well arranged. The Government bound itself to buy, but did not bind the farmers to sell. They were free to avail themselves of any price above the Government's, but the Government could not call for deliveries at a price which might have made good its risk and loss if the market movement favored it. In effect Government sold a "put," but did not hedge in any degree with a "call." Now the price fixers are floundering about and depreciating both the counsel of Mr. HOOVER, who says that all the wheat will be needed to feed the starving, and of Mr. BARNES, President of the Federal Grain Corporation, who thinks that the last crop was handled well enough to justify like control through the next harvest. The talk at Washington is all about the division of assumed losses between producers and consumers. To put it another way, Congress is debating whether to cheapen bread by paying farmers' profits out of tax money, thus assuming a deficit.

It is announced that the loss on the Australian Government's wheat price guarantee was $68,000,000, larger in proportion than ours. England estimated its loss on the bread subsidy at $200,000,000, has realized a loss of $300,000,000, and faces one of a round half-billion, perhaps. Foreign buyers of our foodstuffs think they have a grievance against what Broomhall calls a guarantee of a fancy price for wheat. That is not fair. Foreign buyers would have suffered more if our market had not been depressed when the price was soaring, with the result of producing the comparative abundance which now threatens a loss that there is reluctance in taking responsibility for. The loss is not likely to be excessive, and the blame is not a fair reproach. Perhaps Australia, Argentina, Canada, and India may undersell our guaranteed price next harvest. Nobody knows. There is a large present and prospective supply, but there is no such presentation of the demand. How many bushels will be taken at what price depends to a large extent upon finance as well as upon supply and demand. The price of breadstuffs will depend upon our generosity with our credits as well as upon what the starving would rather promise to pay than to starve. There is more in the price of bread than dollars and cents, but the gentlemen at Washington who are most eloquent say less about humanity than about profit and loss, and show as much political as economic sense. There is a demand that the hog price fixers shall be prosecuted, and the cattlemen demand that Government shall pay them a better price than the meat trust, even though meat eaters would pay more if the trust were driven from the field. The price of cotton has not been regulated, and yet there is as much trouble about that as about meat and bread.

AMERICAN REDS.

By unanimous vote the Senate has instructed the subcommittee of the Judiciary Committee "to inquire concerning any efforts being made to propagate in this country the principles of any party exercising or claiming to exercise any authority in Russia, whether such efforts originate in this country or are framed from abroad, and further to inquire into any effort to incite the overthrow of the Government of this country or all government by force, or by the destruction of life or property or the general cessation of industry." A comprehensive inquiry that needed to be made.

It is impossible to understand why any sane American, not hired to encourage the Bolshevist work for the destruction of industry, communication, knowledge, civilization, should want to turn his prentice hand to general ruin. Generations of ignorance and tyranny have bred in Russia disciples dense and obfuscated enough to follow fanatically the subtle architects of Russian misery and oppression. In the United States exists every right of freedom and every opportunity for the redress of grievances. It is a prosperous, an enlightened, a just, an ever-bettering frame of society and government that our domestic incendiaries seek to destroy. They must import their principles of subversion. The pretended causes of complaint, the dreadful remedies, if destruction and cruelty are remedies, they must import. It is a foreign pest that these dabblers in fatal state medicines seek to acclimate here.

It will be interesting to know why they do it, who of them are paid and who work for love of general confusion; who are the amateurs of the drawing-room, toying with dynamite; who the reckless, sinister plotters for their own hand in hoped-for loot or power; respective parts of bigotry, weakheadedness, foreign sympathies, deluded ignorance, megalomania in this movement to set up anarchy in the United States. The proposed inquiry is to be searching. If there are genuine brothers and sisters of Bolshevism here, the unfolding of their plans and purposes and methods will be instructive.

Senator WEEKS is confident that "Bolshevism will have no force in this country once the evil is understood by the rank and file of Americans." They do understand it. They see its workings demonstrated in Russia. They have seen the Spartacan faction trying bloodily to force it upon Germany. The American people understand Bolshevism. They don't understand, how can anybody understand, who its American abettors are, how they hope to transfer it to this alien soil. The I. W. W. have imitated or anticipated Bolshevism feebly, but to the extent of their imagination and capability. Doubtless such I. W. W.'s as are now out of jail make good, active Bolshevists. The Judiciary Subcommittee will turn inside out the cerebral convolutions of the missionaries of eternal smash. Stranger skulls the world has never seen.

SLAVES AND SUPERMEN.

The noble soul of GERHART HAUPTMANN is affronted by the suspicion that 800,000 Germans are to be held as "slaves" in France to repair the wanton devastation of German armies. "For a realization of this idea," he says, "there is not the slightest moral or reasonable possibility, but it may be that morals and reason will be thrown overboard. Think of it—Germans, Christians, republicans, Europeans, to be the slaves of France." Against this infamy he invokes the memory of LAFAYETTE, the progress in the moral feeling of mankind which abolished slavery—until 1914.

Of course, for hundreds of thousands of allied prisoners of war to be slaves in Germany, forced by blows and starvation to work for their enemies, was a different sort of slavery. For hundreds of thousands of Belgian workingmen to be carried off from their homes and worked to death in German mines and factories was a different sort of slavery. For thousands of French and Belgian women to be forced to submit to the brutalities of the German troops was a different sort of slavery. These were "Christians, republicans, Europeans," but they were not Germans.

HAUPTMANN never protested against slavery when the masters were German and the slaves French. When ROMAIN ROLLAND, early in the war, called on him and the other "intellectual" leaders of Germany to express their opinion not of the attack on France, not of the invasion of Belgium, not even of the slaughter of noncombatants, but of the destruction of treasured monuments of the past, of "warfare against the human spirit," HAUPTMANN answered. And his answer was summed up in one of its contemptuous phrases—"War is war." We Germans are going to battle with HOMER, NIETZSCHE, SCHOPENHAUER, or the Bible in every soldier's knapsack; our victory means the independence of Europe, and the end justifies the means.

At that time we could suppose that HAUPTMANN, like the ninety-three professors, might have been terrorized by the military power, that he dared not speak his own mind. Nothing prevents him today from saying what he thinks, and it appears that he thinks that it is an excellent thing to force innocent French and Belgians to be slaves in Germany, but an outrage to compel German soldiers to repair the damage that they have done. His views might be studied with profit by those among us who have lately begun to praise the Germans and condemn the French.

THE DEMOTED INSPECTOR.

What were the real unavowed controlling reasons for relieving Police Inspector "Honest DAN" COSTIGAN from his post as chief of the First Inspection District, reducing his rank to that of Captain and putting him in command of the Beach Street Station with mightily inferior duties and opportunities for diminishing important vice and crime, work that he has performed with striking fearlessness, integrity, and success in one way and another for nearly a generation? Commissioner ENRIGHT says orphically or triflingly that there was one more Inspector than the budget allowed, "and that is one of the reasons why I have reduced COSTIGAN."

Mr. COSTIGAN is noted for his independence. The work of his Vice Squad in repressing gambling, bookmaking, and various other thriving illegal and demoralizing trades was excellent and memorable—and the squad was scattered. He has had a prominent part in bringing to justice some great criminals. He has made enemies whose hatred is an honor. What powerful enemies in the municipal administration or elsewhere have succeeded in humiliating him and lessening public confidence in the integrity and effectiveness of the police force at a time when slackened discipline, the reaction against authority, the contagion of disorder left by the war, the sudden throwing out of employment of restless spirits used to high wages, make the protection of property and life more difficult than ever in New York?

Commissioner ENRIGHT has shown a vigor and efficiency that were hardly expected of him, not from personal reasons, but because the mysterious intrigues and political influences that had so frequent an ill effect upon police management in the past were sure to reappear. It cannot be pleasant for him to know that the gamblers and bookmakers are chuckling over the demotion of Inspector COSTIGAN. People cannot help asking themselves why a police officer believed to be specially competent and honest reaps punishment, not reward, from the masters of the Police Department.

For his own sake, for the reputation of the department, to prevent the growth in it of the feeling that promotions and demotions are made for other causes than good or ill performance of police duties, Commissioner ENRIGHT should explain thoroughly the causes of Inspector COSTIGAN's reduction. If it was justified, let the fact be known. If it was not justified, the responsibility should be fixed. The air of unreality in the Commissioner's unexplaining explanation is irritating, and, unless replaced by one that really explains, must lead the public to the most unhappy theories.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Complaints in great numbers are reaching this office, and other newspaper offices, presumably, from near relatives by blood or marriage of American soldiers abroad, and the burden of these complaints is not only that nothing has been heard from these men for weeks, and sometimes for several months, but that repeated applications for information addressed to the War Department bring no replies of any kind.

These cases probably are not very numerous as compared with the whole number of men who have been, or even with that of those who still are, in the American armies. They form, however, a considerable group, and each of the people in it has sympathetic friends to whom what constitutes a real and legitimate grievance against the Government has been rehearsed. The result is a widespread feeling that the officials in Washington either are incompetent to perform what the relatives and their friends rightly think is an important duty, or else that those officials are indifferent to the perpetuation of cruel anxieties which they could calm if they chose to take the trouble to do it.

Something of incompetence there doubtless is, and something of indifference as well, but it would be only fair for those who feel sure that much of both exists to remember the difficulties created by the movements of millions of men in a foreign land, 3,000 miles away, and that the War Department has had on its hands many other tasks besides the one of supplying civilians with information about individual soldiers, and that not a few of those other tasks ranked in importance above that one.

A Special Bureau Is Needed.

Even after all due allowance has been made for both the difficulties and the impossibilities that work against keeping the friends of soldiers constantly or promptly informed as to where the soldiers are, and in what state of health, there remains adequate basis for complaint and resentment in the fact that the War Department so often refuses, or at any rate fails, to give any indication of even trying to get the desired information. That letters remain unanswered is not proof, of course, that no action has been taken on them, but when the action, if taken, does not produce results within a week or two, it would be only common kindness for the department to notify the anxious wife or parent of what had been done, with an assurance, as confident as the circumstances warranted, that the desired news would soon be obtained.

This would involve the writing of a good many letters, but the cost would be small, as costs go these days, and if a special bureau were created to attend to this matter and nothing else the ill feeling now in existence could soon be removed or reduced to a minimum. The bureau should have a simple name that all could understand, and, with the advertising the newspapers would gladly give such an agency, the public would soon know exactly where to apply for the information it wants and ought to have.

That the War Department already has and uses facilities for doing work of this sort is true, but obviously it is not sufficiently energetic and systematic in the performance of the task, and—it lets too many letters and telegrams go too long without replies.

Highway Robbery Reviving.

It is not to be supposed that our Police Commissioner and his subordinates of various ranks have failed to notice the astonishing activities of the over-enterprising persons who suddenly have gained fame as "the bandits in the green car." But such efforts as are making for the apprehension of these thoroughly modernized Turpins have had no results at the moment of present writing, and recent events in this vicinity inspire less of belief than of hope that the capture of the robbers is any nearer at hand than is that of the perpetrators of several most abominable murders recently committed in the metropolitan district.

So conspicuous is the vehicle used by these bandits, and so hard is it to hide for long any automobile in constant use, that the catching of them would be easy—in a book—for a Sherlock Holmes, and ought not to be impossible for detectives with something less than his genius for deduction. The details of these robberies point toward amateur criminals rather than at professionals, and their success seems to be due rather to audacity than to skill—the audacity being a good deal helped, to be sure, by their luck, as yet, in not encountering anybody made of heroic stuff and willing to take a chance rather than submit to wrong.

The docility shown by all the selected victims has had its reward—they are all alive, and that is certainly something, especially from their own point of view. But their meekness is likely to encourage other amateurs to take up an industry seemingly safe as well as profitable, and combining with those attractive qualities an element of the romantic as romance used to be presented in dime novels and now is offered by the movies to delighted multitudes who learn their manners and morals from the illuminated screen.

Quarreling Over a Trifle.

There seems to be some misunderstanding as to what it is in the way of hours, and especially of time for luncheon, that the British strikers are demanding. None of the employers is insisting that the men shall work for eight hours continuously, and there is no objection to the taking of a half hour, or even of a whole one, for rest and food. What is demanded by the men is that the luncheon recess shall be taken out of the eight hours, at the cost of the employing corporation—to get eight-hour pay, that is, for a day of seven or seven and a half hours, with an incidental chance to make a little overtime if eight hours of work be completed.

The wish to do this is comprehensible enough, but from a distance it does not seem quite reasonable. Still less does it seem sufficiently important to justify, or even to explain, strikes that disorganize the whole industry of a country.

GALLANT LITTLE WALES.

(To the great Welshman, David Lloyd George.)

When foe of England haughtily
Her liberty assails,
Throughout her realm on land and sea
One single will prevails:
To rally to the Mother's side,
To fight her fight with love and pride;
And none obeys with swifter stride
Than loyal little Wales.

From Snowden's towering crags they come,
From fair Llangollen's vales,
From Pembroke's busy whir and hum,
That mock Caermarthen's gales.
Where shrieking shrapnel cleaves the sky,
And where the bullets thickest fly,
'Tis there you'll hear the battle-cry
And battle songs of Wales.

When night unrolls her sable screen,
The dead men tell no tales,
And ghostly silence stalks 'til e'en,
The stoutest spirit quails.
Ah! then from out the gloom there floats
A harmony of silver notes
Upsoaring from a hundred throats—
The melodies of Wales!

The singers sleep where lilies bloom,
Far off from Cambria's dales;
But o'er each well-beloved tomb
There blow the scented gales
That waft from Cambria's heathered hills,
Her wooded glens, her rocks and rills,
All fragrant with the daffodils
Of gallant little Wales.

DRY MEN DRAFTING A BILL FOR ALBANY

Committee Is Preparing a Measure to Carry Out Federal Prohibition Amendment.

DRUGGISTS FACE PROBLEM

Restrictions on Use of Alcohol, They Say, May Cause Increase in Prices to Consumers.

William H. Anderson, New York State Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, said yesterday that the bill which the league would support to carry out in this State the Federal prohibition amendment would be introduced in the Legislature at Albany on Monday night. The work of drafting the bill, Mr. Anderson said, was in the hands of a committee of lawyers and men of affairs, and the final draft would be completed on Friday or Saturday.

Mr. Anderson denied the report from Albany that the league favored an enforcement law which would declare that any liquid containing more than one-half of one per cent. of alcohol was an intoxicating liquor.

"What Mr. Beattie said in Albany," Mr. Anderson continued, "was that the United States Government collected internal revenue on all liquids containing more than one-half of 1 per cent. of alcohol. I don't want to say at this time what percentage of alcohol the league believes should be held to be intoxicating."

If the law passed by the Legislature for the enforcement of the Federal amendment specifies that any liquid containing a very low percentage of alcohol is an intoxicating liquor, manufacturing chemists, druggists, and manufacturers of perfumes and patent and proprietary medicines will be affected. Nearly every proprietary and patent medicine, it was said yesterday, contained anywhere from 8 to 38 per cent. of alcohol and many perfumes contained as high as 93 per cent. of alcohol. Moreover, there were few drugs, it was said, that did not require a considerable percentage of alcohol to dispense and preserve them.

"If," said one druggist, "we are compelled by a law passed at Albany for the enforcement of the Federal Prohibition amendment to reduce materially the amount of alcohol now used in the compounding of drugs the drug business will be hard hit. What is more, consumers will be obliged to pay from 100 to 1,000 per cent. more for their drugs. Without the alcohol preservative no druggist will lay in large stocks. That will mean that his goods will cost him more and the consumer will pay the increase.

"All drugs containing syrups must contain enough alcohol to preserve them, else they will spoil in two or three weeks. It might be contended that the druggists themselves might buy the bases of the drugs and dispense them in whatever quantity was ordered. There are few druggists in these days who could do that if they wanted to, and the suggestion is entirely impractical anyway."

There was a report in Brooklyn yesterday that Long Island brewers were making plans after the Federal amendment became operative on Jan. 16, 1920, to manufacture beer containing 2 per cent. of alcohol and put the burden of proof on the Government that such a beverage was intoxicating. No confirmation of the report was obtainable.

Regarding the report that he had given an opinion to the effect that the Federal Prohibition amendment is unconstitutional and that he had been retained to attack the amendment, Charles E. Hughes issued the following statement yesterday afternoon:

"In view of what has been published I think that I ought to say that there is no truth in the statement that I have given an opinion to the effect that the prohibition amendment is unconstitutional. I have given no opinion upon the subject. There is also no truth in the report that I have been retained to assail the amendment. I have no connection with the matter."

WANTS ROOSEVELT STORIES

Permanent Memorial Committee Will Publish a Volume of Them.

An appeal to friends and admirers of the late Colonel Theodore Roosevelt for stories and anecdotes concerning him was issued yesterday by the special committee appointed by the Roosevelt Permanent Memorial National Committee to collect and edit characteristic incidents and episodes in his life. Here is the appeal, which was issued from the national headquarters of the committee:

> In pursuance of the plan to collect and publish a memorial volume of anecdotes concerning Theodore Roosevelt the undersigned committee appointed by the Roosevelt Permanent Memorial National Committee hereby makes an appeal for voluntary contributions of brief characteristic personal stories of Roosevelt. Now, at a time when his many friends are thinking of him, when memorial meetings are being held, a harvest of interesting and valuable material can be gathered and preserved. It seems important that this material now so widely scattered and so unshaped should be brought together, classified, and published in a volume somewhat like "Stories of Lincoln."
> Roosevelt touched life at so many points and with such zest and humor that the committee feels confident of a swift and generous response, and the volume, which will be a most valuable historical record, will be published later under the auspices of the committee. The proceeds of its sale will be used to advance the project of a permanent memorial monument.
>
> The stories should be brief, and each should embody a single picture or episode of Roosevelt's life. They should be sent to Hamlin Garland, Roosevelt Permanent Memorial National Committee, Room 291, 1 Madison Avenue, New York City. All manuscripts not available will be returned to their writers on request.

In making public the appeal the committee announced that it was being sent to the leading newspapers in the United States and to publications in South America and Europe. Announcement was also made yesterday that the largest contribution received thus far by the committee was from Julius Holz, publisher of the New Yorker Herold, a German language newspaper. Mr. Holz, who donated $100, was a close friend of Colonel Roosevelt, it was said, and frequently visited the former President while he was ill in Roosevelt Hospital.

Two services in memory of Colonel Roosevelt will be held in Trinity Church on Sunday, one in the morning at 11 o'clock and the other in the afternoon at 4. The service in the afternoon will be under the auspices of the American Defense Society, of which Colonel Roosevelt was Honorary President. His last message on our duty after the war was addressed to this organization. Major Gen. Leonard Wood has sent a letter to Dr. Manning to be read at this service.

ART NOTES.

American Water Color Society and Civic Club Exhibitions.

The fifty-second annual exhibition of the American Water Color Society opened yesterday with a private view in the galleries of the National Arts Club. The Alexander M. Hudnut prize of $200 went to Childe Hassam's "Mt. Beacon from Broadway, Newburgh," a beautiful composition, strong in color, and with the vitality of light and air characteristic of Mr. Hassam's work, whatever the medium. This picture is one of a group of several by the same artist holding a place of honor in the exhibition and dignifying it by their exceptionally fine quality. The Hudson River and its banks form a very difficult subject in art, and many a good painter has been shipwrecked in the attempt to translate into pictorial terms the stately dignity of the Highlands. That Mr. Hassam has succeeded was perhaps to be expected, considering his discipline and his selective vision, but the painter, nourished on impressionism as he has been since the receptive days of his student period, is not as adequately prepared as the disciples of older schools to attack monumental material. It shows the sturdy substance of Mr. Hassams' talent that, with his special interest in the problems of atmosphere and the shimmering garment of light that drapes all natural forms, he has rendered impressively and vigorously the great bulk of the hills bordering the noble river, their mighty structure, and the volume and force of the river's flow as it passes endlessly by them.

The exhibition includes many other agreeable items. Among a number of pictures by Felicie Waldo Howell her "Public Library" is the best, although a short memory finds it difficult to reconcile the date, 1919, with the snowy environment. Let us hope, not prophesy. Tony Nell's pushcart crowd is handled more expertly than her mother and child group, which is empty rather than synthetic. In the pushcart group the bulbous back of the woman in the foreground is admirably realized, and the animated gestures and poses of the other figures are lifelike and amusing. Among the architectural subjects Florence Robinson's doorway is notable for its excellent draftsmanship, and Alice Schille's two pictures of children are more than usually defined and coherent while keeping the freedom of touch characteristic of the artist.

Martha Ryther is a newcomer in this gallery, and shows a decorative composition that is somewhat less knowing than most of her designs, the figures having a scattered look of having been put in without reference to the unity of the whole. F. Luis Mora shows one of his street car scenes, interesting as illustration but not quite convincing as an effect of light. Ray Brown's method of making the white ground do its full share of the work in building up his composition is effectively shown in two brilliant coast scenes. Other pictures that claimed more than passing notice were difficult to identify on the occasion of the press view, owing to the customary sensitive modesty of the catalogues in keeping themselves out of the way. The exhibition closes Feb. 28.

The Civic Club Exhibition.

The Civic Club, at 14 West Twelfth Street, announces a free exhibition of drawings, etchings, lithographs, and water colors by a representative group of New York artists. Among those exhibiting are George Bellows, Cornelia Barns, Jerome Myers, William Auerbach-Levy, Boardman Robinson, John Sloan, Maurice Sterne, and William Zorach.

The Civic Club has devoted the use of the art gallery, formerly that of the Salmagundi Club, to furthering the aesthetic side of civic life in New York without any thought of material benefit. The pictures in the present exhibit were selected by the artists themselves as their favorites for the occasion.

The exhibition, just opened, will continue until Feb. 24.

Paintings by A. Vincent Tack.

At the Kraushaar Galleries a retrospective exhibition of the work of Augustus Vincent Tack is open until the fifteenth of this month. One of the earliest paintings is a girl's head, in sallow browns and yellows, with a broad fluent brushwork, very charming in its quiet tone and sympathetic characterization.

The middle period is represented by a romantic group in picturesque costumes, rich in color and rather artificial in lighting, the whole picture looking as though it might have been painted from characters in a Sir Henry Irving version of a Shakespearean play.

Through this phase the artist worked toward a more brilliant and decorative style. The "Palace of Enchantment," an overmantel for a room which he has decorated in Greenwich House, is a fine example of his latest manner.

OWE ROADS $381,000,000.

Director General Hines Continues Testimony Before Senate Committee

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—The Government still owes the railroads about $381,000,000 for rental, Director General Hines told the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee today. Senator Kellogg remarked on the fact that the Railroad Administration was asking Congress for an additional appropriation of $750,000,000, "for all purposes, including settling up 1918 accounts," as Mr. Hines explained, this amount being in addition to the $500,000,000 revolving fund. Mr. Hines explained that the actual loss to the Government would be "only about $200,000,000."

"What is the cause of the sickness of the roads? Is it a question of finances or inability to operate profitably?" asked Senator Underwood of Alabama.

"I should say it is largely a question of finance, but there are questions of operating economies," Mr. Hines answered.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5, (Associated Press.)—In his testimony today Director General Hines expressed the opinion that a permanent solution of the railroad problem could not be found without a reorganization of railroad companies on the basis of invested capital, or without consolidations to eliminate the wide difference between the strength of various roads. If this were not done, he said, one road would make excess profits with the same prescribed rates on which a weaker line would starve. The public and labor, he feared, would always feel suspicion of "watered capital," if this reorganization were not effected.

PLAN NEW HARBOR TREATY.

New York Commission Named to Act with New Jersey Body.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 5.—New York State took steps today to remake with New Jersey the New York harbor treaty to permit development of the port. Following a conference with Governor Smith, legislative leaders succeeded in putting through the Assembly a resolution naming the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, and various Senators and Assemblymen as a commission to meet a similar legislative body representing New Jersey in the near future.

The harbor developments will call for expenditures amounting to millions of dollars and tentative plans will provide for defining a harbor zone within which the new board will have power to take or buy all property necessary to the improvement. Power also will be given the board to issue bonds to cover the cost of acquiring such property and of developing it. The West Side Improvement and the Brooklyn Marginal Railroad, according to the plans, may be taken over by the board, but this has not yet been determined.

The new treaty when agreed upon will have to come before the Legislature and be acted upon before it can become operative, even after Congressional approval.

19 STAND BY JONAS AND QUIT GREETERS

Protest Against Hearst Dictation to Brooklyn Welcoming Committee.

EXPECT OTHERS TO FOLLOW

Flushing Asks Mayor's Committee to Return Funds Collected There.

Ten members of the sub-committee on Permanent Memorial for American Soldiers Who Perished in the War yesterday resigned in a body from the Brooklyn Victory Celebration Committee, in protest against the efforts of supporters of William Randolph Hearst, a member of the Mayor's Committee, to dictate the course of Nathan S. Jonas, the Chairman, and other members of the Executive Committee. Nine other members of the General Committee also sent their resignations to Borough President Reigelmann, and Daniel Lipsky, Chairman of the committee, said that scores of other letters of resignations from members were in the mails.

A letter signed by all the members of the Memorial Committee except Edward M. Bassett, the former Public Service Commissioner, who was absent in Buffalo, was sent to Borough President Reigelmann after a meeting yeterday. Those who signed it were Frederick B. Pratt, Alferd T. White, Edward C. Blum, A. Augustus Healy, A. C. Bedford, William Hamlin Childs, Andrew D. Baird, Herbert K. Twitchell, Frank L. Babbitt, and James H. Post, who was Chairman of the meeting in the Brooklyn Academy of Music last week, when the Hearst adherents tried to prevent James M. Beck from fulfilling the request of the Victory Committee to deliver an address.

"We regret deeply that we are now constrained to resign," said the joint letter, "but we feel unwilling to remain as members of any committee where freedom of action is impossible. Enough funds have already been contributed to insure a proper welcome by Brooklyn to our returning soldiers, sailors, and marines, and we feel, therefore, that no embarrassment need be caused in the welcome home celebration by our resignations.

"To our minds the provision of a permanent memorial is quite distinct from the welcome home celebration, and is a subject requiring prolonged study and very careful consideration, which can best be attained if put in charge of a special committee independent of the general committee and clothed with full powers."

Nine Quit Committee.

The Honorary Vice-Presidents who resigned from the general committee yesterday in protest against the Hearst influence were Dr. Lewis S. Pilcher, department commander of the G. A. R. for this State, and Major William Francis Campbell, who has just returned from service overseas. The other resignations were from Herbert F. Gunnison of The Brooklyn Eagle, Theodore Thonet, Past Grand Regent of the Royal Arcanum in this State; D. B. Seaver, a merchant; Mrs. Howard S. Hadden, Herbert E. Muller, Frank Day Tuttle and R. Navarro, making a total of nineteen resignations reported during the day.

Approval of the action of Chairman Jonas in resigning when Borough President Reigelmann and the Hearst sympathizers sought to cause the withdrawal of the invitation to Mr. Beck to speak at the Academy meeting was expressed yesterday by Bishop Frederick Burgess of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of Long Island. He is a member of the committee, but said yesterday he had not decided to resign. Several other members of the committee expressed approval of the protest against attempts to influence the committee and said they were considering sending in their resignations.

A different manner of protesting against the membership of William Randolph Hearst on the Mayor's Committee of Welcome to the homecoming troops was taken yesterday by the Community Welcome Home Committee of Flushing, L. I. Through its Chairman, William T. Yale, who was also Chairman of Local Exemption Board 185 under the operation of the selective draft law, the committee requested the Mayor's Committee to return all money collected in Flushing by the members of the Police Department.

Chairman Yale said it was apparent to him that the money collected in Flushing and other parts of the city was to be used in welcoming the Manhattan soldiers, leaving Flushing to organize a separate welcome if she wished to give her soldiers an adequate greeting. If the Mayor's Committee gives up the money it is to be supplemented by additional subscriptions and used in a Flushing celebration. It is planned also to decorate the ferry slip at Long Island City, where many of the soldiers are landed on their way to the Long Island camps.

TRANSIT JOB FOR PARSONS.

Asked by Gov. Smith to Finish New York Subways, It Is Said.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 5.—It was reported here tonight that Governor Smith had sent a cable message to William Barclay Parsons, who at present is a Major General with the American Expeditionary Forces in France, where he has been engaged in the construction of military railroads, asking him to undertake the task of completing the unfinished portions of New York City's dual subway system.

It was after Governor Smith had conferred with Senator Thompson that this report began to circulate. Senator Thompson is head of the Senate Committee on Public Utilities, which has charge of pending legislation to reorganize the public Service Commission, and to place under separate supervision the construction of subways and the regulation of public service operations in New York City, which, under the present law, are performed by the Public Service Commission for the First District.

About 25 per cent. of the work on the New York subways remains to be completed, involving the letting of contracts aggregating some $50,000,000. This task would fall to Major Gen. Parsons should he accept.

After today's hearing on the public service bills a compromise measure framed to meet Republican objections is being considered. This would provide for a three-headed commission in New York City, two Commissioners to exercise quasi judicial and regulatory functions and the third to be known as Commissioner of Rapid Transit Construction. The bill would provide for practically complete separation of construction and regulation of rapid transit operations.

REVENUE BILL READY.

Its Adoption to be Moved by Kitchin in House This Week.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Copies of the text of the new War Revenue bill will probably be available tomorrow morning, as the final draft has been sent to the Government Printer.

It is the understanding that Representative Kitchin will move the adoption of the law in the House Friday or Saturday. Action on the bill may be asked in the Senate Saturday, or early next week.

It is reported that the bill may raise a little more than the $6,000,000,000 asked by the Secretary of the Treasury. One estimate is that the yield will be about $300,000,000 above the $5,978,466,000 which the Senate Committee figured would be raised before the conferees incorporated several compromise provisions in the final draft.

NEUTRAL NATIONS TO GET MORE GOODS

Allies Lift Embargo on Many More Commodities to Holland and Scandinavia.

VESSELS ALSO RELEASED

All Guarantees Against Re-export to Germany, However, to Continue in Effect.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—As a result of negotiations conducted at Paris, Norway, Sweden, Holland, and Denmark are to be permitted to import increased quantities of essential commodities from the victorious associated nations, and a large part of the 910,079 tons of Danish, Swedish, and Norwegian shipping now under charter to the Shipping Board is to be returned.

Simultaneous announcements of the outcome of the negotiations were made tonight by the War Trade Board and the Shipping Board. Under the agreement, the four Northern European neutrals will be allowed to increase materially their imports of cotton, wool, and leather and their manufactures as well as petroleum and its products, edible and inedible animal and vegetable oils, tobacco, and coffee.

The Shipping Board announced its readiness immediately to begin releasing to the Scandinavian Governments the shipping now under charter, or to cancel the contracts and return the vessels direct to their owners. It was specified, however, that such vessels as might be required for the use of the Commission for Relief in Belgium of European civilian relief or of the Governments associated with the United States in the war would be retained until their contracts expired.

Dutch ships seized by the United States already are being released as rapidly as their present voyages or commitments are completed, and the same procedure will be followed with respect to the other ships.

There are now under the Shipping Board control 81 Danish ships of 373,246 deadweight tons, 61 Norwegian ships of 278,405 deadweight tons, 46 Norwegian sailing ships of 118,427 tons, and 31 Swedish steamers of 144,011 tons.

The War Trade Board called attention to the fact that the limits as to quantity of imports by the northern neutrals of many commodities, including clothing, machinery, and rubber tires, had been entirely removed some time ago, and said that licenses to export those commodities as well as cotton, wool, leather and the others on the list made public tonight would be drafted freely to American exporters. The new arrangement provides, however, that all guarantees against re-exportation of the commodities to enemy countries are to be strictly enforced.

Lynch-Riegelmann.

The marriage of Charles E. Lynch, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Lynch of St. Mark's Avenue, Brooklyn, and Miss Ethel Riegelmann, a niece of Borough President Edward Riegelmann, and daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth Riegelmann of Montclair, N. J., took place last evening at the Hotel St. George, Brooklyn. The Rev. Father Fitzgerald of St. Gregory's Roman Catholic Church, officiated, and Borough President Riegelmann gave the bride in marriage. Harold FitzPatrick was the best man and Miss Dora Gibbs of Montclair was the maid of honor. The bridegroom is the Vice President of the Charles E. Lynch Shoe Manufacturing Company of Poughkeepsie, N. Y. Mrs. Lynch is a lawyer, and at the time she was admitted to the bar was the youngest woman lawyer in the city.

Carlie Richard Wagner, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis C. Wagner of 310 West Eighty-sixth Street, and Miss Virginia Eason Heckman, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Heckman of 250 West 104th Street, were married last evening at the Plaza, and a dinner and dancing followed. Miss Eleanor M. Heckman was the maid of honor and John Orth was the best man. Lieutenant Wagner is transport officer on the Celtic.

WOOD AS MAGAZINE WRITER.

To Contribute Articles to Metropolitan, But Not as an Editor.

In reply to a report that General Leonard Wood was to become contributing editor to the Metropolitan Magazine, in succession to Theodore Roosevelt, Henry J. Whigham, editor of the Metropolitan, said last night that General Wood was to contribute an article to the issue of April 8. This will probably be followed by other articles, but Mr. Whigham said that he wanted it understood that the General was not becoming an editor, nor was he to hold a place on the regular staff.

The contributions of General Wood would be on national questions, Mr. Whigham said, and he understood that the first article would deal with the subject of national service. The whole matter was, he said, quite indefinite, and he could not say what other articles the General would write, or how often.

'HOBEY' BAKER IS HONORED

Princeton Holds Memorial Service for Famous Athlete.

PRINCETON, N. J., Feb. 5.—A warm tribute to Captain "Hobey" Baker, the Princeton athlete recently killed, was paid by President John G. Hibben of Princeton University at memorial services here today. Six aviators, sent by the War Department, acted as a guard of honor, and a large number of students and visitors atttended the services, which were held in Trinity Church.

"The deep feeling of our hearts today finds but poor expression in words for our admiration and love for Hobart Baker," said Dr. Hibben. "Ever since he entered the university he has been the pride of Princeton. We had hoped soon to welcome him home with his honors and his laurels, and it was with a passion of grief that the great company of his friends heard of his death. At the close of his university career he had not only the reputation of a gallant athlete, but the fair record of a conscientious and consistent devotion to the daily tasks connected with his academic work."

Captain Baker was killed in an airplane accident on Dec. 21.

ALFRED NOYES VERY ILL.

English Poet Has Influenza—Vassar Theatre Dedication Postponed.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Feb. 5.—Postponement of dedication of the new students' indoor theatre at Vassar College tonight, with which Alfred Noyes was to have been the speaker, was coupled with the announcement by President Henry N. MacCracken that the celebrated English poet is seriously ill with influenza at Princeton. The dedication will take place Feb. 15.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Feb. 5.—The authorities of Princeton University know nothing of Alfred Noyes's illness.

Gould, General and Mrs. T. Coleman du Pont, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dana Gibson are among the patrons and patronesses.

Spanish Minister of Finance Dead.

MADRID, Feb. 5.—Fermin Calbeton y Planchon, Minister of Finance in the Spanish Cabinet is dead.

Senor Calbeton became Minister of Finance in the Cabinet formed by Count Romanones on Dec. 6, 1918. He had formerly been Minister of Public Works, and for several years was Spanish Ambassador to the Vatican. He presented his credentials to the Pope Feb. 5, 1913, the post having been vacant since the Summer of 1910, when the Ambassador to the Holy See was withdrawn because of the strained relations between the Vatican and the Spanish Government.

William Michael Rossetti, Author.

LONDON, Feb. 5.—William Michael Rossetti, the author, died here today.

William Michael Rossetti was born on Sept. 25, 1829, the son of Gabriel Rossetti, author and Professor of Italian in King's College, London, and Frances Mary Lavinia Rossetti. He was educated at King's College and entered the Excise Office in 1845. From 1869 to 1894 he was Assistant Secretary of the Board of Inland Revenue. In 1874 he married Miss Emma Lucy Brown, daughter of the painter, Ford Madox Brown, and herself an author and painter.

Mr. Rossetti was the author of a number of biographical works on famous poets and was the editor of many books of poems, among them those of Shelley, Blake, and Dante, and Christina Rossetti.

Dr. Kemp Plummer Battle.

RALEIGH, N. C., Feb. 5.—Dr. Kemp Plummer Battle, President of the University of North Carolina from 1878 to 1891 and professor emeritus of history at the institution since 1907, died yesterday at his home in this city at the age of 87. Dr. Battle, who was educated at the University of North Carolina and admitted to the bar in 1845, was a member of the secession convention of North Carolina in 1861, State Treasurer 1866 to 1868. His present term as trustee of the university would have expired in 1923. He was the author of several legal and historical books.

Joseph W. Jacobs.

Joseph W. Jacobs, for the last sixteen years General Manager and Treasurer for Lee and J. J. Shubert, theatrical producers, died yesterday afternoon of pneumonia at his apartment in the Hotel Albemarle, 203 West Fifty-fourth Street. Mr. Jacobs was born in Syracuse 57 years ago and had been connected with theatrical interests all his life. He is survived by a brother. The funeral will be held at the Campbell Funeral Church, Broadway and Sixty-sixth Street, this afternoon. The body will be taken to Syracuse for burial.

Lawrence F. Carroll.

Lawrence F. Carroll, Warden of the Raymond Street Jail in Brooklyn, died Tuesday night at his home, 269 Bedford Avenue, that borough, of heart disease. Mr. Carroll was 70 years old and the father of State Senator Daniel J. Carroll. He was chief clerk of the Williamsburg Police Court from 1900 to 1908. In 1909 he was appointed State Tax Collector, and seven years later became Deputy Warden of Raymond Street Jail. A year ago he succeeded Matthew Maher as Warden.

The Rev. David Bains-Griffiths.

The Rev. David Bains-Griffiths, for fourteen years minister of the Edgehill Church in Spuyten Duyvil, died recently in a Liverpool hospital as the result of a surgical operation. He was visiting Great Britain on a mission to present the moral aims of the war. Mr. Bains-Griffiths was born in Wales in 1868 and came to the United States in 1886. He received his Bachelor of Arts degree from the Kansas City University and his Master's degree from Harvard. He was the author of several books.

RUDOLPH ARONSON, COMPOSER, DEAD

Built the Casino Theatre, and Under His Management "Erminie" Had Its Long Run.

AUTHOR OF 'SWEET SIXTEEN'

His Musical Writings Consist of 150 Works, Including Scores of Orchestral Pieces.

Rudolph Aronson, for many years prominent as a theatrical manager and composer, who was the originator and builder of the Casino Theatre, Thirty-ninth Street and Broadway, and its first manager, died Tuesday night at the home of his sisters, the Misses Aronson, 233 West 107th Street. Mr. Aronson had been ill since last July and hope for his recovery was abandoned some days ago.

Mr. Aronson was born in New York City 61 years ago and was educated here and abroad. While he began his theatrical career as manager of the Metropolitan Concert Hall, which was on the site of the present Broadway Theatre, it was the building of the Casino Theatre which brought Mr. Aronson prominently to the attention of the public and the theatrical world as a manager and producer of musical entertainments. On this theatre he operated the first roof garden in America. The Casino became the recognized home of light and comic opera in New York, and it was there, under his management, that "Erminie" was produced and had a record run of 1,200 performances. Under his management such stars as Lillian Russell, Francis Wilson, De Wolf Hopper, and Jefferson de Angelis first attained popularity. Mr. Aronson was manager of the Casino for sixteen years and had also managed the Bijou Theatre. A famous incident was that of the rival productions of Mascagni's "Cavalleria Rusticana" in New York on Oct. 1, 1891, by Aronson at the Casino in the afternoon, and in the evening of the same day, at another house, by Oscar Hammerstein.

Mr. Aronson had composed more than 150 musical works, including scores of orchestral pieces and a few light operas. He composed "Sweet Sixteen" and was the author of two marches named for Presidents Roosevelt and Taft, and he recently completed a Victory march.

He was at one time proprietor of the Hotel Metropole, this city, and in August, 1910, on his return from a visit to Porto Rico, he announced the formation of the Porto Rico Hotels and Springs and Development Company, capitalized at $1,000,000, which was organized to build modern hotels in five of the principal cities of the island. He was President of the company. He went to California in 1915 and returning a year later announced that he was arranging to build a Casino in Los Angeles. But most of his time in recent years had been devoted to composing.

HAL CHASE IS FOUND NOT GUILTY BY HEYDLER

CHASE IS CLEARED OF BETTING CHARGE

Cincinnati First Baseman Found Not Guilty of Making Wagers on Games.

MAY COME TO NEW YORK

Manager McGraw on Way to Cincinnati to Complete Deal—Much Hearsay Testimony.

Hal Chase, the Cincinnati first baseman, charged with gambling on baseball games, was exonerated yesterday by President John A. Heydler of the National League. The hearing was held at a secret session last week, when evidence was submitted from Manager Mathewson, three of the Cincinnati players, and Manager McGraw and Pol Perritt of the Giants. This evidence all proved to be more or less hearsay, and, after giving the matter careful consideration, President Heydler ruled that Chase was not guilty.

The player was not reprimanded, but President Heydler gave a hint of what would happen to players in the future who are found guilty of betting on games. Mr. Heydler said: "Any player who, during my term as President of the National League, is shown to have any interest in a wager on any games played in the league, whether he bets on his club or against it, or whether he takes part in the game or not, will be promptly expelled from the National League. Betting by players will not be tolerated."

Because of Chase's indifferent playing last season in Cincinnati and because of the discord he caused among the players, he will not be taken back by the Reds. Manager McGraw of the Giants is now on his way to Cincinnati and it is believed that while he is there he will make a deal whereby Chase will come to the Giants. It is believed that Chase will come to New York as part of the transaction whereby Pat Moran went to the Reds as manager. Before the deal is settled it is likely that Mathewson may be retained by the Giants to coach the pitchers and act as McGraw's first assistant.

In announcing his finding in the case yesterday, President Heydler said that he believed that the Cincinnati Club has been justified in bringing the charges even if they hadn't been substantiated. He said that last season there were so many rumors and so much gossip in Cincinnati that an investigation was necessary. There had been so much careless talk by Chase himself and by others that an atmosphere of distrust was created among his team mates.

Chase was suspended last August by Manager Mathewson, and it now develops that the charges which were brought against the player were of a general nature, alleging violation of Rule No. 40 of the league constitution, which relates to "Crookedness and its penalties." A short time after Chase was suspended he brought suit against the Cincinnati Club to recover his salary. This amounts to something like $1,600, and it is understood that Chase's attorneys will not push this case against the Redland Club.

Mr. Heydler said that he had made a careful effort to corroborate the testimony which was given at the hearing, but it was of such a general character that it was not convincing. A number of assertions were made against Chase which were not substantiated.

Mr. Heydler said that Chase did not take baseball or anything else seriously, and many of the things he says in joking spirit are construed otherwise. President Heydler said that Chase made an excellent witness. He said that as far as betting was concerned he bet on only two ball games since he has been connected with the sport. Once he bet on a post series game between Cincinnati and Cleveland, and he also bet on one game at the Polo Grounds when he was a spectator in the grand stand.

The President of the National League said that Chase, having been exonerated of the charges against him, was entitled to start again with a clean slate, and deserved fair treatment. President Heydler's finding in the case is as follows:

"This matter comes before me as President of the National League on the complaint of the Cincinnati Club against Hal Chase, a player under contract with that club for the season of 1918. When the charges were filed I was acting President of the National League, and objection was made to the hearing of the evidence until the formal election of a President. This, with an adjournment granted at the request of the player's attorneys, postponed the hearing to Jan. 30, 1919, on which date all testimony offered was heard. The player appeared in person and by his attorneys. Further investigation and inquiry, and examination of the official records, have since been made, that every available fact bearing on the matter might be established.

"In substance, the player was charged with making wagers against his club on games in which he participated. In justice to Chase, I feel bound to state that both the evidence and the records of the games to which reference was made fully refute this accusation. In one game in which it was intimated that Chase bet against his club the records show that in the sixth inning, with two men on bases and the score 2 to 0 against his team, Chase hit a home run, putting Cincinnati one run ahead.

"All available evidence has been carefully taken and considered. If the charge were proved it would follow as a matter of course that the player would forever be disqualified from participating in National League games. Under such circumstances I would not hesitate to so decide, as the interests of the public and of the game of baseball are far more important than the fate of any individual. These interests it is my clear duty to protect, no matter what the effect may be on players or clubs

"My conclusion and finding, after full consideration of the evidence, is that it is nowhere established that the accused was interested in any pool or wager that caused any game of ball to result otherwise than on its merits, and that Player Hal H. Chase is not guilty of the charges brought against him."

Chase refused to talk when informed of the verdict, but his lawyers issued a statement for him which declared that legal action would be continued to obtain "full redress" from the Cincinnati Club, which caused his suspension "without cause" and held up payment of his salary.

SMITH SIGNS WITH GIANTS.

Manager McGraw Has Confidence in Former College Pitcher.

George Smith, the former Columbia pitcher, signed a contract with the Giants yesterday. Smith played with two or three clubs last season and showed so much ability at times that Manager McGraw still believes that he is a coming star.

The Giants booked two more exhibition games yesterday. They will play the Boston Red Sox at Spartansburg on April 10 and will play at Winston-Salem, N. C., on April 11.

Blumenthal a Billiard Winner.

W. Blumenthal defeated A. Ortiz last night in the A. A. B. A. three-cushion carom billiard tournament at Thum's Academy by a score of 50 to 47 in ninety-four innings. Each contestant scored a high run of three.

Peddie Five Beats Pennington.

Special to The New York Times.

HIGHTSTOWN, N. J., Feb. 5.—Peddie trounced Pennington 56 to 17 here this afternoon. Pennington was left far behind at the end of the firs thalf, with the score 36 to 9.

Ouimet Heads Bay State Team.

BOSTON, Feb. 5.—Francis Ouimet was today appointed Captain of the State golf team by the officers of the Massachusetts Golf Association.

NEUSTADT IS VICTOR AGAIN.

Defeats Brussel in Tournament for National Class C Billiard Title.

Joseph Neustadt, a young Brooklyn amateur, continued his unbroken string of victories in the national amateur Class C championship 18.2 balk-line billiard tournament at Lawler Brothers' Academy in Brooklyn last night. In his fifth game of the final round play Neustadt defeated Sydney Brussel by a score of 150 to 108 in twenty-seven innings. The victor averaged 5 15-27 and had high runs of 23 and 21. Brussel averaged four points and had high runs of 23 and 13.

The contest was one of the most interesting of the tournament. Neustadt got off to an impressive start and led throughout. Always, however, Brussel was a dangerous rival, until after the twentieth inning, when Neustadt, with a closing display of brilliancy which has not been equalled in any of the previous matches, swept to a convincing successful margin. This despite an impressive run of 23 which Brussel made in his twenty-sixth inning.

In the other match of the evening C. J. Steinbugler disposed of J. R. Langdon in a long drawn out contest of forty-nine innings by the score of 150 to 129.

The scores:

J. Neustadt—3 10 2 0 2 13 2 0 12 0 7 1 2 5 4 3 1 2 5 5 1 2 21 12 0 23 12—150. Average, 5 12-27. High runs, 23 and 21.

OTIS WINS FIRST BLOCK.

Leads Cannefax in Three-Cushion Carom Match.

C. S. Otis of Brooklyn defeated Robert Cannefax of St. Louis, a former champion, last night in the opening block of their three-cushion carrom billiard match at the Rational Recreation Academy in Brooklyn. The score was 50 to 32. Otis, showing excellent form, completed his string in seventy-two innings. His highest run was three. Cannefax had a cluster of two as his best effort.

The match will be continued tonight and tomorrow night. The match is at 150 points in blocks of 50 points each night.

ST. PAUL'S DEFEATS TRINITY

Garden City School Five Wins Basket Ball Game, 26 to 16.

St. Paul's School basketball team easily defeated the Trinity School five on the former's court at Garden City, L. I., yesterday, by a score of 26 to 16. The Long Island schoolboys accumulated an insurmountable lead in the opening half, which ended with St. Paul's in the lead by 20 to 5.

WINS TEN STRAIGHT GAMES.

Barnard School Five Defeats Clason Point, 20 to 10.

Barnard School's basket ball quintet registered its tenth victory yesterday by trouncing the Clason Point Military Academy five on the Barnard court, by the score of 20 to 10. The successful team scored its winning margin in the second half with a snappy and well organized attack.

LOYOLA SKATERS WIN GAME.

Defeat Mamaroneck Hockey Team by Score of 3 to 0.

Loyola School's hockey seven trounced the Mamaroneck High School septet last night in a brilliant game at the Brooklyn Ice Palace by a score of 3 goals to 0. Keresey, the victorious team's centre, figured in all three of his team's goals. In the first period he scored the only tally on a long shot which sizzled past Kane, Mamaroneck's goal.

After eight minutes and twenty-three seconds of play in the second period, Nelson took a pass from Keresey and registered a goal, and a short time later Keresey passed the puck to Stoneham, son of one of the owners of the New York Giants, who scored the third goal.

MATTY BACK ON FEB. 15.

Herrmann Receives Answer to a Cablegram Sent to France.

CINCINNATI, Feb. 5.—President August Herrmann today repeated the statement he made when he signed Pat Moran as manager of the Cincinnati Nationals last week, that Christy Mathewson would not be further considered as eligible for leadership of the Reds.

Herrmann has received a reply to his cablegram to Mathewson asking about the latter's future plans. Mathewson's message was brief, merely stating that he would land in America on Feb. 15. No mention was made as to his future plans.

CHILDS CUP RACE MAY 17.

Pennsylvania Will Row at Princeton—Seeks Other Races.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 5.—The University of Pennsylvania will open its rowing season on April 12 with the Navy at Annapolis, it was announced today by John A. Brown, Chairman of the Pennsylvania Rowing Committee. On May 17 the Quaker crews will compete in the Childs Cup races at Princeton and on May 31 the American Henley, which will be rowed on the Schuylkill River in this city.

MINNESOTA BARS FULTON.

Boxing Commission Acts on His Statement About Dempsey Bout.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Feb. 5.—The Minnesota Boxing Commission, meeting here late today, voted to bar indefinitely Fred Fulton, Rochester, Minn., heavyweight fighter from boxing or sparring in Minnesota rings.

No reason was given, but it is understood the Commissioners took the action after discussion of Fulton's statement made recently in San Francisco that Jack Dempsey had "double-crossed" him in the fight of July 27 last.

PENN-COLUMBIA TILT OFF.

Quaker Wrestlers, Not Yet Ready, Cancel Tonight's Match.

The University of Pennsylvania wrestling team canceled yesterday its date for a dual match with the Columbia matmen which was to have been held in Philadelphia tomorrow night. The Quakers, in asking Columbia's assent to an abandonment of the meet, said their team was not ready for a hard match. They suggested that the match be scheduled for Feb. 28, to be held in Philadelphia.

Shreveport Is After Big Bout.

SHREVEPORT, La., Feb. 5.—An offer of $100,000 to bring the proposed Willard-Dempsey fight to Shreveport was wired to Tex Rickard, promoter of the bout, tonight by a syndicate of local oil men. The message said that the laws of Louisiana would permit the holding of a twenty-round contest.

Yale Calls Baseball Candidates.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 5.—A call for Yale 'Varsity baseball candidates was issued tonight. A meeting of the candidates will be held tomorrow night.

NORSE GIRL WINS FROM MISS CASSEL

Molla Bjurstedt Gains Semi-Finals in Indoor Tennis Tourney in Brooklyn.

Three of the contestants in the women's invitation singles at the Heights Casino, Brooklyn, reached the semi-final round yesterday. These were Mrs. de Forest Candee, Miss Molla Bjurstedt, and Miss Marie Wagner. Mrs. Candee, who put Miss Sears of Boston out of the tournament on Tuesday, defeated Miss Adele S. Cragin yesterday at 6—2, 6—2. The Brooklyn player kept Miss Cragin on the defensive from the start, and as the play progressed several interesting rallies developed. Miss Cragin was best at the net, and although her service was not as vigorous as Mrs. Candee's she compelled her to be alert at all times.

Miss Molla Bjurstedt defeated Miss Claire Cassel in the round before the semi-final at 6—0, 6—1. Miss Bjurstedt has almost recovered from her bad cold, and she showed flashes of her best game at times yesterday. The match was not as one-sided as the score would indicate, because on several occasions Miss Cassel made the Norse girl extend herself to make her winning point. Miss Marie Wagner went into the semi-finals when she won from Miss E. Gott at 6—0, 6—2.

There was lively competition in the doubles and play was continued through the third round. The teams to reach the semi-finals were Miss Eleanor Goss and Mrs. Rawson Wood, Miss Marie Wagner and Miss Claire Cassel, Miss Molla Bjurstedt and Miss Eleanora Sears, and Mrs. W. H. Prichard and Mrs. D. C. Mills. Miss Bjurstedt and Miss Sears won yesterday from Mrs. Percy Wilbourne and Mrs. Samuel Waring.

The finals of the doubles will be played on Saturday morning and the finals in the singles are scheduled for tomorrow afternoon at 2:15 o'clock.

The summaries:

Singles.—Fourth Round—Mrs. de Forest Candee defeated Miss Adele Cragin, 6—2, 6—2; Miss Molla Bjurstedt defeated Miss Claire Cassel, 6—0, 6—1; Miss Marie Wagner defeated Miss E. Gott, 6—0, 6—2.

Doubles.—Second Round—Mrs. Albert Humphries and Miss Bessie H. Holden defeated Mrs. L. Gouverneur Morris by default; Miss Caroma Winne and Miss Gertrude Della Torre defeated Miss Julie Brown and Mrs. R. Earle, 6—0, 6—0; Miss Molla Bjurstedt and Miss Eleanora Sears won from Mrs. Edward Raymond and Mrs. B. Briggs by default.

Third Round—Miss Marie Wagner and Miss Claire Cassel defeated Mrs. Albert Humphries and Miss Bessie Holden, 6—3, 6—2; Mrs. W. H. Prichard and Mrs. D. C. Mills defeated Miss Caroma Winne and Miss Gertrude Della Torre, 2—6, 6—2, 6—1; Miss Molla Bjurstedt and Miss Eleanora Sears defeated Mrs. Percy Wilbourne and Mrs. Samuel Waring, 6—0, 6—3.

COLUMBIA OARSMEN WORK.

Over Fifty Answer Call for 'Varsity and Freshman Crews.

Between fifty and sixty candidates reported for 'Varsity and freshman rowing at Columbia yesterday, when the first general call for candidates was made. The practice began on the rowing machines in the university gymnasium under the direction of Fred Plaistead, acting head coach. Because of the confusion attendant upon the opening of the second term, many prospective candidates did not report, and for that reason the registration books were held open.

According to Plaistead, the most significant feature of yesterday's turnout was the fact that about thirty freshmen reported for the first-year crew. The freshmen were so numerous that they more than filled the rowing machines and some of them had to be accommodated later when the 'Varsity practice was held.

The 'Varsity men were not as numerous as the freshmen, but among them were several candidates from last year's crew, including Steinschneider, bow oar; Jack Kraus, and Jim Parkes. Barrett Brown, stroke of the 1918 crew, will be on hand within a week, as well as three or four others who rowed in last Spring's 'Varsity combination.

Jim Rice, who resigned as head coach last June, was an interested spectator when the practice got under way.

Middy Five Is Again Victor.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Feb. 5.—The Naval Academy won its fifteenth straight victory at basket ball this afternoon, defeating Virginia Military Institute by 39 to 17. Lowes led in the scoring for the Navy, shooting and passing in great shape, while the long shots of Sullivan and Lee were the chief feature of Virginia's play.

YALE DOWNS COLUMBIA.

Elis Outclass Blue and White at Basket Ball, 43 to 11.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 5.—Yale defeated Columbia at basket ball tonight, 43 to 21, the visitors' defense badly crumbling in the second half. They held Yale to a 23 to 11 lead in the first, but Eli's scoring machine shot repeated baskets past them in the second.

Hamill and Van Slyck were in good form for the home team, while Weinstein and Farrell shone for Columbia. Van Slyck and Tynan were compelled to retire temporarily with cut foreheads. Only one substitution was necessary when, with only twenty seconds remaining, Johnson was compelled to retire because of four personal fouls.

The lineup:

Yale, (43.)	Position.	Columbia (11.)
Horton	R.F.	Tynan
Vanslyck	L. F.	Farrell, (Capt.)
Hamill	C.	Johnson
Stradell, (Capt.)	R. G.	Weinstein
Alderman	L. G.	Kiendl

Goals from floor—Yale, Horton, 7; Stradella, 1; Vanslyck, 1; Hamill, 6; Alderman, 3. Columbia, Weinstein, 4; Farrell, 1; Tynan, 1; Johnson, 1; Keindl. Goals from foul—Vanslyck, 7; Farrell, 3. Referee—Ed Thorpe. Time—20 minute periods.

WHITE OWLS LEAD AT POLO.

With Handicap They Beat Foxhunters, 10 to 9, at Durland's.

A handicap of two goals caused the defeat of the Foxhunters' polo trio last night in the Phillips Cup tournament at Durland's Riding Academy. The recipients of the handicap were the members of the White Owls team, and the latter aggregation won after a spirited contest by 10 goals to 9. Murray Wilder and H. Winn each scored three goals for the successful team while Otis Coleman accounted for the remaining two.

One of the Foxhunters' goals was discounted through penalties inflicted because of two fouls committed by Dr. Blackwell and Bartels.

The lineup:

White Owls, (10.)	Foxhunters, (9.)
No. 1—M. Wilder.	No. 1—H. Levinsky.
No. 2—H. Winn.	No. 2—A. Bartels.
Back—O. Coleman.	Back—Dr. Blackwell.

Handicap—White Owls receive two goals. Goals—Wilder, 3; Winn, 3; Coleman, 2; Levinsky, 3; Bartels, 6; Dr. Blackwell. Penalties—Dr. Blackwell ½ point for foul; Bartels ½ point for foul. Time of periods—10 minutes.

Margolies, the Boxer, Dies.

Irving Margolies, former amateur bantamweight boxing champion, who recently entered the featherweight ranks in the professional ring, died yesterday from influenza. Margolies contracted his illness shortly after his winning bout with Freddie Reese, a semi-final to the Benny Leonard-Johnny Dundee contest at Newark on Jan. 20. It was the first time that Reese had been knocked out in his ring career.

The Most Beautiful Car in America.

AT THE MOTOR CAR SHOW
Space 65—69th Regt. Armory

Go See and Ride in the Essex

Only New Car of the Year at the Show—Sells at $1395

The automobile shows this year reveal but one new car.

All interest is being centered on the Essex. It is the car the trade has talked of for more than a year. Production was to have begun on the Essex last spring, but conditions delayed the start until now.

The exhibit includes the cars in the show and the demonstrators that are maintained outside. Everybody is urged to ride in them.

Don't Fail to See the Essex Also Ride In It

The enthusiastic endorsement everyone is giving to the Essex when they see it is emphasized ten-fold when they have ridden in it. So for that reason everyone who stops at the Essex exhibit is also being asked to take a ride in the car. That plan is being followed in connection with every automobile show and at every Essex sales place. More than a quarter of a million have ridden in the Essex.

It is the most talked of car of the year.

Instead of advertising its qualities, the Essex is allowed to speak for itself. Men everywhere are saying the finest things about it.

Has Economy of the Light Car, Comfort and Endurance of the Costliest

People talk of its beauty and the elegance of its appointment. They compare its qualities with those of fine and costly cars. Its lightness is admired because of its advantages in economy of operation. The roughest roads are used to reveal its sturdiness and riding qualities, so rare in light cars. Everyone is surprised at its power, flexibility and acceleration. And those who know other cars of similar weight and price class, marvel at its speed.

Since you are going to the automobile show your visit will not be complete unless you see and ride in the Essex.

Why This Should Be Your Car

Doubtless you will pause before the Oakland Sensible Six Coupé on view at the Show to admire its good appearance and comfort—these are apparent to even the casual glance.

What should concern you most, however, is this car's capacity for constant and economical performance, for gasoline and tire mileages surprisingly high.

The foundation of the Coupé, as of all Oakland models, is the standard 44-horsepower Oakland Sensible Six chassis which in the service of more than 100,000 owners has thoroughly made good.

The merit of this chassis, and the comfort built into the roomy body above it, represent a value not exceeded anywhere in the present automobile market.

Oakland occupies Space 22 at Madison Square Garden. The models on display are: the Touring Car, $1177; the Roadster, $1177; the Sedan, $1766; and the Coupé, $1766. Additional for wire wheel equipment, $75. All prices delivered in New York.

GARMENT WORKERS TO CONTINUE STRIKE

Union Decides to Pay Benefits to Comrades Fighting Manufacturers.

10,000 RETURN TO WORK

Small Dress Contractors and Jobbers Meet Demands, Including Boycott.

One-third of the strikers in the women's garment trade in this city will go back to work this week, according to Benjamin Schlesinger, President of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, who said last night that settlement had been reached with the Dress Contractors' and Manufacturers' Association, composed of 350 of the smaller manufacturers of dresses, and employing 10,000 persons, and that an agreement had also been reached with the Wholesale Dress Manufacturers' Association, which is composed of jobbers. Mr. Schlesinger was jubilant over this partial victory, and said that he believed it the beginning of the end of the garment workers' strike, although as yet the larger manufacturers had refused to grant the demands of the union.

The Dress Contractors' and Manufacturers' Association, he said, has agreed to all the terms of the union, including the forty-four-hour week, increase in wages, and a review by the union of the case of each person discharged. They have also agreed, Mr. Schlesinger said, not to do any garment work for manufacturers who have not agreed to the terms of the union. The organization, he said, had deposited $20,000 as a guarantee of its good faith. A similar amount has been deposited by the Wholesale Dress Manufacturers' Association, composed of jobbers, who have agreed not to buy or have any garments made in non-union shops, nor sell garments to concerns which have not agreed to the terms of the union.

The strike began its third week yesterday, having been declared on Tuesday, Jan. 3. Mr. Schlesinger announced that arrangements had been made whereby the union would begin next Monday the payments of strike benefits to workers, the amount to depend upon what the union believes necessary to maintain individuals during the remainder of the strike. This money, he said, will come partly from the treasury of the union and partly from an assessment which will be made against those returning to work in shops that have agreed to the union demands.

Mr. Schlesinger said that the union is prepared to continue payments each week of strike benefits until the Dress and Waist Manufacturers' Association, against which the strike is principally directed, signs an agreement in accordance with the terms of the union. So far, said Mr. Schlesinger, the members of the Dress and Waist Manufacturers' Association have refused to consider any settlement with the strikers until the union surrenders its demand for the right to review the cases of discharged employes. He said that the union would never agree to this proposal. Ninety per cent. of the strikers are women and girls, he said. Three or four thousand were engaged yesterday in picket duty. A big demonstration is planned for next Monday, when, Mr. Schlesinger said, there would be about 15,000 on picket duty.

Magistrate William A. Sweetser, at the Jefferson Market Court, yesterday disposed of twenty-seven strike cases, the defendants belonging to the Skirt and Waist Makers' Union. Max Levine, counsel for the defendants, who were arrested at different times and places, pleaded guilty on behalf of most of them. Sentence was suspended in ten cases where the defendants had shouted "Scabs," while fines of $5 each were imposed where the strikers had refused to move when ordered by patrolmen to do so. All but three of the defendants were women and girls. Several cases of interfering with patrolmen in the performance of their duty were adjourned until Feb. 10.

5,000 NOW OUT IN PASSAIC.

Employes of Three More Mills Join Woolen Workers' Strike.

PASSAIC, N. J., Feb. 5.—The strike of woolen and worsted weavers and spinners, started yesterday by the walkout of 1,100 employes of the Gera Woolen Mills, gained headway today by a strike of employes of three other mills of the six which form the big combination in this region. There are now nearly five thousand men and women striking, and it is said that unless their demands are promptly met they may be joined by as many more.

The first protest today was at the Botany Worsted Mills, where 1,500 persons left their weaving machines shortly before noon. This was unexpected, as an effort of the employes yesterday to enforce their terms had been successful. Nearly one thousand spinners at the New Jersey Worsted Spinning Company and one thousand weavers of the Forstmann and Huffmann Company at Garfield also walked out.

These four companies, together with the Passaic Worsted Spinning Company and the Garfield Worsted Mills, form the manufacturers' organization known as the Industrial Council of Passaic Wool Manufacturers. At the headquarters of the organization no statement could be obtained as to the stand the manufacturers will take.

The workers several weeks ago demanded a forty-eight-hour working week. The manufacturers agreed to this, with the provision that the employes would work fifty-five hours, with time and a half pay for all work over the forty-eight hours. This seemed to satisfy the weavers at the time, but the demand now is for a forty-four-hour week at 50 cents an hour.

[illegible] TO END PATERSON STRIKE.

Chamber of Commerce Asks for Conference with Manufacturers.

PATERSON, N. J., Feb. 5.—The Paterson Chamber of Commerce today took a hand in the strike of 27,000 silk workers in suggesting to Louis Magnat, Secretary of the various labor organizations, that the workers appoint a committee to confer with the manufacturers' committee to reach an understanding, the results of which can be submitted to the War Labor Board. Many labor meetings were held today, and at a number of them the workers showed a disposition to decry the activities of the War Labor Board.

At a meeting of 400 silk strikers in the Institute Hall today to discuss plans for bringing the employers to terms, there was condemnation of those disposed to accept a 47-hour working week. The I. W. W. called the meeting and the speakers were of various nationalities.

Two Italian speakers, one Polish or Scandinavian and one American, appealed to the strikers to stand pat on their demand for a 44-hour working week. They described themselves as representatives of the International Workers of the World, the Workmen's International Industrial Union, and the Socialist Labor Party. One speaker, Rubenstein, who said he was a representative of the Socialist Labor Party, denounced Louis Magnant as being aligned with the "bosses" in trying to influence his followers toward the 47-hour proposal.

SAYS BUILDERS HERE VOTED FOR LOCKOUT

Leader of Bricklayers' Union Declares a Nation-Wide Strike May Result.

William J. Bowen, President of the Bricklayers, Masons and Plasterers' International Union, with headquarters in Indianapolis, declared last night that the Governors of the Building Trades Employers' Association of New York had voted a lockout against building trades unionists in this city. Mr. Bowen asserted that if the action of the employers was carried out every unionist employed in Canada or the United States on construction in which New York construction firms were interested would lay down his tools.

The announcement of an impending continent-wide strike was made by the union leader at the Park Avenue Hotel following a conference with local leaders. Mr. Bowen said that he, with William Dobson, International Secretary of the Bricklayers' Union, arrived in this city on Monday. He said that he came to straighten out the small wage differences existing between the carpenters' locals and the Building Trades Employers' Association. A preliminary conference, he said, was held on Monday and a date set for yesterday.

According to Bowen, the conference was staged in the association's headquarters in the Marbridge Building, Sixth Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street. The union leader's version of the matter was that he and his associates told the employers that they had come to this city to arbitrate the difficulties of the carpenters, because in the unions' opinion, "something affecting the carpenters would soon affect the allied building unions."

"When we put our proposition up to the employers," said Bowen, "they repudiated us. They, speaking figuratively, slapped us in the face. They said they would refuse to discuss any differences until the men now out returned to work. A short time after our conference the Board of Governors at 3:30 o'clock voted to put in force a lockout.

"The result of this action will mean that thousands of our members returning from France will be unable to obtain employment. There will be no new construction in this city, and the already high rentals of apartment houses will not come down, because, in the absence of additional building, there will be no competition. When the news of this action by the employers in New York gets through the country I predict a continent-wide strike."

Mr. Bowen was asked whether the international organization, of which he is the head, would order a strike. He declared that no strike order would be issued, but that the men would walk out on sympathy. In this connection Mr. Dobson displayed a telegram from Norwich, Conn., which reported the building trade unionists there as having heard of the afternoon's action by the employers, and as already voting to quit the job.

The union leader was uncertain as to how many men would actually stop work. He said that if the sentiment he expected developed he thought 2,000,000 building workmen in this country and Canada would halt work.

Charles J. Kelly is Chairman of the Board of Governors of the Building Trades Employers' Association, and other members of the body are Ronald Taylor, Fred B. Tuttle, Albert N. Chambers, and J. P. Ryan. None of these could be reached last night at the late hour chosen by the union leaders for their announcement.

WANT UTILITIES RETURNED.

Merchants Oppose Government Ownership of Roads and Telegraph Lines

The Merchants' Association adopted resolutions yesterday favoring the return of the railroads and the telegraph and telephone systems to private control and operation under such conditions as will render them as serviceable to the public as when the Government took possession of them. The resolutions relating to the railroads say that they should not be returned to their owners until "Congress shall have considered and enacted constructive legislation to provide for the highest permanent efficiency of railroad operation and utilization of railroad properties and equipment, and for the adequate compensation of the capital invested in railroads sufficient to protect railroad credit and to insure the extension of transportation facilities to meet the commercial needs of the country."

It was also resolved that the suggested legislation should be passed speedily, so as not to delay the return of the roads to their owners beyond the one year and nine months period after the signing of the peace treaty provided for in the act authorizing the taking of them by the Government. In order to permit the enactment of this legislation it is resolved that Congress, by joint resolution, require that the operation of the roads by the Government be continued as provided.

The resolutions also state:

"The Merchants' Association is opposed to ownership and permanent operation of public utilities by the Government, and believes that the telephone and telegraph systems should be returned to their owners."

TILTS MARK O'LEARY TRIAL.

Defendant Personally Cross-Examines Government Witnesses.

At the continuation yesterday of the trial before Federal Judge Hand and a jury of Jeremiah A. O'Leary, charged with conspiracy to obstruct the draft, Assistant District Attorney James W. Osborne, Jr., succeeded in reading to the jury the names of many of the members as contained in the membership book of the American Truth Society. Arthur O'Leary of counsel for his brother took exception to the proceeding.

The trial was enlivened during yesterday's session by frequent tilts between O'Leary and the Government's attorneys. At one point in the trial, while O'Leary was personally conducting the cross-examination of Arthur Wiener, one of the Government's witnesses, H. Snowden Marshall, special counsel for the prosecution, objected to his method of questioning.

"If you send me to jail for 100 years I have some rights in this court!" O'Leary yelled in a loud voice. "It is these injustices that are spreading Bolshevism throughout the country. It is not justice alone for myself that I am asking. I am trying to vindicate American justice."

Judge Hand ordered him to continue his cross-examination of the witness. The trial will be resumed this morning. The trial of Scott Nearing, which was to have begun yesterday, was adjourned until this morning. The trials of Herman Wessels and Albert Paul Fricke for treason were adjourned yesterday until Feb. 10 and 17, respectively.

PROHIBITION REPORT DENIED

No Protest by British Investors, Says Embassy.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—At the British Embassy and the State Department denial was today made of the statement published this morning that the British Government had called the attention of the State Department "to the advisability of having the money in hand with which to compensate British investors for the losses occasioned to them by the destruction of the brewing and distilling business through prohibition."

Frank L. Polk, acting Secretary of State, said he had never heard of the matter. At the embassy the statement was made that no communication dealing with the effect of prohibition on British investments in the brewing and distilling business had been received.

Cormorant, Mine Sweeper, Launched

The Cormorant, the eighth mine sweeper to be built for the Government by the Todd Shipyards Corporation in Brooklyn, was launched yesterday at the Tebo Basin, foot Twenty-fourth Street, that borough. Marie Alliare, the fourteen-year-old daughter of John Alliare of the hull department of the yard, named the ship. Congressman-elect Thomas H. Cullen made a brief speech, and there was music by the employes' band. The Cormorant is a combination mine-sweeper, mine-layer, and coast defense vessel. She is 180 feet in length and is considered to be the most up-to-date craft of her class afloat.

Sale of Veilings Increases.

The sale of veilings has been increasing at such a rate as to make it doubtful whether they can be delivered at the specified time. Among the out-of-town buyers who were in the market this week were many from Canada. The latter, it is said, have been and are still buying much. Duplicate orders from the local trade are very numerous, especially in the novelty lines. One of the firms said that buyers are placing orders of twice the normal size this year in the hope that they will be able to receive half of the amount ordered.

Trying to Cancel Orders.

Believing that the prices on the better grade of men's Spring hats will be lower, some of the retailers are inclined toward canceling orders. In most cases the cancelations are being refused by the manufacturers. As most of the material used in the Spring lines was bought on a rising market there is very little chance of lower prices. It was said, however, that there is likely to be a reduction on the Fall lines, possibly from 10 to 15 per cent.

Prices of Some Chemicals.

There has been a better export trade in chemicals, and the accumulated stocks of several products have been materially reduced, Drug and Chemical Markets will say today. Manufacturers are still unwilling to make concessions in price on account of the high cost of labor and raw materials. The market is in the hands of dealers, but buyers are holding out for lower prices on domestic business. There were no advances in prices. Ammonia alum, soda ash, calcium acetate and zinc chloride are lower, metallic mercury has been reduced $7 a flask, and is now selling at $98, having gone below the $100 mark for the first time in many months; chloral hydrate is twenty cents a pound lower, owing to cheaper raw material. Wood alcohol is eight cents a gallon higher because of scarcity. Denatured alcohol is lower.

Features of a Model Hat.

Among the new French model hats imported is one in which the material resembles old-fashioned haircloth. It is really a glossy batavia, says the bulletin of the Retail Millinery Association of America. It is beautifully draped on a turban in contrasting shades of grass green and black. The top of the turban is round, and is plainly fitted with a swirled draping of haircloth, forming a tire brim. From beneath this draping a tiny, plainly fitted brim is discernible in grass green, from which dangles a glycerine ostrich pompom on the left side.

Lack of Vim to Gray Goods.

The lack of vim, which has been so much in evidence in the local gray goods market, was again noticeable yesterday. Neither buyers nor sellers showed much desire to trade, and such quotations as were reported were not for any large quantities nor for delivery beyond the next two or three weeks. In 39-inch printcloths second hands let out some 68-72s at 10¾ cents, while first hands sold 38½-inch 64-60s, 60-48s, and 64-56s at 9¾, 8¾, and 9 cents, respectively. Sales were also made of 56-60s, four-yard sheetings at 13 cents, and of twills, sateens, and venetians to the clothing trade at fairly low prices.

Export Trade in Cut Glass.

Owing to the present labor conditions in the cut glass industry, it is very difficult for some of the manufacturers to fill the orders that are on hand. This season's business is far above the average, especially on the high-class decorated glassware, including plain and hand painted gold incrustations. The export trade has increased to a great extent, as a very good business has been started with Japan, South America, China, and Australia.

Madeira Embroideries.

One of the firms selling Madeira embroideries stated yesterday that the price of these goods for Fall delivery will be increased possibly 25 per cent. When conditions were more normal, some of the [illegible] booked large orders for future delivery, and this is now causing them much anxiety. In view of the present scarcity of merchandise very few orders are being solicited, as it is almost impossible in some instances to secure complete lines.

Travels of Some Socks.

How a case of men's woolen socks was footballed around the market until it reached its original owner was made known yesterday by one of the local jobbers. During October, 1917, the jobber bought the socks from a mill at $3.75 a dozen. He later sold them to a retailer for $4.50. In turn the retailer sold them to a traveling salesman for $6. After the armistice was signed the salesman offered them to the jobber at the price he paid for them, but the latter refused to take them.

To Help Textile Exports.

A committee representing the Textile Alliance Export Corporation will sail for Europe Feb. 8 on the steamship Adriatic. The party is composed of J. R. Munn, President of the corporation; Ralph Heimer, who will have charge of the company's interests in England; E. I. Martin, whose headquarters will be in Paris; T. A. Post, who will proceed to Brussels, and Victor E. Gittwillig, who will go to Scandinavia. Comprehensive lines of samples representing the woolen and cotton industry both in piece goods, yarn, knit goods, and blankets have been furnished by some of the principal manufacturers of these goods.

FURS SOLD FOR $1,000,000.

Pelts Offered by Alien Property Custodian Bring $90,000.

Receipts yesterday at the third day of the fur sale in Masonic Temple, Twenty-third Street, at Sixth Avenue, totaled about $1,000,000, making an approximate total for the three days of $3,000,000. The bidding yesterday was brisk and the prices well maintained. As a general thing yesterday's prices were about 10 per cent. higher than obtained last week at the fur sale in St. Louis.

A feature of the sale yesterday was the offering of thousands of pelts by the Alien Property Custodian. These attracted many bargain hunters, and at times the bidding for different lots was keen. The pelts brought about $90,000. A large consignment of pelts, the property of I. Ariowitsch, were sold through Joseph F. Guffey, Director of the Bureau of Sales of the Alien Custodian's office. The lot included 8,500 flying squirrel skins, fox, white Japanese coneys, moles, mink, ermine, kolinsky, and astrachans.

The sale began with the offering of 37,749 kolinsky skins, and then in the order given these pelts were disposed of: Badger, 4,769; Persian lamb, 528; leopard, 380; raccoon, 56,850, and skunk, 143,725. The range of prices of the day were: Kolinsky, 30 cents to $2; badger, 10 cents to $1.35; Persian lamb, $1.25 to $1.50; leopard, $3 to $17.25; raccoon, $1.30 to $4.60; skunk, $1.75 to $8.50.

At the sale today the largest item will be 73,200 mink skins. The other offerings will include 34,179 marmot skins, 30,501 civet cat, 1,884 hair seal, 850 flying squirrel, 4,132 Japanese marten, 33,094 Japanese mink, and 450 stone marten.

The sale will continue tomorrow and Saturday, and the feature of the last day's sale will be the offering of bear-skins, which include 23 polar and 27 grizzly pelts.

ASKS $1,000,000,000 TO HANDLE WHEAT

Broad Powers Necessary to Maintain Price of 1919 Crop, Hoover Lieutenant Testifies.

EUROPE'S PRESENT DEMANDS

Call for 165,000,000 Bushels More This Season—Enemy Countries Must Accept Other Grains.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5. — Julius Barnes, head of the Food Administration's Grain Corporation, asked Congress today through the House Agriculture Committee to delegate broad powers to President Wilson as a means of making effective the Government's guaranteed price for the 1919 wheat crop. He asked for an appropriation of at least $1,000,000,000 with authority to borrow more if necessary on the credit and property of the Grain Corporation, and authority to buy and sell wheat and wheat products at home and abroad for cash or for credit. He also asked that to the President be given import and export embargo powers, authority to build or requisition storage facilities, and to license dealers, millers, and elevators, control over exchange trading, and authority to give preferential rail service on American railroads and steamships in transporting cereals to markets at home or abroad.

Mr. Barnes said of the present wheat crop that, after deducting 100,000,000 bushels of wheat for seed and 470,000,000 bushels for home consumption, there would be left available for export 348,000,000 bushels. He said of this amount 180,000,000 had been exported up to Feb. 1 last, and against this the following commitments were to be applied to wheat or wheat flour: European allies, 100,000,000 bushels; Commission for Relief in Belgium, 20,000,000; European neutrals, 15,000,000, and European relief, 30,000,000 bushels.

"These exclude," Mr. Barnes said "any contribution to enemy countries, which may be satisfied with rye and other grains, should we be short available wheat."

The Grain Corporation, the witness said, now has on hand the equivalent of 145,000,000 bushels of wheat to meet demands for the rest of this crop year, which is estimated at 165,000,000 bushels. Outside of the Grain Corporation's holdings there are apparent stocks in the country of about 100,000,000 bushels, he said, and an estimated amount still to come from the farms of not more than 150,000,000 bushels. He said that there was no indication that there would be a reduction in the price of bread.

Mr. Barnes said he believed it would be impossible to continue the present personnel of the Grain Corporation, as all of the officials desire to return to private enterprise. He expressed the belief that the Food Administration would be out of existence before the 1919 wheat harvest.

The witness said neither he nor Mr. Hoover had any form of legislation to urge and that suggestions he made were merely to cover the principles of operating methods that might be developed later.

INFLUENZA VIRUS FOUND.

Germ of Trench Fever Also Isolated by British Army Surgeons.

LONDON, Feb. 5.—The viruses of trench fever, influenza, and some forms of nephritis have been isolated and identified, according to a report submitted to the Director General of the Army Medical Service in France by a number of army medical officers who have been investigating the causes of these diseases.

According to this official statement, the virus in each case has been proved to be a minute globular cell varying in size and behavior in the three types of disease.

Investigations which have been conducted have also resulted, it is believed, in the isolation of the germs of mumps, measles, and typhus, the causes of which have hitherto been obscure and the bacilli of which have never before been isolated.

OPPOSE LUXURY TAX.

Retail Clothiers' Association Will Protest to Congress.

The Retail Clothiers' Association of New York at its meeting yesterday in the Hotel McAlpine voted as an organization to send protests to the Senate and House of Representatives against the so-called luxury tax. A committee, headed by Maurice Brill, has already been to Washington to protest. Yesterday's action was the official expression of the entire body.

Mr. Brill said that the committee found Congressmen who favored the measure and yet did not have clear ideas as to what it contained or its effect if enforced. Other speakers were Otto H. Buehrman, Arthur Freeman, G. A. O'Reilly of the Irving National Bank, and Nathan Lemlein, the retiring President.

Says Bonds Were Christmas Gift.

The ownership of $100,000 Montana Coal and Iron Company bonds will be determined in a suit which went to trial yesterday before Supreme Court Justice Sears, brought by the Menasha Woodenware Company, a Wisconsin corporation, against Mrs. Madeline English Landeck. She testified that the late Charles R. Smith, President of the plaintiff corporation, who was an old friend of her family, gave her the bonds in Chicago as a Christmas present. Witnesses called by her attorney stated that the bonds belonged to Mr. Smith and were not the property of the woodenware corporation.

Color Card Innovation Promised.

At the annual meeting of the Textile Color Card Association, which was held yesterday morning, all of the officers and Directors of the previous year were re-elected for another term. It was announced that the 1919 Fall season card would probably be issued some time during next month, and would contain an innovation of great importance, which heretofore has never appeared on any card.

A Wide Field For Investment

In buying securities it is best to take a broad view of the investment field.

Such a view is afforded by our monthly bond circulars, which present a list of from fifty to seventy-five issues of high-grade bonds and short-term notes.

Our February offerings will be furnished upon request for AG-203

The National City Company

Main Office: National City Bank Building
Uptown Office: Fifth Ave. & 43rd St.
Correspondent Offices in 35 Cities

6½% YIELD ON FUNDS, PLUS SHARE IN PROFITS

is a decidedly unusual feature in bond financing.

These bonds offered are the securities of a well-established company. The business has been in successful operation for over sixty years.

The average net income for the past three years has amounted to over four times the interest on all bonds outstanding.

The Company manufactures a product for which the demand has for several years exceeded the supply.

Circular T-53 is descriptive of this offering and will be sent upon request.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Prices Little Disturbed by Smelting Company Dividend Reduction—Steel Market News.

The stock market refused to become excited yesterday over the unexpected reduction of the American Smelting and Refining Company's quarterly dividend, and, while the metal issues naturally lost ground, the rank and file of railroad and industrial shares moved in irregular fashion. The turnover was about the same as the day before, and offerings in many prominent stocks were so easily absorbed as to leave them with gains at the end of the day. The general character of trading was the same as it had been for some time past, denoting unconcern on the part of the public in regard to particular developments in industry. For the copper stocks, of course, the Smelting dividend alteration was of much importance. Coming as it did immediately after producers had emphasized the large surplus stocks of metal, the cut called attention to possibilities of a similar occurrence among other dividends. In the second half of 1918 the American Smelting and Refining Company made a poor showing, but it had been believed rather generally that the 6 per cent. rate could be maintained. The Directors' action aroused the inference that they had recognized signs of no more than a moderate income for some time ahead, presumably during the period before the market is able to digest the copper produced with unusually high costs.

The relative stability of prices in the face of rather unfavorable news and developments this week has promoted study of underlying conditions. Comment of the market place is not devoid of opinions to the effect that much of the uncertainty and inactivity of the readjustment period has been met with indications of confidence by prominent stocks, and bonds as well. Every day which passes brings the interval of light buying of steel, copper, and manufactured goods the nearer to the day when the markets will open up, and it is safe to state that the time already passed over has not borne out the expectation of speculators in stocks who thought two months ago that quotations would suffer a heavy reaction.

In the steel trade the comment of some of the more prominent producers at least reflects a feeling that realization of the country's opportunity for meeting foreign competition will by and by overcome the hesitation now in evidence in many lines and rapidly bring about the renewal of sales abroad. This it is expected will tend to expand buying at home. Export sales, of course, will depend to a large extent on credit arrangements which the buyers can arrange in this country, and in connection with this it may be said that the good offices of bankers and business men who have gone abroad in recent weeks are expected to bring results at a not distant date. At the present time buying of steel continues light. The Iron Age reports that the output of pig iron in January was at the rate of about 106,500 tons per day, a total lower than was reported for any month last year except the first three, which were snowbound. The comparison indicates a substantial falling off of output, and this presumably runs parallel to operations at steel plants, yet comparisons are likely to seem more unfavorable than they actually are when one considers the background of pre-war production.

The call money market was somewhat firmer than the day before, the minimum being 4½ per cent., against 4 per cent. on Tuesday. The movement was not of a character to attract much attention, however, and the expectation of continued easy money for some time was in evidence.

Trading Irregular on Paris Bourse.

PARIS, Feb. 5.—Trading on the Bourse was irregular today. Three per cent. rentes were quoted at 65 francs. Exchange on London was at 25 francs 98 centimes, while the new 5 per cent. loan was quoted 91 francs 85 centimes.

SHORT TERM NOTES

Government and Municipal Loans.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

European Financing.

The suggestion is heard that in the financing of Europe, in which the United States is expected to play such a prominent part, one method to be adopted will probably be the listing of a considerable number of foreign bonds and stock issues on the New York Stock Exchange, not necessarily new issues, but some of those which now stand as collateral for the big loans arranged here before the entrance of this country into the struggle. In this respect, it is tentatively suggested that a syndicate might take over some of this collateral and attempt to distribute it here, using the Stock Exchange market as an adjunct to this distribution.

***

Puts and Calls.

On Tuesday, when American Smelting was quoted in the neighborhood of $70 a share, a "put" was sold on 100 shares at 3 points under the market. Yesterday the market was 3 points under the put and the happy purchaser was looking for more "papers." And there were plenty to be had. Among the attractive ones heard were puts on Tobacco Products, sold early in the day at about 77½, for 1⅜ per cent., good for thirty days. Steel privileges were offered at about 3 points either way, while Bethlehem Steel B papers were about 2 points "up" and 3 points "down."

***

Liberty Loan Payments.

Of the $75,492,450 due on Jan. 30 last in this district on account of the final payment on the Fourth Liberty Loan, all but $25,500 has been paid, according to the Federal Reserve Bank. There were 1,204 banks concerned in the operation, and payments were made in the following manner: Certificates of indebtedness, $15,944,500; advice of credit, $46,851,411; cash, $12,671,039, for a total of $75,466,950. The balance of $25,500 still due represents, according to the bank, merely the amount "yet to pass through its books."

***

Little Foreign Buying.

Despite the assertion of British steel producers that they are being undersold in their own market by foreign concerns there is little evidence in this country at least that any large orders for Great Britain, or for other foreign countries for that matter, are being filled by American companies. There is a domestic demand for steel but of rather small volume as compared with that which was evidenced last year at this time. But the foreign demand is practically nil. Now and then an order of fairly sizeable dimensions appears. Only yesterday it was announced that the French Government had placed an order for ship plates to the extent of about 1,300 tons. This, however, was an order which had been here for some time, having been allocated by the War Industries Board, but not actually negotiated for by the American producer until recently.

***

Readjustment Plans.

Although there is a disposition to accredit a great amount of readjustment of industry from a war to a peace basis, it is a fact that with many companies the actual plan for bringing about the change in operations has not even been undertaken as yet. This is mainly because it is difficult to have the foresight at the present time to direct the war-expanded facilities of a company into channels that will surely prove profitable under conditions of peace. In the case of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, for instance, plans for entering new fields are under consideration but as yet no definite step has been determined upon. The fact that readjustment of industries is progressing with caution is, however, taken to be one of the most hopeful signs of the future. A hasty reorganization would naturally be more liable to error which might entail real hardships and further readjustment at a later time when foreign producers were in a more secure position.

***

Equipment Orders.

In considering the position of the equipment companies somewhat too much stress has been laid on the uncertainty of the railroad situation of the United States. It was argued that conditions here were such as to preclude the placing of big orders by the carriers. The world market was quite disregarded. During most of the period of the war it appears the carriers in countries not directly related to the war have been cut off from their normal replacement and increase of equipment. As evidence of this the American Locomotive Company has received orders from the Argentina for twenty Pacific type locomotives and the South African Republic has also sent forth orders to the Montreal Locomotive Company, a subsidiary of the American Locomotive Company. One company is reported to be working now on an order for 150 locomotives to be sent to Italy.

***

After Foreign Trade.

The news that the United States through the Department of Commerce is campaigning for the development of American foreign trade was accepted with general approval in the financial district yesterday, although there were some who expressed a desire to see some legislation which would remove the restricting paragraphs from the existing laws and enable the American shipowner to operate on a more even scale with foreign shipowners.

***

Waiting for Reports.

The speculative element attributes the present quiet market to the fact that annual reports from leading industrial and other concerns are being awaited before traders commit themselves to either side. It is a recognized fact that many of the big concerns have written off their inventories as a safeguard against the uncertainties of the adjustment period, and many of the traders want to see definite reports and be able to analyze them before they become active in the market again.

***

Food for Thought.

The reports of Director General of Railroads Hines's testimony before the Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce which stated that he favored the turning back of the carriers to private ownership as soon as possible unless the Government would entertain a proposal to improve them did not come as a surprise to bankers and railroad men. They have been convinced for some time that Mr. Hines would carry out the plans of his predecessor, and it is remembered that Mr. McAdoo in asking bankers for their opinion as to an extension of the span of Federal control for a period of five years was reported to have offered as an alternative an immediate return of the railroads under antibellum conditions.

Buy Dome Mine Stock.

A syndicate headed by J. S. Bache & Co. has purchased from the De Lamar estate its holdings of about 600,000 shares in the Dome Mines and Dome Extension Mines. This stock will not be offered for sale now but will be kept by the syndicate in anticipation of appreciation in the holdings. The Dome Mines have been shut down for some time, but it is expected that operations will be resumed in about three months, as labor conditions are said to be better in the Dominion than at the time the shutdown was ordered.

INTERBORO'S 1918 REPORT.

Gross Income Increased, but There Was Drop in Net.

The report of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company for December, 1918, shows an increase in gross income of $41,296 to $3,782,224, compared with December, 1917, figures, while net after taxes decreased $449,957 to $1,214,939, and total income increased $70,804 to $1,941,269. Surplus after charges decreased $336,546 to $431,887.

The report for six months shows that gross increased $284,144 to $19,953,159, net after taxes decreased more than $2,600,000 to $5,945,434, and total income decreased $404,600 to $9,611,716. The item of surplus after charges amounted to $871,850, which was a decrease of $2,662,381 over the corresponding period in 1917.

To Issue Federal Tax Booklet.

The Bank of the Manhattan Company will issue a booklet on the new Federal tax law, which will be available for distribution as soon as the law is enacted. The booklet will contain the full text of the income tax, war excess profit tax, and other provisions of the Revenue act, together with explanatory summaries.

Dependence on Investments

Almost all successful Americans hope sometime to be more or less free from business cares and to benefit in later years from their early thrift and foresightedness. Financial freedom can ordinarily be gained only through good investments.

We invite attention to the extraordinary income now available from many securities that can be depended upon for years to come. At the moment $1,000 can be made to buy as large an income as $1,500 would a few years ago.

SMELTING DIVIDEND CUT TO 4 PER CENT.

Directors Reduce the Quarterly Rate from 1½ to 1 Per Cent.

WALL STREET IS SURPRISED

Stagnation in Sale of Copper and Poor Outlook, It Is Believed, Affected Company's Earnings.

Directors of the American Smelting and Refining Company yesterday reduced the quarterly dividend disbursement on the common stock from 1½ per cent. to 1 per cent., thus placing the junior issue on a 4 per cent. annual basis, as compared with the regular 6 per cent. rate which has been in force since December, 1916. The regular quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent. was declared on the preferred. The common stock dividend is payable March 15 to holders of record Feb. 26 and the preferred dividend is payable March 1 to holders of record of Feb. 11.

The action of the Directors in cutting the common dividend had a pronounced effect on the stock market. Despite the unfavorable reports as to the copper industry which came from Washington the stock opened only a fraction below the close of 70¼ on Tuesday. From the opening to the close of yesterday's session the stock receded, the decline being hastened when the dividend cut was announced. The junior issue lost more than six points on yesterday's trading and ended the day at 63⅞, and eighth above the lowest point touched.

For some time there has been discussion of the possibility that the dividend on American Smelting and Refining common would be reduced, this being partly influenced by the fact that the last report for six months of 1918 showed a surplus over dividend requirements of only $113,872, as compared with the surplus for the full year preceding of $9,513,099. This fail in surplus was considered as a possible forerunner of a reduced dividend, but Wall Street was surprised yesterday when the cut was made. The anticipation was that the 6 per cent. yearly rate would apply to the last quarter, even though some of the amount might have to be made up from surplus, which is $27,069,266.

The stagnation which has prevailed in the sale of copper since the signing of the armistice, it is believed, has affected the company's earnings. A factor of greater influence in bringing about the dividend reduction, it was thought in some quarters, was the unpropitious outlook in the copper industry for the immediate future as indicated in reports from Washington, following conferences between the miners, the producers, and Secretary of Labor Wilson. It was asserted there that the surplus supply of copper amounted to about 1,000,000,000 pounds, and that there was practically no buying demand. European countries are flooded with surplus supplies of copper, and some of them have declared an embargo against the metal until the holdings of the Governments have been disposed of.

Part of the present difficulty that confronts the copper industry, it is believed, has been brought about by the continued high production which prevailed after the signing of the armistice, when demand was suddenly cut off. Recently many of the copper companies have adopted a policy of curtailing production, and some are now working at not more than 45 per cent. of capacity, with a further closing down of operations probable. There is also talk that the price of copper may fall well below the 23 cents which the larger producers are still asking. In such a case the companies, it is pointed out, would be facing a serious loss on the present supply of copper, which was mined under high cost conditions.

LITTLE DEMAND FOR COTTON

Market Is Depressed by Strikes and Closing of Mills.

A slow and irregular movement characterized yesterday's cotton market opening. Near months were generally down, while the new crop options were unchanged to 10 points up at the outset. There was little demand and not much pressure of sales, and the market hung fire for a time, then moved up a little, on an average less than 20 points, and finally reacted, closing at net losses on the day of 15 to 25 points for the active months.

The labor situation again came close to dominating the market. The local ring traders professed not to be much impressed by the news of the day, but after some early short covering these traders generally were numbered among the sellers. Just where other big speculative centres stood yesterday would be difficult to say, chiefly for the reason that both buying and selling orders appeared to come from Liverpool and the South, and neither the buying nor the selling was in great volume.

Reports from Lawrence, as well as from cities and towns in Georgia and the Carolinas, spoke of spreading strikes, and while the news was not as bad as it was on the previous day, it was quite bad enough. At Lawrence some new mills shut down and there were several shutdowns in the South.

Advices from abroad indicate that the troubles there are in no wise diminished. However, there is an almost universal belief here that the spinners will, sooner or later, be forced to meet the demands of the operatives. Thus the consumption of cotton will be virtually unaltered in quantity, and this is the chief consideration of the cotton market. The same argument applies to the American labor situation, and this, no doubt, is one of the reasons, if not, in fact, the chief reason, for the only moderate influence of labor troubles in present cotton prices. It is admitted, of course, that current consumption will fall off, but it will be compensated later. The ginning report for January is expected to show a big decrease, and the February report will probably show a greater decline, but a good deal of ground should be recovered later.

THE UNION TRUST COMPANY OF PITTSBURGH, Trustee

The Philadelphia Company was incorporated in Pennsylvania in 1884. It owns or controls an extensive gas producing and distributing system in Pennsylvania and West Virginia, furnishing the greater part of the entire gas supply of the city of Pittsburgh. It also controls, through stock ownership, the electric railway system in Pittsburgh and vicinity. It also controls the Duquesne Light Company (through ownership of its entire common capital stock) which does substantially all the commercial electric light and power business in Pittsburgh and in the greater part of Allegheny and Beaver Counties, Pennsylvania.

From official information, we further summarize as follows:

The Notes are to be a direct obligation of the Philadelphia Company and are to be collaterally secured by pledge of 200% in par value of that Company's First Refunding and Collateral Trust Mortgage 5% Bonds.

The properties and securities covered by these Notes are valued at more than $101,000,000, or over twice the entire $41,931,000 funded debt of the Company, including these Notes.

These $10,000,000 Notes and $9,794,000 Debenture Bonds (ratably secured under the First Refunding and Collateral Trust Mortgage) aggregating $19,794,000 are thus secured through a first lien on properties and securities valued at more than $49,000,000, or over twice the amount of this indebtedness.

Net Income of the Philadelphia Company after deducting Operating Expenses, Taxes, and Depreciation for the last 3 fiscal years ended March 31, and the 12 months ended December 31, 1918, compare with Fixed Charges as follows:

Years Ended March 31	1915	1916	1917	1918	12 mos. ended December 31, 1918
Net Income	$4,852,056	$5,829,173	$6,245,748	$6,433,983	$7,031,436
Fixed Charges	1,940,547	1,906,825	1,796,499	2,131,868	2,097,991
Balance	$2,911,509	$3,922,348	$4,449,249	$4,302,115	$4,933,445

Present Annual Fixed Charges including interest on these $10,000,000 Notes are $2,204,050. Net income for the 12 months ended December 31, 1918, was $7,031,436 or more than three times these charges.

Sinking Funds for the retirement of the Company's funded debt aggregate $789,000 per year, of which $400,000 per year must be applied to retire these Notes by purchase at not above the redemption price or to call by lot, if not so purchaseable.

The Company has an uninterrupted dividend record from 1885 to 1919 with the exception of the year 1897, and its average annual dividends on the Common Stock have been over 6%, which is the rate now being paid on $42,943,000 Common Stock.

The Personal Side of a Trust Company

IN considering the Trust Company as executor, many persons imagine that such relationship precludes the personal touch so likely to be desired by relatives and other beneficiaries. This is far from true.

On assuming the duties of executor, this company at once establishes the closest possible relationship with those interested through an executive officer, who makes it his business to acquaint himself as fully as consistent with the many and varied details involved.

His services are thenceforth highly individual and personal. He is responsible to this Company, which in turn is responsible to the estate and to the Court.

Trust Company executorship costs no more than individual. Let us explain some of the many advantages.

AMERICAN CITIES COMPANY

The undersigned Trustee has in its possession a majority of the stock, both preferred and common, of the following companies:

New Orleans Railway & Light Company,
The Memphis Street Railway Company,
Knoxville Railway & Light Company,
Birmingham Railway, Light & Power Company,
Houston Lighting & Power Company,
Little Rock Railway and Electric Company.

This stock is pledged and is being held to secure the payment of the 5-6% Collateral Trust Gold Bonds of the American Cities Company.

Several of the above-named companies have sent out notices of annual meetings of stockholders to be held in the near future. Until an event of default happened under the Indenture securing said bonds the American Cities Company had the right to demand the voting of this stock at such meetings, but said right has been forfeited by the happening of an event of default as defined in Section 3 of Article Six of said Indenture. Therefore, notice is given to the bondholders that any suggestions from them relative to the voting of said stock will be considered by the Trustee, and such action will be taken by the Trustee upon demand of the requisite number of bondholders, as is authorized under the Indenture, upon such bondholders complying with the terms and conditions thereof. Prompt action on the part of the bondholders is necessary, as time presses.

SAYS CITY IS PAST LEGAL DEBT LIMIT

TELLS OF VALUE BOOSTING

Done in Mayor Gaynor's Time, He Says—He Favors Sesselberg Taxation Bills.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 5.—New York City has exceeded its constitutional limit, Robert E. Dowling, prominent New York real estate operator, told the Assembly Cities Committee this afternoon, the outstanding funded debt of the city, he said, was nearer 20 per cent. than 10 per cent. of the assessed valuation of its taxable realty that the Constitution permits.

The members of the committee sat up in amazement when Mr. Dowling spoke. He said that the violation of the constitutional prohibition against reckless piling up of public debts had been made possible by arbitrary and criminal boosting of real estate valuations in the city for purposes of taxation.

"Within the last few days," said Mr. Dowling, "I have been offered property assessed at $1,150,000 for $490,000, and I will give you the address of the property if you want me to. That is merely by way of illustrating how this arbitrary boosting of values has worked.

Gaynor Began It, He Says.

"The thing began with Mayor Gaynor. He wanted to complete a certain portion of the subway system and found that the city could not, within the debt limit, secure the money that was needed for the purpose. Mayor Gaynor is dead, and I hate to say it, but what he did cannot possibly be defended. Without the slightest attempt at concealment he issued peremptory orders to the municipal Tax Commissioners to increase real estate assessment already made by $650,000,000 to enable the city to borrow $65,000,000 more than it had a right to borrow. No other Mayor could have done that and got away with it and, as I told Mayor Hylan some little time ago, if any other Mayor tried to, we will do our best to have him removed."

Mr. Dowling was speaking in favor of two bills introduced by Assemblyman Henry Sesselberg of Richmond. One limits the taxation on real estate in New York City to 2 per cent. The present tax rate in New York is from $2.36 to $2.40 on each $100 of valuation. The other bill does away with the indebtedness exemption in the personal property tax law.

At the opening of the hearing, Assistant Corporation Counsel Edward J. McGoldrick, told the committee that the New York City authorities were preparing a series of measures dealing with taxation and would like to have action on the Sesselberg bills deferred until all could be considered together. Mayor Hylan and Controller Craig are both opposed to a real estate tax rate fixed by law, but it is understood that the Sesselberg bills will be passed and sent to Mayor Hylan for his approval.

Mr. Dowling urged that that course be adopted. He said that William R. Hearst, who is a member of the committee appointed by Mayor Hylan to devise a scheme for raising new revenues, had warned him against having the Sesselberg bills presented to the Legislature.

Up to Hylan, He Declares.

"Send the bill down to the Mayor and see whether he has the nerve to veto it," said Mr. Dowling. "It is up to him. He says he believes in the principle embodied in this bill, but does not see where the money with which to run the government of the city is to come from if you make it a law."

Mr. Dowling said that the lawmakers should not permit the Mayor's apprehensions to deter them from enacting the Sesselberg bills.

"The only way to limit the expenditures of the city," he continues, "is by curtailing the power of taxation. If this Legislature does not put restraint on the Board of Estimate it will make no difference what other taxes you may provide. If New York City should get $50,000,000 out of the proposed new State income tax it would make no difference. They would just spend that much more and charge up the rest against real estate."

Mr. Dowling drew a gloomy picture of the condition of the mortgage market in New York, due, he said, almost entirely to the fear of constantly rising tax rates.

"The savings banks and insurance companies have their safes filled with mortgages on which they cannot collect," he said. "If the banks tried to collect they would go to the wall. Unless you do something to correct the situation you will not, as now, have a few people coming here and speaking with great restraint before you, but you will have a furious mob marching on the capital to make clamorous demand for justice."

Mr. Dowling and other speakers who appeared before the committee said that mortgages were being called every day and were not being renewed except at greatly reduced figures. The committee was told that owing to prohibitive taxation more than to war conditions this had become the fixed policy of the big mortgage corporations, and that it would work incalculable hardship on persons of moderate means who were trying to buy homes.

Regarding the other bill, which takes out of the personal tax law the provision which permits persons subject to this tax claim indebtedness as an offset, Mr. Dowling said it was this provision which made the swearing off of personal taxes such an easy thing and that as a result men with many millions of personal property in New York City escaped personal property taxes entirely. Real estate, Mr. Dowling said, suffered in proportion.

"Under the present law," he said, "it is not possible to collect personal taxes from any one whose credit is good. All he has to do is to take a certain part of his hoarded securities, put them up as collateral for a loan equal in amount to the assessment against him, and then go before the Tax Board and swear off."

Former Judge Walter H. Knapp, President of the State Tax Commission, appearing before a sub-committee of the Joint Legislative Committees on Taxation this afternoon, advocated a State tax on all incomes, regardless of source or size, to be divided between the State and the locality where collected. The only possible exception, Commissioner Knapp said, might be income from Federal bonds which probably could not be taxed in this State. Such a tax, supplemented by a tax on business and on tangible personal property, would tend to materially ease the tax burden on real estate, in his opinion.

Senator Julius Miller of Manhattan introduced a bill today providing that 50 per cent. of the tax collected under the inheritance tax law should revert to the locality where raised. Under the present law the State takes all. Figures assembled by Senator Miller show that $37,493,112 was raised in revenue from this source in New York City between 1913 and 1917. He said his proposal was fair and that the revenue was needed to make up for the loss in excise revenues.

MIDVALE NET PROFITS DROP.

$5,023,997 for Last Quarter, Compared with $10,882,037 in 1917.

The Midvale Steel and Ordnance Company for three months ended Dec. 31, 1918, reports net profits after charges and war taxes of $5,023,997, as compared with profits of $7,793,627 for the preceding quarter, and profits of $10,882,037 for the December quarter of 1917. The profits of the quarter just passed were equivalent to $2.51 a share on the capital stock. In the preceding quarter the profits were equivalent to $3.89 a share, and in the December quarter of 1917 they were $5.44 a share.

As compiled from the company's quarterly reports the net profits for the year 1918 are indicated to have been $29,163,408 after charges and war profits taxes or equivalent to $14.58 a share on the stock. This compares with net profits of $34,235,503 for 1917, this amount being equivalent to $17.12 a share. No figures are available as to the reserves for Federal taxes.

DIFFER ON IRON OUTLOOK.

"No Buying," Says Iron Age; "Improved Greatly," Says Review.

Divergent views as to indications in the steel industry are expressed by The Iron Age and The Iron Trade Review. The former holds that no buying movements in either domestic or foreign trade are visible, and the latter, contends that the last week has seen the outlook brightened by a better sentiment in trade circles and heavier bookings. The Iron Age says:

"Though needs on all sides are admitted, no one seems to discover how to take the initiative to establish conditions attractive enough to result in a deal. There is every likelihood that the world's mental sickness following the shock of stopping the war will show no betterment before Spring.

"Further slight reductions in ocean freight rates are a help in the export outlook, but transportation costs, four and five times the former normal charges, lead to expectations of other downward readjustments. Pig iron sellers find their prices still higher than those quoted by English furnaces."

The Iron Trade Review says:

"Sentimentally the first real signs of improvement since the adjustment process began have developed in the iron and steel market during the last week. It must be emphasized, however, that the tangible results of this improvement in the way of heavier bookings are not important. Such improved bookings are reflected, for instance, in somewhat better buying of steel bars by some of the Eastern jobbers, by better specifications all around of wire products, &c. From a statistical standpoint the situation has improved greatly. Contraction of mill operations seems to have reached the point where it more nearly balances against the flow of miscellaneous new business plus the tonnage being ordered against the blacklogs previously accumulated."

Convicted for Unpaid Income Tax.

Seymour L. Rau, a life insurance broker, was convicted in the Federal District Court yesterday on an indictment charging him with failing to make any income tax return for 1916 and 1917. The defendant's income, it was said, made him liable for a tax for the two years of more than $300. Prosecutor George M. Curtis, Jr., stated that the conviction was the first one obtained on such a charge. Federal Judge Knox will sentence Rau tomorrow.

SEES NATION BEGINNING FINANCIAL RECOVERY

Federal Reserve Board Finds Readjustment Coming After Abnormal War Conditions.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Definite evidences of the beginning of financial recuperation following abnormal war conditions were set forth today by the Federal Reserve Board in a review of the forthcoming February reserve bulletin. These evidences are: Increase of bank balances at financial centres, a tendency toward lower rates for money, lessening of the amount of paper held by Federal Reserve and Member Banks, inflow of gold coin and gold certificates at banks, indicating greater confidence in the financial situation, and lessened demand for money, and decline in the volume of Federal Reserve notes outstanding, demonstrating the elasticity of the Federal Reserve system.

The board deplored evidences of the relaxation of wartime economies, saying that the industries of the United States and other countries would soon need quantities of capital, and that it behooved Americans to continue to be thrifty and pile up reserves of credit.

"The return of active production and consumption is being retarded," the board observed, "by high expenses of production."

Despite big exports of foods and raw materials in December, the board believes that "we are still facing the problem of finding or making a market for our manufactured goods in foreign countries, in which we can hardly hope to make the desired success so long as prices continue upon a level higher than that existing in other countries." It also says:

"Those countries which first succeed in readjusting their costs of production and restoring their industry to a normal level of values will be the most successful in developing their exports and controlling the markets of consuming nations the world over."

MAY MOVE TO WASHINGTON.

Bankers Vote on New Headquarters for Association.

Members of the American Bankers Association are receiving copies of a referendum asking their expression of opinion on a resolution adopted by the Administrative Committee on Jan. 24, that the headquarters of the association be removed as soon as possible to Washington, D. C. While New York bankers will probably remain apathetic on the question it is believed in some quarters that the replies from out-of-town bankers will not favor the plan by an overwhelming majority.

The association has had its headquarters in New York for more than thirty years, and it is believed in some quarters that opposition to the plan will follow. The matter has been brought up at this time as the result of the establishment recently of a Washington office of the State Bankers Association.

PROPOSALS.

OFFICE OF COMMISSIONER OF PUBLIC FINANCES OF THE CITY OF NEW ORLEANS.

CITY HALL.
New Orleans, Feb. 3rd, 1919.

The City of New Orleans, acting under authority of Act 179 of the General Assembly of the State of Louisiana for the year 1908, ratified by Constitutional Amendment, and now a part of the Constitution of the State of Louisiana, will receive sealed proposals at the office of the Commissioner of Public Finances of the City of New Orleans up to twelve (12) o'clock noon on the 6th day of March, 1919, for the purchase of $600,000.00 in face value of Public Belt Railroad Bonds of the City of New Orleans, authorized by the Act aforementioned, and the constitutional amendment ratifying same, and of the numbers, denominations and maturities of the authorized issue of $2,000,000.00, and in the form of and in accordance with the bond schedule of the maturities of the entire authorized issue, as prescribed by an ordinance of the City of New Orleans, being No. 8628, N. C. S., approved May 14, 1912, and Ordinance No. 5316, Commission Council Series, approved January 28th, 1919, of said city, authorizing the present offering.

Said proposals shall be received under and subject to the following conditions, to-wit:

Proposals must be in writing, sealed, and marked on the outside of the envelope "Proposals for the purchase of $600,000.00 of Public Belt Railroad Bonds of the City of New Orleans," and shall be accompanied by a certified check on some chartered bank in the City of New Orleans, for an amount equal to one per cent. of the aggregate amount of the bid, which said check of the successful bidder or bidders shall be cashed and the proceeds retained by the City of New Orleans as a guarantee that the successful bidder or bidders will comply with its or their bids, and the said proceeds shall be applied to the payment of the bonds last delivered to the successful bidder or bidders, respectively. In case of the neglect or refusal to comply with any bid, the proceeds of said check shall be forfeited to the Public Belt Railroad Commission of the City of New Orleans.

No sale shall be made unless the aggregate of the bids received equals the full amount of the present offering of $600,000.00 in face value, and the adjudication shall be made to the highest bidder, provided, however, that no adjudication shall take place for less than par and accrued interest. All matured interest coupons shall be cut from said bonds and cancelled, and the successful bidder shall pay the interest which may have accrued on said bonds up to the date of delivery. The bonds shall be paid for in cash as fast as said bonds can be signed and delivered. All bonds will be delivered within thirty days from the opening of said bids. The right is reserved to reject any and all bids.

Further particulars and information will be furnished on application to the Public Belt Railroad Commission or the undersigned. The final opinion of Wood & Oakley, lawyers, Chicago, Ill., as to the legality of this issue will be furnished to the successful bidder if so desired.

A. G. RICKS,
Commissioner of Public Finances of the City of New Orleans.

Coupon notes in denomination of $1,000, registrable as to principal only, and exchangeable for fully registered notes of $1,000, $5,000 and $10,000 denomination.

CONTINENTAL AND COMMERCIAL TRUST AND SAVINGS BANK, CHICAGO, TRUSTEE

The following information is summarized from a letter of Fairfax Harrison, Esq., President of the Southern Railway Company:

These notes will be a direct obligation of the Southern Railway Company and are to be secured by deposit with the Continental and Commercial Trust and Savings Bank, Chicago, as Trustee, of $43,500,000, par value Southern Railway Company Development and General Mortgage 4% Bonds which are secured by a general mortgage upon practically the entire property of the Company.

The proceeds of this note issue will be applied toward the retirement of the $25,000,000 Two-Year 5% Gold Notes maturing March 2, 1919, and secured by the same collateral, which will be pledged for this issue.

In the ten and one-half year period ended Dec. 31, 1917, the surplus earnings of the Southern Railway Company over all charges for interest and rentals aggregated $66,364,517.91. During this period the company distributed $10,800,000 in cash dividends, the remaining $55,564,517.91 being devoted to the improvement of the property and to strengthening the company's financial position.

Under Federal control during the calendar year 1918 the railway operating income as reported by the United States Railroad Administration was $29,291,869.72. The basic standard return to the Company under the Federal Control Act is $18,728,536.63 subject to the Company's pending claims for allowances in excess of this figure. Other corporate income for last year is estimated at $2,200,000. After providing for estimated fixed charges and war taxes for the year 1918 aggregating $15,200,000, the Company also retired equipment trust obligations amounting to $3,296,000.

Under private ownership for 5½ years ended Dec. 31, 1917, the balance after payment of all interest charges and rentals averaged $7,851,480.62. For the year ended Dec. 31, 1917, the balance after payment of all interest charges and rentals amounted to $14,037,415.

These notes are offered if, when and as issued, strictly subject to prior sale and advance in price.

76TH CONSECUTIVE DIVIDEND.

The Board of Directors at a meeting held February 3d, 1919, declared a regular quarterly dividend of $2.00 per share on the capital stock of the Company outstanding, payable on March 1, 1919, to stockholders of record at 3 P. M. on February 14, 1919.

Checks for the above dividend will be mailed.

H. P. ERWIN, Treasurer.

AMERICAN DISTRICT TELEGRAPH COMPANY
(of New Jersey)

The situation with respect to the affairs of the above-named Company and its statement that no rental will be payable to it by the Western Union Telegraph Company during the five-year period ending December 31, 1922, makes it imperative for the stockholders of the American District Telegraph Company to unite for the protection of their interests and the determination of their rights.

For that purpose and at the request of stockholders the undersigned have consented to act as a Committee under the terms of a PROTECTIVE AGREEMENT which has been prepared, copies of which may be obtained at the office of the Depositary thereunder, UNITED STATES MORTGAGE AND TRUST COMPANY, 55 CEDAR STREET, NEW YORK.

Stockholders of the American District Telegraph Company of New Jersey are invited to deposit their certificates of stock duly endorsed for transfer, with necessary stamps attached, with the Depositary, and the Depositary will issue its Certificates of Deposit therefor.

In the judgment of the Committee the interests of stockholders will best be served by the IMMEDIATE deposit of their shares.

Dated: New York, February 5, 1919.

AUTO SHOW'S SALES BREAKS ITS RECORD

Many Predict Demand During Coming Year Will Be Greatest in Industry's History.

DISCUSS AIRCRAFT ENGINES

Automotive Engineers Are Told Engine Development in Air Service Will Not Greatly Affect Autos.

There was no falling off yesterday in the large attendance that has made the present automobile show in Madison Square Garden and the Sixty-ninth Regiment Armory so great a success. More orders for quick delivery of new cars were taken than on any preceding day and this eagerness on the part of the buying public indicated what so many men in the industry have predicted that the coming year will witness the largest demand for motor cars in the history of the industry.

A prominent engineer who has been attending the show during the week said, after a careful comparison of the leading makes of 1919, that the general average for what might be termed the composite car of the year ran toward a wheelbase of 120 inches, six-cylinder motor L head and bloc cast, with a bore of approximately 3¼ inches and stroke of 4½ inches, tires 34 by 4 inch and the price $2,128. This average does not include the Ford car and the price was reached by averaging the values of the chassis models and not the number of cars produced. The average car of the year has a water cooled motor, horsepower rating of 33, centrifugal pump equipment, lubrication by the combination splash and pressure system, single ignition being used, the clutch of the disc type bring part of the unit power plant, the gearset of the ordinary three speed selective type and the drive being through a propeller shaft to a spiral bevel pinion and ring gear to the floating rear axle.

One of the newer cars in the Armory is the Phianna, of which a chassis, showing every detail of mechanism and a limousine fitted with a custom-built body, are shown. The design of the car throughout is aimed at simplicity and sensibility. Extra long cantilever springs are used to insure the utmost comfort in riding and the rear axle construction, equipped with dual torque arms and triple compensating service brakes, is a great prevention to skidding on wet pavements. The Phianna is shown by the Morton W. Smith Company.

The Dort exhibit in the Garden exhibition hall includes a stripped chassis, showing the simplicity of the four-cylinder engine; a five-passenger sedan finished in blue and green, and a roomy five-passenger open touring car. The Auburn cars, close by, show a new body design, the bevel edge body having been adopted this year. The feature of the new models is the four-passenger sport car, finished in dark blue.

All of the Jordan cars in the Armory have aluminium bodies. It is more costly than other material. Edward S. Jordan, President of the company, who has been at the show throughout the week, says that the saving of weight in the use of aluminium means economy in fuel and tire consumption while contributing to the neat appearance of the closed models.

The Haynes cars, of which four attractive open and closed models are shown, are practically unaltered from the standard models, the body design revealing refinements in graceful, straight lines. Aluminium is being used for the bodies this year, the first time for almost four years. The newest type is the roomy seven-passenger touring car, fitted with wire wheels, an extra but very neat equipment. The other three models are the "fourdore" roadster, sedan, and coupe. The Haynes is one of the few makes providing both 6 and 12 cylinders for the same sized chassis. The 6-cylinder motor is in more general use, but there is a steadily increasing demand for the 12-cylinder type.

Many members of the Society of Automotive Engineers, which is holding its annual session in the Engineering Societies' Building, attended the show in the evening. At the afternoon conference Henry M. Crane, Chief Engineer of the Wright-Martin Aircraft Corporation, discussed the possible effect of aircraft engine development in automobile practice. He said that airplane engine design will not have any great effect upon automobile engineering, at least not in cars for passenger and freight service. With racing cars the conditions more resemble those peculiar to airplanes, but any material reduction in weight of motor car engines would be at the expense of durability and ease of construction and repair. Indirectly the motor car industry will profit by many of the lessons and experiences obtained during the war with airplane construction and operation.

Lieut. Col. Herbert W. Alden, who has recently returned from overseas, read an interesting paper on the war efficiency of tanks.

"It is doubtful if any new means of warfare has had so hard a time getting started and securing its just consideration as has the tank," he said. "Thanks, however, to its inherent worth it has steadily advanced and demonstrated its value, and now is universally accepted as an indispensible arm of the service. Its future is secure. Its development has only just begun, and it is still in its infancy.

"Nearly all of the tank mortalities resulting from direct artillery hits have occurred when tanks were standing still, either awaiting orders or unable to move for mechanical reasons. Thus it has been demonstrated very conclusively that against artillery fire the best protection of the tank is its own speed and mobility, and not the armor which it carries."

Edward S. Jordan, President of the Jordan Motor Car Company, entertained his sales force at dinner in the evening at the Hotel Claridge, and the Cutting-Larson Company, distributers for the Oldsmobile cars, gave its annual dealers' dinner at Reisenweber's. C. H. Larson, Chairman of the Show Committee, presided.

SAVINGS FUNDS INCREASING.

First 20 Days of January Shows $32,458,449 More in City Banks.

A rapidly increasing return of funds to the savings banks of the city is shown in figures compiled by the Savings Bank Section of the American Bankers' Association. During the months of November and December last the increase totaled $42,645,193, whereas the first twenty days of last month showed an increase of $32,458,449. In connection with this the association says:

"While the increase in savings since Nov. 1, 1918, seems unusual, still, when compared with the figures at the time America entered the war, there is not shown any net increase as the result of the addition of depositors' interest on the books of the banks. Most of the increase from Nov. 1, 1918, to Jan. 20, 1919, was reported as returned hoarded funds, and not normal increase."

The following table shows the increased deposits by counties for the two periods mentioned and the total deposits on Jan. 20, 1119:

	Increase in Deposits Nov. 1 to Dec. 31,'18.	Increase in Deposits Jan. 1 to 20,'19.	Total Amount of Deposits Jan. 20,'19.

$25,000,000 SWIFT ISSUE.

Six Per Cent. Debentures Will Be Payable on Aug. 15, 1921.

Swift & Co. dispatches received in this city yesterday announced the completion of arrangements to issue $25,000,000 6 per cent. debenture notes to be dated Feb. 15, 1919, and to mature Aug. 15, 1921.

The advices from Chicago quoted L. A. Carton, Treasurer of the company, as saying that the issue will be underwritten by the Illinois Trust and Savings Bank, the Continental and Commercial Trust and Savings Bank, and the Merchants Loan and Trust Company. It was also reported that the first-named institution will manage the syndicate.

REPORT GAIN IN SALES.

The report, just issued, of Montgomery, Ward & Co. for the year of 1918 shows net profits after allowances for war taxes amounting to $4,390,181, which was equivalent after the deduction of preferred dividends to $12.78 a share on the 300,000 shares of outstanding common stock of no par value. In the preceding year $12.60 was earned on the same stock. Total sales during the year amounted to $76,166,848, which compared with $73,512,645 in 1917, $62,044,336 in 1916, and $49,308,587 in 1915.

War taxes are shown to have increased in the year to $2,000,000 from $1,289,594 in the preceding year.

FORM LIQUIDATION PLAN.

Proposal of Stockholders' Committee of American Malting Company.

A committee for the first preferred stock holders of the American Malting Company has announced a plan of liquidation of the company and the formation of a new company to be known as the American Grain Products Company. Under the terms of the offer to be made by the new company the first preferred share holder of the old company will receive approximately $30 in cash, and may subscribe to the extent of 70 per cent. of his holdings in new stock of the American Grain Products Company. The subscription price of $36 a share is to be paid by the company.

The organizers of the new company will receive 5,500 shares of the 55,000 shares of stock, and agree to take over so much of the remainder as shall not be subscribed for by the stockholders of the old company to the extent of providing a cash capital of at least $1,500,000. The stock of the new company is without par value, and its book value is figured at $36 a share. As about 90 per cent. of the preferred stock holders voted not long ago in favor of liquidation it is believed that the plan will be received with favor.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

Prices were firm at the close of the market yesterday on the Consolidated Stock Exchange, though final quotations were below earlier high levels. The feature of the session was the heavy depression in smelters, due to the unexpected reduction in the dividend from 6 to 4 per cent. The pressure in this issue caused declines in the other copper issues, which closed fractionally lower, recovering in the final moments of the session. Trading was in small volume and professional in character.

INSTRUCTION.

AUTOMOBILE MECHANICS

TRAINED for EXPERT GARAGE WORK.

IN addition to our regular day and evening shop and driving course, we now offer, with new quarters and equipment, a practical course in Automobile Repair work.

Our intensive, individual instruction gives in four months, eight hours a day, a knowledge that would otherwise take years to secure. Repair work will be given on cars that must see actual service.

The instruction includes the use of machine tools and lathe work necessary to make tools and repair parts. It is the only school in New York where repairs are actually made, as well as taught.

Prepare yourself to become a garage owner, manager, or expert mechanician.

Check your interest, mail coupon and further particulars will be sent.

REAL ESTATE FIELD

One of the most important of the many big realty deals which have taken place in the financial district during the last few weeks was closed yesterday when the Postal Life Building at 35, 37, and 39 Nassau Street and 56 and 58 Liberty Street was sold to strong financial interests reported to be the National Bank of Commerce.

The property consists of a fifteen-story office building on the southwest corner of Liberty and Nassau Streets, adjoining the National Bank of Commerce on the north and the Guaranty Trust Company on the east. It is opposite the large site recently purchased by the United States Government for the new Federal Reserve Bank and is directly across the street from the Mutual Life Building.

The consideration was about $2,500,000, according to George R. Read & Co., who sold the property for the Incas Realty Company, a holding corporation controlled by the Postal Life Insurance Company, represented by Senator Charles C. Lockwood. Title to the property will be taken in the name of the City Real Estate Company, represented by Walter Lindner of the Title Guarantee and Trust Company.

The buying in the financial district started with the purchase by the Federal Government of practically all of the block bounded by Nassau Street, Liberty Street, William Street, and Maiden Lane. It was followed closely by the acquisition of 74 Broadway by the Central Union Trust Company.

Other recent transactions include the purchase of the old insurance building, corner of Pine and William Streets, by the Bank of America; the purchase by the National City Company of the old Mechanics and Metals Bank building, at 52 Wall Street; the purchase of 42 Broadway by a large steamship company; the purchase of additional land at Fulton and Ann Streets by the National Park Bank; the purchase of the J. & W. Seligman building, at South William Street, by Wilcox, Peck & Hughes, marine insurance; the leasing of the banking rooms in the old Central Trust Building, at 54 Wall Street, to J. & W. Seligman, and the reported acquisition of additional land for the Bankers Trust Company.

The Postal Life owned no real estate until several years ago, when it took over the Provident Savings Life Assurance Society, with the approval of the State Department of Insurance. In this transaction it acquired all of the old Provident Savings real estate. Later it effected a big trade by which it disposed of the property 80 and 82 Wooster Street, 3 East Seventeenth Street, the property southeast corner of 106th Street and Amsterdam Avenue, and an office building at Atlanta, Ga., and secured the new insurance and banking building, 511 Fifth Avenue, southeast corner of Forty-third Street, which is now occupied by the Postal Life Insurance Company.

The Postal Life two weeks ago disposed of a loft building at 140-144 West Twenty-second Street, to Frederick Brown. Two other important realty transactions are now under negotiation by the company, and if they go through it will dispose of practically all of its remaining real estate except its home office building, 511 Fifth Avenue.

During the last two months strong financial interests have made bids for the Postal Life Building, at 511 Fifth Avenue.

Times Square Lease Involving About $3,000,000 Pending.

Negotiations are pending for a long lease of one of the most valuable corners in the upper Times Square section involving a total rental of more than $2,500,000 and with the proposed improvement will exceed the three-million-dollar mark.

The transaction involves the seven-story structure on the block front on the north side of Fifty-first Street, extending from Broadway over to Seventh Avenue, which has been occupied by Healey & Co., auto and coach builders, for a number of years and whose tenancy expires next May.

The property has been owned by Henry A. C. Taylor for many years, and has a frontage of 100.6 feet on Broadway, 161.9 feet on Fifty-first Street, and 100.5 feet on Seventh Avenue, with a northerly line measuring 166.3 feet.

It is understood that the lease is for twenty-one years, at about $65,000 per annum, with the privilege of renewal. Frederick Winant, agent for the property, refused to discuss the transaction yesterday.

Sanatorium for Ninetieth Street.

Three four-story dwellings, occupying a combined area 60 by 100.2, at 48, 50, and 52 West Ninetieth Street, were purchased yesterday by an unnamed physician, who will convert the property into a sanatorium. Title to the property is held by the M. K. L. Realty Corporation, Edwin A. Richard, and Sarah Spingarn, who also sold another house in the same block for conversion into small apartments. The M. Morganthau Company acted as brokers.

Private Dwelling Sales.

The four-story private dwelling on a lot 20 by 100 at 44 West Ninetieth Street was sold by Mrs. Sarah Spingarn to a buyer who intends to alter the house into small suites. The property was held at $30,000. M. H. Tropauer negotiated the deal.

I. Randolph and Edward Jacob sold the four-story and basement dwelling on a lot 30 by 34 at 519 West End Avenue, southwest corner of Eighty-fifth Street, held at $40,000, to the Clare Realty Company. Pease & Elliman negotiated the sale.

Walter M. Wechsler, attorney, purchased a four-story house on lot 20 by 102.2 at 110 West Eighty-sixth Street, from Sophie Sterns. L. J. Phillips & Co. negotiated the sale of the property, which will be remodeled into small apartments.

Esther Perelman has sold to a Mr. Lewine 312 and 314 East Eighth Street, a six-story new law house, arranged for five families on a floor and containing four stores on a plot 50 by 100 between Avenues B and C.

Brown Buys Heights Apartment.

Frederick Brown, operator, purchased the five-story apartment at 562 West 191st Street, on plot 51 by 98, from the Ardshane Realty Company through Nehring Brothers. The property, held at $70,000, houses twenty families.

Resale in West Harlem.

Samuel Kaufman, a retired merchant and heavy holder of Manhattan real estate, bought the six-story elevator apartment on a plot 50 by 100 at 230 West 113th Street, near Seventh Avenue, which was bought earlier in the week by Harris & Maurice Mandelbaum from the Metropolitan Company. The house is arranged for two families on a floor and shows an annual rental of $11,000.

Holding Company Buys Three Bronx Flats Held at $150,000.

The Morgenstein Brothers Syndicate sold to the Tiffany Holding Corporation 2,027, 2,023, and 2,015 Monterey Avenue, three five-story new law tenements each on a plot 50 by 100. They show a gross rental of about $24,000 and were held at $150,000.

The Bronx Market.

The six-story elevator apartment, 85 by 125, at the northwest corner of Intervale Avenue and 163d Street, was bought for cash by Charles Siegel Levy from the E. R. A. Realty Company, D. H. Jackson, President. The deal, which involves $175,000, was arranged through L. J. Greenberger and A. D. Phelps & Damiane as brokers.

The Union Chemical Glassware Company, Inc., purchased from James F. Walker, son of the President of the Colonial Bank, two five-story apartments on plots 25 by 100 each at 2,516 to 2,520 Grand Concourse and Boulevard near Fordham Road, held at $150,000. The sale was made by A. H. Levy.

Arthur Wolff and Paul L. Loewenwarter, executors of the estate of William Ollendorf, sold the three-story brick dwellings on a lot 19.86 by 96 each at 2,393 and 2,395 Walton Avenue to Cohn & Pittman, operators. Samuel Cowen negotiated the sale.

A client of Isaac Hyman has purchased the two five-story buildings at 733 and 735 East 152d Street, adjoining the corner of Jackson Avenue, each on lot 25 by 120. The annual rental is about $6,000. The property was held at $40,000.

Frederick Brown has bought from Charles Colgate of Italy the thirty-family five-story apartment house at 1,034 Franklin Avenue, on a plot 54 by 201, near 165th Street. It was held at $70,000. Robert M. Bush & Co. were the brokers in the deal.

Brooklyn.

Samuel Berger bought the thre-story frame store and flats on plot 20 by 87 at 4,209 Fort Hamilton Parkway from the Lawyers Mortgage Company. A. J. Murphy was the broker.

The three-story brick store and apartment building located on a plot 110 by 20 on Flatbush Avenue, 127.10 feet north of Albemarle Road, has been sold by Gertrude Langenwalter to an investing client. The sale was negotiated by the McInerny-Klinck Realty Co.

Charles W. Martyn, executor, sold to Mrs. Dora Mikkelson the two-story and basement dwelling at 276 Tenth Street. Edward L. White leased for a term of years the garage at 142 Eighth Street. Both deals were made by F. C. Sauter.

Canadian Sells Westchester Property.

George Clarke of Toronto, Canada, sold his property at the corner of King Street and Lincoln Avenue, Rye, to Mrs. F. H. Bontecou of Manhattan. The property is improved with a large residence, gardener's cottage, and many outbuildings. An additional 100 acres, owned by Mr. Clarke, are leased by Mrs. Bontecou with an option to purchase. The entire property is held at $200,000, and the deal was negotiated by Fish & Marvin.

Mrs. F. C. Clifford purchased a plot on the corner of Monroe and Harwood Avenues in the Philipse Manor section of Tarrytown from the estates of Tappan Zee., Inc., through the Robert E. Farley organization.

Studebaker Company Takes Manhattan Lease.

The Studebaker Corporation of America has leased for its service station, for a term of twenty-one years, the new fireproof steel and concrete building at 217-223 West Seventy-seventh Street, adjoining the theatre at Broadway and Seventy-seventh Street. The building, which has been under construction for nearly two years, has just been completed by the Jay Estate, owner of the property. It has six full floors, and represents the latest improvements in service building construction and equipment. It is unusual in that it has light on all four sides. The Studebaker Company has subleased the large building recently constructed for its service station and assembling rooms at Anable Avenue, Long Island City, to the National Casket Company. S. Osgood Pell & Co., represented by G. M. Mabie, were the brokers.

Commercial Leases.

Henry Lehman of the Lehman's Publishing Company has leased the store at 138 West Thirty-second Street from the Gilsey Estate for a term of years. Henry Brady negotiated the deal.

Henry M. Rosenberg leased the store at 3,786 Broadway from Melville H. Bearns for a five-year term. Porter & Co. were the agents.

L. Wagner leased the northwest corner of Third Avenue and 170th Street, recently purchased by the Isear Realty Corporation, operator, for a net rental of $30,500. Louis Silverman was the broker.

The Tidewater Electric Company leased the store and basement at 44 Park Place for a term of years through George R. Read & Co., with the Potter Estate.

THE WEATHER

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Pressure is generally low tonight, except in the Central Valleys, the Northwest, and the Pacific States, but with very irregular distribution, and since Tuesday night there were rains in the Southern States, light, scattered snows in the lake region and the Northwest, light rains and snows in Pennsylvania and New Jersey and northeastward, and rains and snows over the Northern districts west of the Rocky Mountains; elsewhere the weather was fair.

Temperature changes were not of consequence, except in portions of the Central West and Southwest, where it is considerably warmer.

Rain will fall Thursday morning along the South Atlantic Coast, and snow Thursday night or Friday in the upper lake region, but with these exceptions there will be no precipitation of consequence in this forecast district during the next two days. It will be somewhat warmer Thursday in the upper lake region, the Ohio and Lower Mississippi Valleys.

Winds for Thursday and Friday along the North Atlantic Coast will be moderate northwest, with fair weather; Middle Atlantic Coast, moderate northwest, becoming variable Friday, fair; South Atlantic Coast, moderate to fresh north, except variable off the Florida Coast, rain Thursday, fair Friday.

FORECAST: TODAY AND FRIDAY.

Eastern New York, Southern New England, New Jersey, and Eastern Pennsylvania—Fair Thursday and Friday, no decided temperature change.

Western New York—Fair Thursday; Friday increasing cloudiness, no decided temperature change.

Northern New England—Fair Thursday and Friday, little change in temperature.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at 11 P. M., taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

	1918.	1919.		1918.	1919.

Baker, Addressing Waterways Congress, Declares Any Other Course Unthinkable.

NO FEAR OF BOLSHEVISM

Daniels Rebukes Those Who Tremble at That Spectre and Predicts Era of Prosperity.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Eradication of the evils of competitive warfare between water and rail transportation, development of the nation's inland waterways and its harbors, and their full utilization for the promotion of the national prosperity were urged today at the opening session of the National Rivers and Harbors Congress. Optimism concerning economic readjustments also was sounded by most of the speakers.

Indorsing the purposes of the congress, Secretaries Baker and Daniels urged against the competitive warfare which has prevented full use of the waterways for transportation in the past, and both predicted an era of industrial expansion. In this connection they discounted the fear of Bolshevism in this country, the Secretary of the Navy saying there "is no more danger of Bolshevism taking hold in America than there is of the Kaiser entering the streets of Washington."

Secretary Baker, in discussing the relation of waterways to the war and to the financial burden put on the nations of the world by the war, said improvement of rivers and harbors would be a material factor in increasing foreign commerce, for which ships now were being built. The waterway improvements, he said, also would furnish useful and profitable work for thousands upon thousands of men.

In this connection he declared it to be "an unthinkable thing that any soldier who put on the uniform of his country and either fought or was in training to fight in this war, will be allowed to remain without a job if he wants one."

"The Chambers of Commerce of this country," he said, "the chambers of industry, the large captains of industry, the organizations of manufacturers, everybody in this country, owes the men who made this country safe."

Secretary Daniels declared that the railroads broke down under their increased burden after America entered the war, while "the waters have run idly to the sea," and said the railroads "naturally broke down because they were built on a peace-time program based on the destruction of water traffic."

No matter what the national policy regarding transportation should be, Mr. Daniels said, water and rail transportation must go hand in hand, and not one bale of cotton, nor ton of ore, nor carload of steel, should go by rail if water transportation was available.

Secretary Daniels rebuked those "who tremble at the spectre of industrial depression and Bolshevism," declaring that "the man who bets on American prosperity is always going to win." He urged spending the public money for public improvements as contributing to the nation's prosperity, and warned against the expectation of the return of wages and prices to prewar standards.

MRS. ROOSEVELT SAILS.

Leaves on the Lorraine to Visit Son's Grave in France.

The French liner La Lorraine sailed at noon yesterday to reopen the New York-Havre service with nearly 1,000 passengers of whom about 400 were in the cabin and the remainder Polish soldiers, who have been recruited in this country.

Among the first cabin passengers was Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, who was accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Richard Derby, and is going to France to see the grave of her son, Quentin Roosevelt. Mrs. Roosevelt was dressed in deep black, and was seen off by Captain Archie Roosevelt, and her daughter, Mrs. Nicholas Longworth. After spending some time in France she will go to Italy to visit her sister, Miss Emily Carew, who has a villa along the Riviera, near Genoa. Mrs. Roosevelt will be met at Havre by her son, Lieut. Col. Theodore Roosevelt, Dr. Derby, and Captain Kermit Roosevelt.

HOUSE OF REFUGE INQUIRY.

Senator Thompson Assails Management of Institution for Women.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 5.—Following an attack by Senator George F. Thompson upon the management of the Western House of Refuge for Women at Albion this afternoon, Attorney General Newton announced that Deputy Attorney General Wilbur W. Chambers had been appointed to investigate the charges of mismanagement. The home is for wayward girls and women and has many New York City inmates. Mr. Chambers will begin his inquiry early next week.

Senator Thompson accused the Superintendent of the institution, Mrs. Flora Daniels, of neglect of duty, inefficiency, and of "sanctioning practices in violation of the Penal Code." His attack was made when he explained why the Senate Finance Committee had refused to report out for confirmation the nomination of Mrs. Pearl Elias of Buffalo as manager of the institution. He said Mrs. Elias had failed to direct that Mrs. Daniels perform her duties properly.

HALTS ROOSEVELT CRITIC.

Milwaukee Socialist Silenced in Legislative Attack.

Special to The New York Times.

MADISON, Wis., Feb. 5. — Senator Louis Arnold, a Milwaukee Socialist, was stopped by Lieut. Gov. Dithmar today in the midst of an exposition of Bolshevism in the course of which he said that Theodore Roosevelt's language in 1912 was that of a Bolshevist. The presiding officer ruled that Arnold was out of order in the midst of the uproar which he was creating.

The fight was over the erection of a monument to Colonel Roosevelt. The question was whether the monument would be erected in Milwaukee or Madison, and Arnold began attacking the plan to put the monument in Milwaukee. He said he never agreed with Roosevelt but once, and that was when he wrote socialism into his platform. He said it was a Bolshevist platform. He also said that suppression would cause a spread of Bolshevism, and that the erection of a monument to Roosevelt would not stop the progress of Bolshevism. At this point the uproar began.

Senator Bird declared that Milwaukee needed a Roosevelt monument as an exemplar of the true Americanism that the Rough Rider preached.

HAVE HONEYMOON AIRPLANE

Will Be Shown at Aeronautical Exhibition in the Garden.

An airplane named "The Honeymoon Express" by the Dayton-Wright Airplane Company, its designer and maker, has been brought to New York for display at the semi-official aeronautical exhibition which will be held in Madison Square Garden and the Sixty-ninth Regiment Armory from March 1 to March 15. It contains three seats, one for the pilot and two for the bride and groom. It is lavishly upholstered, and contains a heating apparatus for the comfort of the passengers. A telephone between passengers and pilot and a wind shield are other features of the plane.

A shipload of air trophies, airplanes used by our "aces" abroad, enemy planes captured, and types of foreign aircraft will be on exhibit, it was announced yesterday. A fifty-passenger hydroaeroplane will also be shown by the Government.

1,776 TROOPS ARRIVE FROM MARSEILLES

Duca d'Aosta, with 331st Artillery, First Transport Here by Way of Gibraltar.

SHE BRINGS 132 CASUALS

Major Robertson of Rockefeller Institute Returns After Twenty Months' Service Abroad.

The first transport to bring troops to New York from the Mediterranean by way of the Strait of Gibraltar was the Duca d'Aosta, which arrived yesterday morning from Marseilles with 1,776 officers and men and docked at the foot of West Fifty-seventh street, North River. On board were the 331st Field Artillery complete, 60 officers and 1,282 men, Battery E of the 339th Field Artillery, a detachment of the 333d Field Artillery, and 132 casual officers. The artillery units consisted of troops coming chiefly from Illinois, Wisconsin, South Dakota, Minnesota and Missouri.

Major O. H. Robertson of the Rockefeller Institute returned on the Duca d'Aosta. He went to France in May, 1917, and has served ever since with the base hospitals there and in Flanders. Another New Yorker on board was Lieutenant Leslie Cooper of Morristown, N. J., son of the late Rear Admiral Cooper, who was with the first pursuit group of the 27th Aero Squadron. He fought on the Argonne front.

Army officers on the transport said Marseilles swarmed with soldiers from all parts of the world who had been brought to France to fight for the Allies. There were Australians, New Zealanders, Arabs from Algeria, and duskier warriors from Morocco with yellow fezes; Tonkinese, Bengalese infantry and lancers; Goorkhas from the slopes of the Himalayas with their curved creeses; Senegambians, Maltese, Chinese, Mongolians, Maoris, Malagash, Sudanese, Papuans and Fijians.

Won Rank and D. S. C.

One of the young officers to return on the Duca D'Aosta wearing the Distinguished Service Cross was Lieutenant Martin Frank Constantineau of Lowell, Mass., who was a private when he left the United States in the regular army. He won the cross and his commission at Château-Thierry on July 23 for bravery on the field. As Corporal in charge of a platoon Constantineau found his little party surrounded by Germans. They succeeded in fighting their way through, but when he reached the American trenches the Corporal found that three of his men had dropped in No Man's Land from the effects of gas. He made three trips under the fire of the enemy's field and machine guns, rescuing one of his men each time until he collapsed, just after dragging the third unconscious soldier inside the lines.

Shot from Sky in Airplane.

Lieutenant Frank F. Hughes of Atlanta, Ga., who served one year in the American Air Forces, had his machine shot down while 10,000 feet in the air and laid in a shell hole for three days, subsisting on rain water and dandelions. Lieutenant Harrison R. Tucker of Fairmount, Va., a member of the 93d Aero Squadron, who returned yesterday after an absence of seventeen months, flew at St. Mihiel, the Argonne, Château-Thierry, and also had six months with the Italian Army. Lieutenant M. P. Kelly of St. Paul, Minn., also attached to the 93d Aero Squadron, fought in the Verdun sector and has two airplanes to his credit.

The French liner Espagne is due to arrive from Bordeaux this afternoon with 422 officers and men, including Casual Company 29 of New York, and casual companies of Pennsylvania and Illinois. The Hampden, with twenty-one officers and men, which left Bordeaux on Jan. 7 and had to put to Bermuda on Jan. 28 for coal and provisions, and the Zacapa, with seventy-five casual officers, six men and seven officers of the 37th United States Coast Artillery and twenty-six nurses, are also due in port.

HAVANA PAPERS TIED UP.

Compositors on All Dailies Join Job Printers' Strike.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAVANA, Feb. 5.—All Havana printing plants are at a standstill tonight, and no newspapers will appear tomorrow because of a strike of linotypists in sympathy with fellow-unionists in the job printing offices who have been out two weeks.

The Cuban Government endeavored to bring about a settlement of the printers' strike yesterday and today, but was unsuccessful. The strikers declare that, if tying up the newspapers fails to bring victory, then a general strike of all unions will be called.

The linotypists and other employes of the newspapers recently threatened a strike if large wage increases were not granted and their demands promptly met.

KAHN OPPOSES ZIONISM.

Californian Regrets That President Has Indorsed It.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Regret was expressed today by Representative Julius Kahn that President Wilson had come out openly in favor of an independent Jewish State proposed. The Californian said in an interview today that consideration of this question should have no place at the peace table.

"My principal objection to it," said Mr. Kahn, "is the division of one's affiliation with the country in which he lives, the creation of a divided allegiance. I am an American, for America first, last, and all the time; no other country appeals to me. One of the great dangers of Zionism is the fact that the non-Jew will begin to look upon the American Jew as having a lurking desire always to return to the so-called Jewish homeland—that the Jew will be accused by the non-Jew of being merely a sojourner in the United States, using the benefits, opportunities, and advantages that he can get by residence here with the ultimate object of becoming a Palestinian and a resident of the Jewish State. There are comparatively few Jews of that character in this country, yet the overwhelming majority will be charged with entertaining the desire to return.

"I have another objection to Zionism. Even in this country the Zionists carry their national flag—the blue star of David in a white field. I maintain that the Jews in this country have the right to carry but one flag, the Stars and Stripes, under which so many of their coreligionists gave up their lives on the field of battle. This country has been their Zion for 140 years. They ought to be so loyal to the flag of the United States as to leave no desire whatever in the heart of any man of the faith to carry any other flag.

"I regret that the President has seen fit to come out openly in favor of the Jewish State proposed by some of the English statesmen. I believe that if he had consulted the views of those members of the Jewish faith who have lived in the United States for many years, he would have found that an overwhelming majority of them is opposed to Zionism."

—the new Studebaker LIGHT-SIX

All the genius and resources of the great Studebaker factories have been centered upon making this the greatest value light six-cylinder car ever offered the American public. It is a car you will take real pleasure in driving—because it is responsive—gets away quickly. Takes its fuel easily, uses it with great economy, turns it into power instantly. And, with all its ability, you will find style and beauty in abundance.

After you have seen this new Studebaker LIGHT-SIX at the Show—compare it with other cars in its class. We'll abide by your decision.

"It Whistles When It's Had Enough"

Manufacturers and Dealers

There's a canker worm in the tire industry—you know it! It destroys the best tires ever put together—brings 75% of them to an untimely end—gets them black-balled unjustly.

WRONG INFLATION—That's It.

How can you absolutely control inflation—make it truly automatic and fool proof? We have the answer in the greatest valve improvement since pneumatic tires were thought of. When you see it you will say that the importance of this new valve cannot be overestimated.

NOTE: See our attachment that fits valves of all makes. Goes on like a dust cap. Measures and automatically adjusts inflation to desired pressure. Positively fool proof.

TIRE INFLATION IS TIRE SALVATION.

How the Spark Plug Score Stands for 1919

AC-Equipped Cars at the Show	34
Cars at the Show Equipped With All Other Makes Combined	22

During the war, all Liberty and Hispano-Suiza aircraft motors carried AC Spark Plugs as regular equipment.

For years AC Spark Plugs have been standard equipment on America's Finest Motor Cars.

Can you conceive of better proof of AC superiority?

Use AC Spark Plugs in your car.
